Henry talks oil strategy in Bonn

BONN (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger arrived here from the Middle East Saturday night to promote a new American oil strategy aimed at breaking Western dependence on oil imports and lowering prices.

American officials said the strategy was aimed at avoiding the choice between surrender or war in the event of a new oil embargo four or five years hence.

Huxley dies

LONDON (UPI) — Biologist Sir Julian Huxley, member of a distinguished family that included poet Matthew Arnold and scientist Thomas Huxley, died Friday night at his London home. He was 87.

A prolific writer with wide-ranging interests, Huxley wrote dozens of books on subjects as diverse as cancer research, philosophy of religion and zoology. His works include several volumes of verse.

USSR tries N-blast for canal building

NEW YORK — The Soviet Union has disclosed that it has experimentally used nuclear explosives with a view to building a canal that would reroute the flow of rivers from northern Russia to the water-harsh basin of the Volga and the Caspian Sea.

The test, conducted within five miles of normally inhabited territory, was the first nuclear excavation shot outside the atomic proving grounds in the Central Asian desert.

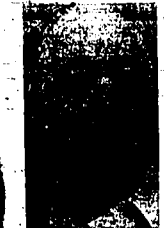

World coffee embargo to hike price

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (UPI) — World coffee producers are weighing the possibility of imposing a global embargo on coffee sales in an effort to boost the price around the world.

The coffee producers are also considering two other proposals — setting new price levels and increasing the amount of coffee to be retained from export markets.

Glen Trail, TF, dies in California

TWIN FALLS — Glen Trail, well known Twin Falls farmer, land owner and business man, died Saturday at Palm Desert, Calif., following a heart attack. Funeral arrangements will be announced through White Mortuary.

No choice

CHICAGO (UPI) — The Chicago Tribune, which endorsed Mayor Richard J. Daley for re-election in his last three races, said today it would not endorse any candidate in the Democratic primary this year.

In an editorial, the Tribune said Daley's administration has become "stale, closed and corrupt." The editorial also deprecated the abilities of the leader among the other three candidates opposing Daley.

Ford's son plans visit to Boise

BOISE (UPI) — President Gerald Ford's son Jack will pay a social visit to the Idaho Legislature Monday.

Ford and his roommate, Dave Sands, will be staying with State Rep. Ralph Olmstead, R-Twin Falls. Olmstead's children are college friends of both Ford and Sands.

Officers probe TF theatre heist

TWIN FALLS — Sheriff's officers were investigating an armed robbery at the Twin Cinema here Saturday evening.

Officers from Twin Falls and Jerome counties established roadblocks and began checking auto traffic in the area shortly before 10 p.m. The roadblocks were still in operation about midnight.

Reagan dodges '76 decision

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Gov. Meldrim Thomson of New Hampshire said Saturday he would support Ronald Reagan for president in 1976, but the former California governor said a decision by him to run would be premature.

"I just don't feel that it's the time to make any decision now," Reagan said at a news conference before addressing the Conservative Political Action Conference, whose participants appeared to be moving toward formation of a third party based on conservative ideology.

Though criticizing President Ford's $349 billion budget and calling for a re-assertion of conservative principles in the GOP, Reagan said he believed in the two-party system.

"I would hope the two-party system that has served us so well will continue to do so," he said.

Earlier, Sen. J. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., told the gathering it is too early for conservatives to bolt the GOP, although such a move should not be ruled out.

But Reagan sidestepped the question of running, saying he had talked to Thomson before Ford became President when the question of who would run was wide open.

Reagan also dashed cold water on the hopes of some conservatives for a ticket headed by Reagan with Alabama Gov. George Wallace as his running mate.

"He's a Democrat and I'm a Republican and I don't see how that would work out. Besides, we have some philosophical differences," Reagan, in his speech, stressed the need for "fiscal integrity" and said the GOP should reassert its fundamental conservative beliefs and go forward without those who disagree.

But he declined to say whether he believed President Ford subscribes to those principles. He said that was up to the President to decide.

"It is time to re-assert that principle and raise it to full view," he said. "And, if there are those who cannot subscribe to these principles, let us go forward without them."

Among those principles, he said, were "fiscal integrity" and "an end to deficit spending."

Reagan, like others participating in the conference, criticized Ford's budget, which is expected to produce a deficit of more than $30 billion.

He said inflation has "one cause and one cause only — government's spending more than government takes in! Unless we curb inflation we can see the end of our society and economic system," he said.

Probers seek Booth visit

BURLEY — Investigators from the state attorney general's office plan to meet with Burley's fired police chief in connection with their on-again-off-again investigation of Burley.

The attorney general's office had been asked by Cassia County prosecuting Atty. Al Barrus to conduct an investigation into alleged prostitution in Burley.

Thursday Barrus called off the investigation, saying it was creating too much confusion and could not work effectively in the rumor-filled atmosphere in Burley.

Barrus said he had asked for the investigation "into prostitution," "to find out whether it was going on in Burley and who is running it, and to shut it down if it's going on."

Barrus said he requested help from the attorney general prior to the firing of Police Chief Gary Booth. But when Booth was fired he expanded the investigation to include the matters surrounding Booth's firing and threats to city officials and other principals in the matter.

Ford eyes right

WASHINGTON — President Ford says he needs "responsible conservative backing" to be re-elected in 1976 and believes the formation of a "third political party on the right" would probably defeat the real objectives of a conservative movement.

But Ford made it plain he is not prepared to pay the price of dropping Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller to assure right wing support in the 1976 election.

Looking ahead

BEGIN NOW to build third party that can go to the voters in 1976 if the Republicans and Democrats fail to produce a "program of freedom" is the urging of Sen. Jesse Helms, D-N.C. He spoke to delegates to the national conservative conference in Washington, D.C. (UPI)

Ranks split over recall in Burley

By DAVID BOCKMAN
Times-News writer

BURLEY — The movement to recall Burley's mayor and city council is not dead.

Pat Kelly, Burley, a co-chairman of the newly formed "Citizens for Better Law Enforcement" said Saturday, "We plan to go ahead with the recall."

Kelly's statement reflects a split in the ranks of the new organization.

The other co-chairman, Wendell Campbell, says as far as he is concerned the "recall movement" is over.

The movement began last week with the firing of Police Chief Gary Booth on Monday.

By Tuesday afternoon, a recall petition with 20 signatures had been filed at the city clerk's office.

But public meetings Tuesday and Thursday seemed to cool the effort, at least as far as Campbell is concerned. Thursday, he said, although Booth was a "fantastic" chief, and the council had "made some mistakes," he was satisfied the council and the mayor should not be recalled.

The council did the right thing in firing Booth, Campbell said, though they did it "in the wrong way." For Campbell the recall movement is closed.

But, Kelly says, "I'm not satisfied." Many people are unsatisfied with the answers the Council has given for firing Booth, and the recall movement is still alive, he said.

Bias suit against Cassia schools eyed

BURLEY — A class action lawsuit alleging discrimination may be brought against the Cassia County school system.

The Times-News has learned that the Mexican-American Legal Defense Fund (MALDEF) may institute litigation against the school board on behalf of Mexican-American students.

A spokesman for the MALDEF office in San Francisco said the privately-funded organization has been involved in several "landmark" cases involving bicultural and bilingual education.

"Our record is unblemished." In winning cases, MALDEF's Carlos Alcala said. "We only pick the worst examples of discrimination he said, 'ones we're sure to win.'"

Dr. Paul Brown, president of the Cassia county school board expressed surprise when told of the possible class-action suit.

"I'm surprised, because I don't think the investigation (by HEW) warrants this action," Brown said.

Mail order investments probed

By DIANE ALTERS
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A mail order investment operation promising a 15 per cent return on insured savings advertised recently in Twin Falls and Pocatello is in trouble with federal and state officials.

The Times-News has learned the firm making the offer has been charged with mail fraud by the U.S. Postal Service.

In separate actions, officials in Washington, Oregon and Maryland have ordered the firm to stop its activities in those states.

However, the firm has not been convicted of any crimes.

In Idaho, state officials said they were unaware of the local mail offers.

"Earn 15 per cent guaranteed interest and more on your insured savings," a tiny advertisement in the Times-News announced earlier this month.

It asked readers to "Rush this ad and $1 for details..." to a post office box in Twin Falls.

The people who answered the ad in Twin Falls received a mimeographed booklet and two loose sheets. "Full details," the pamphlet said, on how to get 15 per cent interest on savings were given only to members of the American Trustee and Loan Association.

Association. For $10.95 the reader could get the report and become a member at the same time.

Thomas L. Walker (no relation to well-known Twin Falls beverage distributor Tommy Walker) is the young Twin Falls man who placed the advertisements.

He told the Times-News he didn't know that the American Trustee and Loan Association, which gave him the information and money to place the report to saving at such a high interest rate among other financial services, was been asked by state officials to stop doing business in Oregon and Washington.

Walker also said he wasn't aware that the Washington, D.C.-based company had been investigated by the Postal Service, where a case of civil fraud involving the association is being litigated through the postal services' judicial system.

Earlier in January, the Maryland attorney general's office issued a cease and desist order for American Trustee and Loan Association, which is based in Utah.

The company's operation consists of customers giving it money to invest, according to Andrew Oatis, an investigator at the Oregon Corporation Commission. The company's literature indicates that it has started a number of other organizations, which apparently solicit loans for association-approved investments.

Caution marks '75 legislature

By BILL LAZARUS
Times-News Capitol Bureau

BOISE — This year's legislative session may be remembered for quiet cautiousness.

Chances are it won't be remembered at all.

That, of course, remains to be seen. Committees are still considering many bills which would have long-lasting impact if passed. But with the legislature about to begin its sixth week and many representatives predicting a short, two-month session, the outlook for breakthrough is dim.

The mood is thoroughly conservative. Kindergarten, land-use planning, public works, power plant siting, and expanded health and welfare programs are focused upon with wariness traditional to Idaho's Republican dominated legislature.

Even the issues rallying the more conservative representatives are being played down. Letters demanding repeal of the Equal Rights Amendment pour in. But House leadership is determined to not become embroiled in an emotional and time-consuming battle on the issue such as occurred last year. The House still may repeal ERA but changes are slim this measure would make it through the Senate.

Many conservatives believe state spending should expand at the rate of inflation. That would keep government programs at a steady state level.

Ironically, the cautiousness of this legislature may well doom that ideal this year. The legislature has predicted the state will have a $220 million income in fiscal 1976, 21 per cent above the last year's predicted income for this fiscal year.

State spending for ongoing programs is based on revenue projections; the government plans to spend what it takes in.

Expert advises US oil cutback

CARAGAS (UPI) — The United States should cut back its 8.8 million barrel daily oil output by over 47.2 per cent and Saudi Arabia should increase its output by 65.6 per cent to achieve a better balance of world oil production and reserves, Venezuela's leading oil expert said Saturday.

Juan Pablo Perez Alfonso, former Venezuelan Mines Minister and founder of the Organization of the Petroleum Exporting Countries, said present production and reserve ratios among the top ten oil producing countries are out of balance.

He called for a reordering of oil output so world consumption of about 50 million barrels a day can be brought down to "reasonable levels."

Perez Alfonso told a news conference U.S. proven oil reserves are about one-fourth that of Saudi Arabia, but are being depleted six times faster.

He said Saudi Arabia leads in proven reserves—with 122 billion barrels, followed by the Soviet Union (75), Kuwait (64), Iran (60), U.S. (35), Iraq (32), Libya (26), United Arab Emirates (24), Nigeria (20), Venezuela (14) and other countries (80).

The USA, he said, leads in depleting oil reserves, followed by Venezuela, the USSR, United Arab Emirates, Nigeria, Iran, Libya, Iraq, Saudi Arabia, and Kuwait.

Perez Alfonso said that reorganizing world oil production to align with reserve capacities of the top 10 producing countries would mean Saudi Arabia should increase output by 65.6 per cent while the USA should cut back output by 47.2 per cent and drop to fifth place among world producers.

SAIPAN, Mariana Islands (UPI) — The World War II battlegrounds of Saipan and Tinian Saturday moved a step closer to becoming an American commonwealth.

In a mid-afternoon ceremony, representatives of the United States and the Northern Marianas signed an agreement establishing the "Commonwealth of the Northern Marianas in Political Union with the United States of America."

The act will lead to eventual American citizenship for the estimated 15,000 residents of five inhabited islands north of the American island of Guam.

Besides Tinian and Saipan, the inhabited islands are Rota, 27 miles north of Guam, Agaña 70 miles north of Saipan, and Pagan, about 170 miles north of Saipan.

The uninhabited island of Maug, the northernmost island in the Marianas chain, is about 500 miles south of Tokyo.

Marianas Representative Edward D. Pangloss said significant concessions were made by the United States in reaching the agreement.

Discrimination violations eyed

By DIANE ALTERS
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Magic Valley schools have been liable to lawsuits since 1972 for sex discrimination in instruction and employment, school officials learned Friday.

Officials from the Idaho Department of Education told a group of school counselors, principals and superintendents Friday at Robert Stuart Junior High that certain measures could be taken to avoid violating provisions of title IX of the Education Amendments Act which prohibits sex discrimination in schools.

The act has been law since 1972 but the federal government has been slow to write enforcement regulations to let school officials know that they must do to comply with the law, according to Richard Nelson, desegregation coordinator and affirmative action at the department of education.

"We're in a phase of getting the word out," but what the law really says, Nelson said. Although final guidelines will not be published until the end of February, the department of education is working from proposed guidelines.

Some areas that may require changes in course offerings are:

- all classes must be offered on an equal basis to boys and girls.
- A school district may not exclude girls from shop and boys from home economics, for instance, or operate separate home economics or shop classes for boys and girls.
- all students must have equal access to extracurricular activities. Boys and girls must have equal opportunity to participate in competitive athletics, for instance, although schools have flexibility to determine how best to provide opportunities.

Nelson said schools were not required to spend equal amounts on boys and girls, but schools must not discriminate in providing necessary equipment and supplies if separate teams are offered.

A pregnant student must be able to attend class and extracurricular activities as long as she wants. If the student and the doctor decide that she must stay home for health reasons, she is entitled to receive instruction under the home bound student program.

If the father of the child is also a student, he must be allowed to attend classes and extracurricular activities.

The provisional guidelines dodged the issue of discrimination in textbooks and materials. Nelson said the Health, Education and Welfare Department felt that First Amendment rights of free speech might be involved.

The panel and the audience also discussed employment practices. Local schools analyze their work force to see if women and men are paid equally for equal work and are recruited and hired on the same basis, Nelson said.

If the law is enforced, more women should be hired in administrative roles, according to Leila Watts, consultant for guidance and pupil personnel at the state office.

Now, no women superintendents of assistant superintendents are employed in Idaho, and only four women are employed in the state as secondary school principals, Ms. Watts said.

Their spirited music was well received.

TF man held on burglary

TWIN FALLS — A 34-year-old Twin Falls man was arrested early Saturday morning and charged with first degree burglary.

Detective Capt. Tim Qualls said Earl E. Kirkpatrick was apprehended shortly before 4 a.m. in the Bowldrome as city, county and state officers converged on the building.

Several other burglaries have occurred there recently.

Kirkpatrick was being held in the county jail pending court appearance on Tuesday.

Capt. Qualls said a check with the National Crime Identification Center revealed the suspect is also wanted to the FBI for flight to avoid prosecution on burglary charges in St. Louis, Mo.

Investigation is continuing.

Tuesday deadline

TWIN FALLS — Tuesday will be the deadline for receiving applications from Twin Falls families interested in hosting an exchange student under the American Field Service program for the coming year.

Anyone interested is asked to contact Doris Watts at the Twin Falls High School. At the present time AFS officials have not been given the name or country of next year's visiting student.

Persons wishing to host the student should have a son or daughter of their own who is of high school age.

Council to meet

TWIN FALLS — City Council members will meet Tuesday night this week because of the Monday holiday but have only a brief agenda scheduled.

The council will consider acceptance of the final plat of the proposed new College Park Subdivision in the north part of the city.

Boise pair have double trouble

TWIN FALLS — A young Boise couple, injured in a traffic accident early Friday, have had their many problems complicated by the loss of their pet dog.

Mr. and Mrs. Kelly Buckland, both 29, were brought to Magic Valley Memorial Hospital about 4 a.m. Friday after their vehicle went out of control on Interstate 80 and rolled over several times. Buckland, a paraplegic, was driving the special vehicle built with all hand controls. His wife suffered a serious back fracture.

The accident occurred about one mile east of the Ogden interchange in Cassia County.

Riding with the couple was their dog, Fudra, a cross between an Irish setter and a golden retriever. She was seen by officers at the time of the initial investigation but could not be located.

Since that time the dog has not been found, in spite of repeated efforts by Cassia County officers and a wrecker operator. The dog is a red-gold color with a black collar and black tips on her ears. She is 2 years old.

The couple will be transferred to Boise where Mrs. Buckland will receive special treatment and surgery and Buckland will be cared for in a nursing home until his wife is again able to help him.

In the meantime, both are anxious for the return of their pet. Anyone seeing the dog in the area or knowing if it has been picked up is asked to contact the Cassia County sheriff's office or Mary Goe at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital.

TF county zoners study commercial designation

By DAVID HORSMAN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls County zoners Thursday night agreed to consider a commercial zoning designation for Blue Lakes Boulevard South between Rock Creek and Orchard Drive.

The area currently has a residential-agricultural zoning designation, which reserves it primarily for agricultural uses but permits subdivisions. A public hearing on the zone change probably will be held in April.

The zoners took the action after the owner of a truck scale sale and service firm in the area applied for a switch to commercial zoning for his property.

The owner, Leon Littlefield, is currently allowed to stay in operation because the firm existed at the time his property was zoned. But he reportedly plans to sell the property and the new owner would lose the right to run a commercial operation on it unless it is rezoned.

Several other businesses in the area have indicated they would like to see a zone change to commercial, according to Ed Woods, county zoning administrator.

"It might be wise to look at the whole area to see if it should be rezoned," Woods told the zoners Thursday.

In other action, the zoners recommended approval of a zone change from commercial local to industrial for a small tract of land north of the fairgrounds in Filer owned by the Boy Scouts of America.

The commercial local designation permits only light commerce, such as grocery stores.

The Scouts "intend to make the land income-producing," according to Dart Gleed, executive director of the Snake River Area Council. He said a gas company has requested a lease the property for storage of bulk propane, but no firm commitment on its use has been made.

Beams Inc., a Filer firm, objected to the zone change, claiming the property is "too small for the use planned."

Ken McDonald, a Beams employee, said his firm had asked to lease the Boy Scout land.

"We feel that we could use it better," McDonald said.

Gleed confirmed that Beams had offered to rent the property, but pointed out that the offer came 30 to 60 days after the gas company expressed an interest.

The zoners also approved a public hearing on a planned unit development proposed by Regal Manufacturing Co. on Highway 74 across from the Twin Falls Labor Camp.

The hearing probably will be scheduled in April.

The firm plans to build two-story condominiums at the site. Lyle Frazier, general manager of Regal, said the firm has already requested approval of the project by the Veterans Administration and the Farm Home Administration. The agencies must approve the structures before giving loans to buyers.

Acting on another request from Regal, the zoners granted a six-month extension for filing of a final plat on the Villa Vista subdivision, also near the labor camp.

Nation's strength apparent from view aloft

© New York Times Service

RIVERSIDE, CALIF. — It is hard to cross America from Massachusetts to California these gloomy days without feeling a lot better about the strength of the nation.

The big jet planes of course, are deceptive. After their struggle off the runways, and occasional shudder through the clouds, they vault the Appalachians, the Great Plains, and the Rockies. In the process, they eliminate all sense of speed or danger, and temporarily obliterate the slums and the ugliness of life.

Under a powder of snow below, everything seems more beautiful than it really is. In this sense, these big jet planes are the worst of vehicles for a reporter. They are much less accurate than the old railroad trains that ran through the backyards, junkyards and sooty clothes-lines of the old decaying cities. They are also much less revealing than the old transcontinental highways, which touched the life of the villages and the small towns.

But something has to be said for the jets. If the problem of America today is to use and control power, to recognize its possibilities and its limitations, and also to see life in the wider perspective of history, the big planes tell us something, not only about the transportation but the philosophy of the nation.

At 37,000 feet, they remind us that we are a continental nation. They see its scope and majesty, its achievements, its growth, its spreading and glittering communities in the night. These are also part of America. They give us a vision of the nation's achievements and as the planes come down over the Rockies and the wheel over the expanding suburbs of Los Angeles, and finally rush down into the airport — now a vast city in itself — they bring us into a different and more narrow world.

On the ground everything is suddenly different. The scope of the nation is lost in commerce. Everything is more narrow and physical. There is a struggle for luggage, and for cabs. The loudspeakers are announcing specific flights or calling for lost passengers, and the newspapers on the stands are announcing the latest developments and potential disasters.

Thus, everything now seems more narrow, physical and mathematical, the story is in the headlines.

Henry Kissinger, we are told, is now denouncing the hard liners in Israel. Senator Jackson is denouncing Kissinger in Washington. Walter Cronkite is saying that three cents were gained on the big board. Bill Russell is refusing to enter the basketball hall of fame, and President Ford, off in Texas and Kansas, is insisting that the Congress is playing politics with the economy, and that it will implement "gas rationing over his dead body."

On the ground, here in Riverside, the picture is part of this narrow view. It is a lovely natural citrus grove, surrounded by hills, but the main highways have been taken over by gas stations with soaring steel towers higher than church steeples, and hamburger stands without number. The newspapers and the new University of California at Riverside struggle for attention, but the big McDonald's "M" sign and the other commercial signs dominate the landscape.

This contrast between the narrow preoccupations and the wider yearnings of American life is one of the most interesting aspects of our condition today. The politicians and the papers and the television are talking about mathematical things: Double-digit inflation, double-digit unemployment, etc.

George Meany of the AFL-CIO says unemployment is going to 10 per cent by the spring. Not so, says the president. The parties are arguing about who is to blame for the inflation, whether to have taxes on imported oil, or rationing, or who is ahead in the race for the presidency in 1976.

But most of the issues under discussion are narrow and egotistical, and the questions asked here at the University of California in Riverside seem to be limited to old issues about the past, the shortcomings of Mr. Nixon, Mr. Ford, the prospects of the presidential candidates of 1976.

As E.B. White once remarked, in another pessimistic period of our national life, "most of the special matters people now discuss are pressing, but taken singly, or added together, do not point in a steady direction, they do not name a direction that gets me up in the morning to pull on my marching boots."

In short, the issues under discussion here in Riverside or even in Washington continue to be narrow issues, grounded in the politics of the moment, but lacking the perspective of the history and the power and geography of the nation. Somehow, it is hard to take by the ground the possibilities rather than the impossibilities of the problems of the present time.

But, in a way, the power and achievement of the nation can be seen, at least fleetingly alone. The perspective of the airplane is deceptive, but there is a vision of the future from a great height, and so far none of the candidates have been able to see the nation's problems in relation to its grandeur.

Idaho farmers against wall

Rapidly rising production costs have backed Idaho's farmers up against the wall.

The inevitable choice is going to be either the end of low farm prices or the bankruptcy of the people who grow the world's food.

To take a case in point, consider the dark picture of the prospects for the Idaho potato industry painted in Twin Falls recently by the Potato Growers of Idaho. The PGI is a grower's organization that had some success negotiating high contract prices last year.

The PGI distributed sheets spelling out how much money it cost Magic Valley farmers to produce an acre of potatoes. The PGI estimates are an eye opener.

A typically Valley potato farmer can expect to put $887 an acre into his crop before he gets a cent back out of it. This compares with $287 for grain, $446 for beans and $665 for sugar beets.

The figure for potatoes is not strictly a cost tally, however. It includes a ten per cent return on the value of the farmer's land, pegged at a high $1,300 an acre. This might be put in the area of profit, not cost.

But despite a few questions about the PGI estimates, the figures do give a fairly good idea of what it really costs to bring in a crop.

The PGI went on to argue forcefully that the high costs will mean farmers must get high prices in order to break even.

For example, a grower who expects a yield of 250 sacks an acre would need to get a price of about $3.50 a sack to make ends meet. A grower with yields of 300 sacks would get by with closer to $3 a sack.

The problem is it is unlikely that anybody will be offering these minimal prices in the current market. The current price is less than $2 a sack.

A grower who contracts to sell his crop at $2 next year when he expected expects it will cost him $3.50 to grow that crop would be a fool. According to the PGI, the farmer would be better off raising grain, beans or beets. But the same cost-price grind applies to other crops, as well as to the livestock industry.

What is really remarkable about all this is that only a few years ago a farmer could get by selling his potatoes at only $2.

The real message is that inflation has made low-cost food prices a thing of the past — Farmers can't be expected to sell their potatoes for two cents a pound in the future.

Since American farmers are the world's most productive, and since the world still needs food, it seems reasonable to pay our farmers enough to keep them in business.

Reds' goal: Stage coup, get Azores

Concerning the developments in Portugal, a few observations:

1) The Communists in Portugal are organized, the non-Communists are not. Power generally flows into the hands of the organized, as distinguished from the disorganized party.

Alvaro Cunhal, the leader of the Portuguese Communists, spent nearly 20 years in France. He had advantages then he did not have during his exile in Zurich. Cunhal was well looked after by his hosts, and he spent his time creating an organization against the day when a successor dictatorship to Salazar's should fall.

When April came, Cunhal was there, ready to plot the subjugation of the Portuguese people. That is the proper term for it, as the polls show that the Portuguese are not an exception to the rule, that the human species will not elect a Communist dictatorship if given a choice. The question left, will the Communists win in Portugal at the general election scheduled for April 12.

The question is: will there be a fair general election. The Communists will not abide by a fair election, any more than Lenin did. Like him, they will simply dissolve the general assembly in this case the ramp parliament set up by the military — and proceed with communication.

2) What should we do about it? Anything? My guess is that the CIA is too hot to meddle these days to anything. How can it do something to help the Portuguese resist enslavement by the Communists, when to do so would involve the risk of antagonizing America's New Isolationsists?

James Burnham, calling the reports of informed journals and commentators in Europe, writes that Moscow is sending in excess of $100 million per month to Portugal. And why indeed not? At that rate even over a period of one year they are spending less than a single submarine costs you. But the tactical and strategic value to the Soviet Union of Portugal is worth it, I should think, something on the order of 1,000 submarines.

WILLIAM F. BUCKLEY, JR.

It is a pity that, during the SALT talks when Khrushchev and the leaders were balancing off permissible inventories of missiles and submarines and whatnot, we did not think to include countries. It would have been interesting to see what would have happened if we had insisted that the Soviet Union would have to limit itself to its current quota of slave satellites. But one supposes that that would have justified the negotiations.

3) As to the future, what are we going to do if the Communists take power, which appears likelier than not at this moment? They would, of course, instantly withdraw Portugal from NATO, and boot the United States out of the Azores. Should we accept Cunhal's order, and abandon our bases in the Azores? Portugal was admitted into NATO in the 'forties not because the European NATO powers loved Salazar, and certainly not as a reward for Portugal's neutrality during the war. Portugal was admitted because, on further consideration, the generals gave out the word: We must have the western coastline of the Iberian Peninsula; and, above all, we must have the Azores.

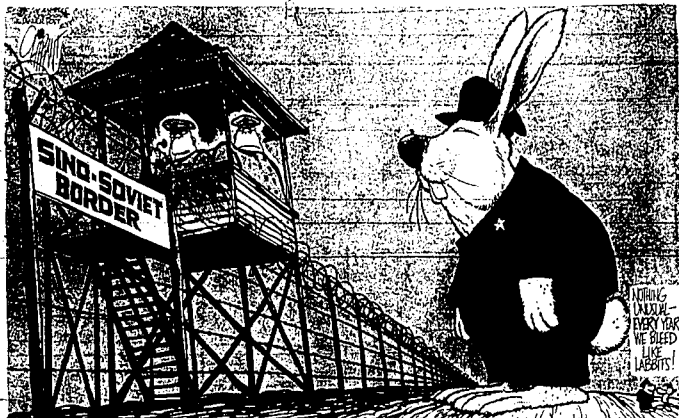

Are we prepared, in the event of a coup in Portugal (which is what, in effect, it would be), to dissolve NATO, or to accept it as a military unit? Or would we simply say, as we did when France fell, that we do not recognize the legitimacy of the regime? That, indeed, the full powers of NATO are legitimately summoned to resist the colonization of one of their members by the superpower NATO was sworn to protect Europe against?

It would not be tactful to say in so many words, but I should think Kissinger could find a suitably elliptical formulation for saying: "You may get away with staging a coup in Lisbon, boys, but if you think the Azores go with it, come on to Washington and talk it over with our admirals."

Thought for the day

A thought for the day: British statesman Sir Winston Churchill said, "Politics are almost as exciting as war, and quite as dangerous. In war, you can only be killed once, but in politics many times."

They don't make 'em that way...

WASHINGTON — The National Security Council was in session today when a CIA man rushed in with a cable in his hand. "The Cubans have made a big oil strike in the Bay of Pigs. It could be the biggest oil find in the Western Hemisphere."

"The dirty rats," someone said. "Wait a minute," said a man from the Defense Department. "That's no way to talk about the Island Bastion of Freedom in the Caribbean."

"Are you crazy?" the State Department man said.

"We're going to have to help them defend themselves," the Defense Department man said. "Against whom?" a White House aide asked.

"Us," the Defense Department man said. "Remember, Cuba is only 90 miles away from Miami."

"I say we go in and take the oil," the CIA man said.

"What?" said Defense. "That could kill one big plane sale. Cuba will need some sophisticated fighters now that they have oil."

"Not to mention anti-aircraft weapons, tanks and armored personnel carriers," his assistant said. "I wouldn't be surprised if they order a billion dollars' worth of arms."

"Wait a minute," said State. "Are we going to sell Castro war material?"

"Do you want the French to do it?" Defense asked.

"Or the Russians?" his assistant said.

"But we don't even recognize Cuba diplomatically."

"What has that got to do with selling them arms?" Defense wanted to know. "They've got oil. They're entitled to buy anything they want from us."

"Exactly," said Treasury. "We have to think of our balance of payments."

"He's right," said the White House. "After all, Castro isn't a bad guy."

"He'll probably need destroyers," Defense said.

"We have some new ones being built now with fantastic radar on them. We were going to give them to the U.S. Navy, but the Navy can wait."

"I wouldn't be surprised if Castro wanted nuclear submarines."

"We've got them. They're on station now in the North Atlantic, but we could deliver them in 20 days."

"I don't want to throw cold water on a big military sale, but are you sure the Cubans can handle all this sophisticated material?"

"We'll train them, dummy," Defense said.

"You mean our soldiers and sailors will train the Cubans in weapons that they may use against us?"

"Of course not. Do you think we're idiots? We'll contract the training to a private company made up of Green Berets, ex-Marines and Naval ordnance men. In that way we'll be one removed from the sale in case there is any flak from Congress," Defense retorted.

"I hope Castro likes what we have to sell him."

"He'll go crazy when he sees our catalogue. I wouldn't even be surprised if he wanted to buy our intermediate ballistic missiles."

"Missiles?" said State.

"Sure. They have the sites over there. All we have to do is stick them in the ground."

"When will they start getting oil out of the bay?" White House asked the CIA man.

"We figure about three months," CIA responded.

"Good," said Defense. "That will give us a chance to make up a presentation. We'll send Henry to Havana as soon as he gets back from the Middle East."

"Great man, Castro," said Treasury.

"A credit to the hemisphere," said White House.

State finally got the message: "They don't make world leaders like that anymore."

Thought for the day

A thought for the day: British statesman Sir Winston Churchill said, "Politics are almost as exciting as war, and quite as dangerous. In war, you can only be killed once, but in politics many times."

WASHINGTON — The Federal Communications Commission entered an order a couple of weeks ago, denying license renewals to five radio stations under the common ownership of Star Stations, Inc.

Whether just or unjust, the order dramatically revokes old questions of the status of broadcasting under the First Amendment.

The FCC's decree is aimed directly at Don Burden, board chairman and president of the parent corporation that has operated WIFE and WIFE-FM in Indianapolis, KOIL and KOIL-FM in Omaha, and KSNM-AM in Vancouver. Last month's wiper order wipes him out.

Commissioner Robert E. Lee, dissenting, called it a "death sentence." To deny Burden's license renewals struck Lee as "an unprecedented example of an overuse of justice."

In Lee's view, "We are effectively bankrupting the license and probably denying him a livelihood in his field of expertise."

A majority of the commission, disagreeing with Lee, found a pattern of "serious misconduct" in the operation of the Star stations, and held that Burden "was intimately involved in and had knowledge of the misconduct."

The charges of greatest concern in terms of the First Amendment issue, had to do with Burden's activities in support of the political campaigns of Vance Hartke in Indiana in 1964 and Mark Hatfield in Oregon in 1966.

The commission found, as to Indiana, that Burden was "privy to a scheme" by which WIFE furnished favorable publicity and free advertising for the Hartke campaign.

As part of the scheme, the station's news staff was directed "to provide favorable news coverage for the candidate during regular news broadcasts."

Following the campaign, said the FCC majority, Burden made false representations to the commission about his knowledge of these allegations.

The commission further found, as to Oregon, that in 1966 Burden instructed KSN's staff "to use regular newscasts to favor Mark Hatfield over his opponent."

The publicity that Burden's station gave Hatfield was broadcast "not as an exercise of news judgment, but as a deception of the public and to further his private interests."

This was an attempt "to use broadcast facilities to subvert the political process," and such misconduct could not be ignored or condoned.

Commissioner Robert E. Lee, dissenting, called it a "death sentence." To deny Burden's license renewals struck Lee as "an unprecedented example of an overuse of justice."

In Lee's view, "We are effectively bankrupting the license and probably denying him a livelihood in his field of expertise."

A majority of the commission, disagreeing with Lee, found a pattern of "serious misconduct" in the operation of the Star stations, and held that Burden "was intimately involved in and had knowledge of the misconduct."

The charges of greatest concern in terms of the First Amendment issue, had to do with Burden's activities in support of the political campaigns of Vance Hartke in Indiana in 1964 and Mark Hatfield in Oregon in 1966.

JAMES KILPATRICK

One effect of the FCC's order is to emphasize the night-and-day difference between the print media and the broadcast media in terms of "freedom of the press." In theory, the broadcasters have the same First Amendment freedom enjoyed by the press; in fact, the broadcaster's freedom is as nebulous as the air on which they rely. So long as the FCC can issue life-or-death decrees, for the reasons spelled out in the Burden case, the theory has no substance.

Suppose a newspaper publisher had done what Burden was charged with doing. Suppose a publisher had directed his editors deliberately to favor one candidate over another in the news columns. Sad to say, it has been known to happen. Such corruption of the news is a terrible, disservice to the press as a whole. It is unethical, contemptible—pick your adjective. But it is not unlawful. No federal commission can shut down a newspaper. No publisher has to make representations under oath to any agency of government. If it ever were seriously proposed to license newspapers, the proposal would be shouted down as intolerable.

Yet we tolerate the judgments of the FCC. Had to frequencies and TV channels must be allocated by some agency, it is reasonably argued, or we would have chaos on the air. Congress has charged the FCC, by law, with making these allocations. The Constitution says that Congress shall make no law abridging freedom of the press. This takes us back to square one.

Broadcasters may believe that as part of the press, they have First Amendment rights. What the Burden case says is simply this: They have them not.

Price index figuring process changing

By JUDY GARDNER
Consumer Quarterly

WASHINGTON — Changes are being made in the way the government calculates how much consumer prices have gone up or down.

The monthly report on retail prices, known as the Consumer Price Index (CPI), followed away both by government economists and millions of citizens whose incomes are directly affected by it.

And now "the American public tracks monthly CPI fluctuations with an intensity once reserved for major league batting averages and Dow Jones averages," observed Louisiana Democratic Sen. J. Bennett Johnston Jr. recently.

According to the Bureau of Labor Statistics (BLS), the agency within the Labor Department responsible for compiling the CPI, the index affects the incomes of about half the U.S. population.

The wages of nearly 5.2 million workers are covered by contracts with escalator clauses pegged to the index; so are the benefits paid to nearly 29 persons on Social Security; about 2 million retired military and federal workers, 600,000 postal workers and 17 million food stamp recipients.

BLS reports a growing list of other items pegged to the CPI: the price of federal school breakfasts and lunches; adjustments in the poverty levels used in setting eligibility for federal, state and local health and welfare programs; rents and condominium maintenance charges; alimony and child-support payments; royalties and employee benefits.

So widespread is its use that BLS Commissioner Julius Shiskin estimates that a 1 per cent change in the index over a year triggers at least a $1 billion change in income under wage escalator provisions alone.

Using that measure, the 12.2 per cent increase in the CPI in 1974 meant a massive $12-billion-plus boost in wages.

The index is no less important to government officials, particularly as a measure of inflation.

"It has a direct impact on the formulation and evaluation of government economic policy that affects virtually everyone," says Shiskin. "The Consumer Price Index is, in fact, a major yardstick by which the success or failure of government is judged."

All of these uses make an accurate index essential, so BLS is about halfway through a revision of the CPI that will take 10 years when early planning and future evaluation are counted and will cost more than $40-million.

The index now is based on statistical data collected in the early 1960s, so the major thrust of the revision is to update information on the way American families spend their money — what they buy, where they buy it, what portions of their incomes go for food, clothing, housing, health and transportation.

At the same time, BLS is working on a new, second price index that will reflect the impact of inflation on a broader spectrum of Americans than the present one.

The CPI now measures price changes of goods bought by urban wage earners and clerical workers — estimated at about 55 per cent of the urban population and less than 45 per cent of the total U.S. population.

Writer delves into reasoning

Editor, Times-News:

In all the discussion about the Equal Rights Amendment we all have to agree that there are people with sincere motives who are supporting it. There are others who have questionable reasons, and I think it would be interesting to look at some of them.

The women's liberation movement seems to be leading the fight for ratification. This movement started after Aug. 26, 1970, the day tens of thousands of women took to the streets of major cities throughout the nation declaring a "Women's Strike for Equality." It was started by women from such groups as the Communist-controlled S.N.C.C. (Student Nonviolent Coordination Committee).

They publish two magazines, Ms. and Women, which give us some understanding of these people. They are anti-family, anti-children and pro-abortion. Their magazines are full of complaints by unnamed women, many of them lesbians. They view the home as a prison and the wife and mother as a slave. To these women, marriage means dirty dishes and dirty laundry. The principal purpose of their magazines is to sow seeds of discontent among happy married women so that all women can be unhappy in some new sisterhood of frustrated married women. Should they speak for all women in America and set the standard for our lives?

Playboy magazine has contributed money to push E.R.A. I wonder why?

Another group working for liberalized abortion and the Equal Rights Amendment is the "U.S. Commission on Population Growth and the American Future," established in 1970 by President Nixon and headed by John D. Rockefeller Jr. Joining the commission are representatives from such organizations as the Population Control Council, the Ford Foundation, Family Planning, Inc., etc. One critic commented "Not one friend of life on the entire list." These people are working for population control, which means people control. Is this why they want E.R.A.?

In your news item "Idaho's top GOP aid boos E.R.A." in last Sunday's paper, it was reported that "President Ford endorsed the Equal Rights Amendment the day that he signed the executive order establishing the National Commission on the Observance of International Women's Year, 1975." His wife also told him "You've come a long, long way."

What this news item didn't tell us is that on March 29, 1971, nationally syndicated columnist Leon Dennen reported: "Recently Communists and their affluent allies of women's liberation celebrated 'International Women's Day,' which has replaced Mother's Day in Marxist-Leninist society. The Soviet press, in preparation for the annual event, printed articles about the 'full equality of sexes in Russia.' The result of all the 'equality' is, he reports, 'the woman's burden of coping with a job and a family leads to unwelcome social consequences, such as an increase in broken marriages, juvenile delinquency and a falling birth rate.'"

Rather than government by the people, of the people and for the people, we have government against the people. Every new government program increases the control of the federal government over our lives. Is this the reason President Ford and many others in important positions in our nation's capital want this amendment?

I urge everyone who opposes this amendment to let their legislators know how they want them to vote, and then remember how they voted when the next election comes around.

MRS. RUTH HORSH
Kimberly.

Odd thinking

Editor, Times-News:

The quality of thinking handed down to us from our irresponsible State Department is indeed a strange and wondrous thing.

The Pentagon subcontracted $77 million to a private concern to train a 1,000-man force for the purpose of protecting the Saudi Arabian oil fields. At the same time Kissinger and Ford are mumbling about the use of our official armed forces to pressure all the oil-producing countries of the Middle East. Are we actually expected to accept this sort of balderdash as statesmanship?

I see that Sen. Stennis, chairman of the Armed Forces Committee, discreetly concedes that this raises some questions. What a masterpiece of understatement.

I should think that Mr. Kissinger would make a medium to fair haberdashery salesman and should be working for Sears, Roebuck or Montgomery Ward. He certainly is out of place in the office he now holds. Not should he be permitted back on a reputable college faculty place to instruct a glib, unsophisticated student body in the mysteries of political science.

At issue with columnist

Editor, Times-News:

An article written by Andrew Tully in this paper, Times-News, last Friday Feb. 7, made some statements that I wish to take issue with.

I do not mean by this that I can hope to match words with this very well-known and widely-read syndicated columnist; but I would like to state my feelings, and findings on this controversial subject of gun control.

First, he writes, quote "But the opponents of gun control seldom quote the amendment in its entirety. It reads: 'A well regulated militia being necessary to the security of a free state, the right of the people to keep and bear arms, shall not be infringed.'"

"No syllable in that lucid statement can be construed to mean that any private person may 'keep and bear arms.'"

The founding fathers were providing merely for the establishment and maintenance of a militia for national defense. They did not say or imply that Congress was powerless to control the sale and use of firearms. "End of quote."

The issue is this, that in order to interpret this second article of the Bill of Rights, the whole sentence must be read. I will now quote Webster's Unabridged Dictionary on Militia: "A military service, soldiery, from MILITARY, a soldier. 2. In the United States, the entire body of citizens liable to be called upon to do military duty," and Webster's definition.

Now then this provokes a very different

ERA dangers pose threats

Editor, Times-News:

Those who favor ERA are very critical of those who oppose this dangerous amendment.

They have, for example, resorted to accusing anti-ERA people of using "scare tactics." Most people are afraid and upset when they do find out what ERA really means.

The facts are thoroughly documented in the Yale Law Journal, April 1971, pages 871-980, in the proponent's own words to the intent, effects and purposes of the amendment. Read it, you may be "appalled."

To accuse opponents of ERA of using "scare tactics" is simply an attempt to smear those who do not want radical changes. Smart tactics like those have been used for years. When you are weak on the facts, attack your opponent! Call them "shock troops," "mindless opponents," "scoundrels," "clowns," "hysterical," etc.

The opponents of ERA are described further as "unthoughtful," "unreasonable" and "untruthful." Now, surely the "thoughtful," "reasonable" and "truthful" pro-ERA people would not deny anti-ERA people freedom of thought, belief and expression, would they? I am appalled to learn that of all the many people I have talked to who support ERA... not one has read the above described Yale Law Journal. What people have been told that ERA will do and will not do is only conjecture because the courts will determine the meaning of the amendment.

As broad and vague as the amendment is, only by reading the intent, effects and purposes can one determine for himself why it is or is not a good amendment at this point.

I challenge any who are still undecided in this regard to obtain a copy. Until you have, don't tell me I'm wrong in saying this is a potentially dangerous piece of legislation.

Ford comment out of order

Editor, Times-News:

Quite apart from the external trappings of the presidential endorsement of ERA, President Ford is clearly out of order in presuming to tell state legislators whether they should or should not ratify a constitutional amendment.

The amending process is the only part of our entire governmental system in which the executive branch has no part. The founding fathers in their wisdom set up an amending process under which a constitutional amendment travels directly from the US Congress to the state legislatures.

The US president has no part in the procedure. He cannot sign the amendment and he cannot veto it. The same is true for the governor of each of the states. To put it bluntly, a constitutional amendment is none of their business.

Every citizen of the US is, of course, entitled to his opinion. It is, however, improper for the President or any governor to use the funds, power and prestige of his office to interfere in the amending process. With all the power that has moved from the legislative to the executive branch in recent years, legislators would be unwise to give up their last area of sole jurisdiction.

Yet, President Ford appointed a woman to his White House staff who has announced that her principal objective will be to push for ratification of ERA. This means that federal salary and expense money is being spent to "push" for ratification, which is essentially a grab for power at the federal level and will result in a board of new federal bureaucrats to implement it through "affirmative action" and "reverse thought, as nearly everyone in this country may now be called to military duty. And if the Equal Rights Amendment is ratified, this will include women also.

I believe, from what I have read of American history, that these founding fathers, fresh from a war that was fought mostly by private citizens who owned weapons, and certainly knew how to use them, were providing in the Constitution, the right to keep and bear arms.

They knew the value of such an army, because these men could be called on a minute's notice to defend their country and because they knew how to use the weapons they owned, they could defend most ably.

I have no quarrel with anyone about the necessity to reduce crime in this country, but the most realistic way is to make it extremely unhealthy for a person to commit a crime with the use of a gun.

There simply is no way to legislate guns out of existence. The same thing, only on a more monstrous scale, would happen, like the debate to eliminate alcohol.

Now this is my belief, and I would certainly invite anyone to come forward with their thoughts on this subject; either to endorse this belief of mine, or to take issue with me, because I have a lot more on this same subject stored up in my mind.

I am a member of the National Rifle Association, and have been since 1938. If I had known about this forthright association sooner, I would have been a member sooner. I live and work in Idaho, was born here in Idaho, and am a citizen of these United States.

I own a home, pay taxes, have a wife and children and some grandchildren. I like to hunt and fish and I love the outdoors. I am a typical member of the organization that Tully condemns, The National Rifle Association.

Light kit best

Editor, Times-News:

In reply to Ray Howell's letter in the Feb. 2 Forum about snow machine survival kits, he has a good idea; at least he is thinking about survival.

The problem in the items he suggested are too bulky. Instead, carry extra sparkplugs, belt, gas tools for the machine. A small compact storm kit which includes plastic tube shelter, fire starter, matches that are waterproof, sugar cubes, bouillon cubes. The kit comes in can be used in these United States.

Information on putting together one of these kits from your home can be obtained from the sheriff's office.

This kit is not only for winter survival but for any time. It is light enough for backpackers and cross-country skiers, durable enough for cars, Jeeps, trail bikes and snowmobiles.

He knows where it's kept

Washington Star-News

WASHINGTON — If the government is going to keep track of the sexual peccadilloes, drinking habits and a lot of other information about 11 million past and present federal employees, someone has to know where it's all kept.

Robert J. Drummond Jr. knows. Drummond, head of personnel investigations for the Civil Service Commission, is in charge of 11 million file cards that serve as an index to the commission's own files on some 3.5 million persons plus other files kept by the Federal Bureau of Investigation and some 50 other government agencies.

Most of the information on a government employee is collected when the person applies for a job. Under an executive order signed by President Eisenhower in 1953, the investigators are supposed to record, among other things:

"Any criminal, infamous, dishonest, immoral, or notoriously disgraceful conduct, habitual use of intoxicants to excess, drug addiction, sexual perversion or financial irresponsibility."

Most federal employees probably think that once they have been hired, the information out of their past that may have shown up in an investigation is filed and forgotten and that's the end of it.

But that's not necessarily so.

"We get all kinds of allegations against federal employees," said Walter Waldrop, Drummond's deputy.

FBI officials pay every government agency a duty under the same Eisenhower order to pass on any derogatory information they may come across about a government employee to the agency the person works for.

An FBI official at a field office outside

Washington said, for example, that a letter complaining about the drinking habits of the neighborhood mailman would be passed on to postal inspectors — and recorded in the bureau's files.

"Of course there is a potential for abuse of information anyone has in a file," Drummond said. "Whether a file is kept by the FBI, the Civil Service Commission or a newspaper, there is a potential for abuse. The protection is in the maturity and judgment of the people who handle the files."

The 11 million card files under Drummond's jurisdiction are kept at an office about a block away from the White House, while the personnel files themselves are split between this office and a General Services Administration storage area in Suitland, Md.

In addition to those two files, Drummond also keeps a security research file containing names of some two million individuals and organizations — most of them definitely not connected with the federal government. This file consists of an index to persons and organizations that fall under a vague classification of subversive.

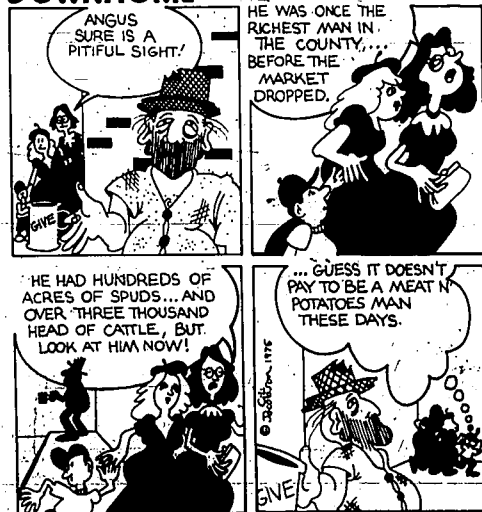

Almost all of the information in the files, Drummond said, comes from clipping newspapers.

While there is no law that authorized the security research file, Drummond said, Congress regularly appropriates money to maintain it.

"It is helpful to us in doing business," Waldrop said. "It is an expedient to help identify people."

Drummond's office maintains a small reading room where officials may look through the files.

MD ruled guilty in fetus death

BOSTON (UPI) — Dr. Kenneth C. Edlin was found guilty Saturday of manslaughter in the death of a fetus in a legal abortion.

A wall went up from the Suffolk Superior Courtroom as jury foreman Vincent Shea announced the verdict which Edlin said afterwards would certainly discourage other doctors from performing abortions.

Judge James P. McGuire ordered the 36-year-old physician released on $100 bond pending an unspecified sentencing date. The maximum sentence is 20 years in jail.

Edlin, dressed in a tan suit and brown tie, took the verdict calmly. His attorney, William Romans, said the decision would be appealed.

As court was dismissed, the judge called the traditional "God save the Commonwealth of Massachusetts."

"Damn sure needs it," cried a supporter of Edlin in the audience.

Later at a news conference, as friends and family wept openly, Edlin said he "did nothing illegal, immoral."

The nine-man, three-woman jury returned the guilty verdict in the second day of deliberations, ending a six-week trial. The state charged Edlin killed a "baby" during an elective abortion he performed Oct. 3, 1973 at Boston City Hospital, where he was chief resident obstetrician.

The state claimed a fetus became a "baby" when Edlin separated placenta from uterine wall, putting it on its own systems. It charged Edlin with killing in mid-abortion to stare at a wallclock for "at least three minutes" to ensure that the baby suffocated within the womb.

Assistant District Attorney Newman A. Flanagan, the chief prosecutor, said the verdict means physicians now must try to save the life of the fetus in surgical abortions, especially in mid and late stages of pregnancies.

Edlin's attorney William Romans said afterwards as he did during the trial that the case was part of an anti-abortion offensive undertaken by the district attorney's office under pressure from "certain parts of the community."

"People have tried to make me out as a hero and a martyr," Edlin said. "But the real heroes are the women who before January 1973 (the date of the Supreme Court decision legalizing abortion) put their life on the line."

"I just hope that women don't again have to put their life on the line" by subjecting themselves to illegal and dangerous abortions, he said.

Park frees foes

SEOUL — President Park Chung Hee of South Korea announced Saturday he would release all political prisoners except those he claimed were communists.

Among those to be released were Bishop Daniel Chi Hak Soon of the Roman Catholic Church, the Rev. Park Hyong Kyu, a prominent Protestant minister, the poet Kim Chi Ha, Prof. Kim Dong T'ae of Yonsei University, Prof. Kim Chan Kook, also of Yonsei, and Kang Shin Ok, the lawyer who defended many of those charged at their trials.

Cypriots prepare UN visit

ATHENS (UPI) — Greek Cypriot leaders Saturday completed strategy talks with the Greek government before leaving for New York to present to the United Nations their case against the unilateral proclamation of an autonomous Turkish Cypriot state in Cyprus.

Glaucos Clerides, speaker of the Cypriot House of Representatives and leader of the Cypriot delegation, told newsmen "the talks were very constructive and we reached common conclusions."

The talks were aimed particularly at coordinating a joint Athens-Nicosia position before the U.N. Security Council where Cyprus will appeal against the Turkish action, Clerides said.

The delegation met for five hours Saturday with Greek Prime Minister Konstantinos Karamanlis. A two-hour meeting followed Saturday with Foreign Minister Dimitrios Baisos.

Clerides said his delegation would fly to New York Sunday. Greece and Cyprus decided to refer the Cyprus problem to the Security Council only hours after Turkish Cypriot leaders Thursday unilaterally announced the formation of an autonomous state on the northern tier of the island.

Judges handed Nixon tape ownership case

Sunday, February 16, 1975 Times-News, Twin Falls, Idaho

WASHINGTON — The U.S. Supreme Court of Appeals decided Friday that a panel of three judges should take up certain legal issues surrounding ownership of the tapes and documents of former president Richard M. Nixon.

The court said the panel of judges should not be bound by the recent precedent-making ruling by a federal district judge that the government owned almost all the material.

In effect, the court of appeals gave the three-

Judge panel opportunity to decide the issue of ownership all over again, although it did not dictate that the panel do so.

The court's 5-3 panel decision was the latest ruling in a series by both the appeals court and the lower court, all stemming from a complex tangle of litigation involving lawsuits by Nixon and others, legislation by congress, and subpoenas by special Watergate prosecutor.

The dimensions of Friday's ruling and the ultimate outcome of the dispute over who may own and control the documents remain unclear.

Technically, the appeals court decision extends the stay that it imposed on the Jan. 31 ruling by U.S. District Judge Charles R. Richey, who gave the federal government control of almost all of the 42 million documents, including tape recordings, papers and other items, assembled during Nixon's five years at the White House. He held Nixon could not exercise any claims of executive privilege over them.

The court of appeals imposed the stay initially because Richey possibly should have referred one issue before handing down his decision.

ROKs sink prowler

SEOUL (UPI) — A South Korean navy patrol ship Saturday sank a 50-ton vessel believed to be a North Korean spy boat off the country's eastern coast near the fence border between the two Koreas, the defense ministry said.

The ministry said that "children were killed and wounded," by bullets fired from the North Korean boat during an exchange of gunfire but did not give further details.

Loans posted

LOS ANGELES — During 1974 the western home office of the Prudential Insurance Co. disbursed $316,232,819 in real estate loans in the 13 western states.

James B. Jacobson, senior vice president in charge of western operations, reports that $221.9 million of that amount was for city loans and $94.3 million for farm loans.

Rural TV policies assailed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Federal Communications Commission policies barring common ownership of cable and microwave television systems keep millions of rural Americans from getting improved reception, the White House Office of Telecommunications Policy said Saturday.

Ill strikers in hospital

DUBLIN (UPI) — The Irish government Saturday moved the most seriously ill of the Irish Republican Army hunger strikers to an intensive care unit in a Dublin hospital. Officials stood by in case the IRA wanted to resume stalled talks on ending the 44-day fast.

Patrick Ward, a 27-year-old Donegal fisherman, was taken under heavy police guard from the Curragh Military Hospital to Jervis Street Hospital where he was reported critically ill.

An OTP survey, conducted by the University of Denver, said over one million rural residents receive no adequate television service at all.

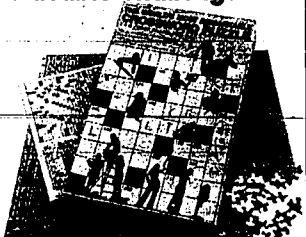

Six million other households, or about 9 per cent of all home viewers, receive fewer than three channels, the survey said, and another 22 million must choose from among fewer than five channels.

If FCC regulations were relaxed, the report said, all but about 150,000 of the most isolated households could receive three channels for a total investment of $128 to $153 million. It said five-channel reception would cost $272 to $336 million.

Test studies showed better service could be provided in north central Tennessee for an investment equaling $5 to $7 per household. In northwest South Dakota, the per household cost of improved reception via a combination of cable and improved microwave was $128 to $176.

At 12 per cent, the rate of inflation has been far lower than the rise in government income. But legislators are reluctant due to the shaky economy. If the projected revenues do not come in, tax relief now out of the projected income may mean raising taxes later.

Also, the legislators may not want to rock their boat. Even if $20 million the fiscal 1976 income projections stand $8 million below Gov. Cecil D. Andrus' projections. And that means cutting out $8 million from the governor's budget.

This problem so far has caused the longest running hassle of the session. For two weeks, Republicans have wrangled among themselves and then with their Democratic colleagues to determine how much more money state employees should receive.

The issue apparently was solved Friday with Republicans agreeing to support a package which would allow about half the salary raises the governor proposed. But this proposal still must make it through the House and Senate and the always possible veto by Andrus.

The Joint Finance Appropriations Committee figures a maintenance-of-effort budget at $210 million. If such a budget were adopted it would mean cutting $18 million out of Andrus' proposed budget — a proposition giving promise to a far lengthier and more argumentative session than legislators want.

Also, even some conservatives believe the additional money can be put to good use in making teachers' pay more compatible with pay in other states, in expanding vocational education programs and in granting more money to higher education.

When asked what marks this legislative session, representatives do not speak of new programs. Instead, they speak of how quickly the Finance Appropriations Committee is doing its work, they speak of a short session.

Or they may mention the quiet compromise with which legislators are handling once hotly disputed issues. Perhaps in an off-election year handstanding does not make much sense.

Most expect defeat of kindergarten. Supporters of this $3.1 million program had hopes for it early in the session. But their mood turned pessimistic after the House Revenue Projection Committee forecast revenues $8 million below those the governor predicted.

Despite state and federal studies predicting the rapid development of huge power plants in Idaho, a power plant siting bill has barely been discussed.

The bill would set forth guidelines to help determine where power plants would be located and would require utilities to pay a state commission for independent studies of proposed plants.

A public hearing on the matter will be held soon. But up to now even Democrats show little interest.

Andrus' $18 million public works proposal received little support from Republicans who early on decided to use all the state's estimated $22 million surplus for tax relief or for paying off state debts.

But Andrus may get some state money for public works yet, especially since a federal decision to release $43 million for road construction in Idaho would be contingent on $3.1 million in state matching funds.

Many supporters of land-use legislation retain some hopes. But must believe that who package will not pass both houses. Many conservatives still oppose the first bill which would require city and county governments to handle land-use plans, even though the measure would not allow state veto of the plans.

Last year the total package of land-use legislation died on this "local control" issue. When the first bill failed to pass, the rest were not introduced in the Senate.

This year supporters believe the land-use bills have a chance of passage in the Senate, especially if they make it through Sen. Lyle Cobb's Local Government and Taxation Committee to the Senate floor.

But then the bills would be routed to a House committee by Speaker of the House Allen Larsen, a representative strongly identified with the highly conservative block even though he has stressed compromise this session.

A proposal to let cities adopt any type of tax they choose could have a dramatic impact if it passes.

But even some legislators who lean toward this measure believe it will be shot down because its too broad in allowing any tax.

At this time the land-use and city tax measures seem to have a better chance than most major proposals. And their chance is not good.

Both on liberal and conservative issues Idaho's 43rd legislature has been cautious. It probably will remain so.

CIA infiltrated antiwar move in counterspy plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The CIA infiltrated the U.S. antiwar movement in an effort to get its own men — masquerading as radicals — recruited by Soviet intelligence, a former deputy CIA director said Saturday.

Describing the double-agent gambit as "an error in judgment," Ray S. Cline said the agency did it because Presidents Lyndon B. Johnson and Richard M. Nixon were "absolutely obsessed" with the belief that the Russians were manipulating the Vietnam protests.

The CIA apparently was never able to establish a "Russian connection" within the U.S. dissent movement. It is now under investigation itself, to determine whether it broke the law by spying on Americans.

Cline, a CIA employee for 27 years and a deputy director from 1962 to 1966, disclosed details of the agency's infiltration operations in an interview which enlarged on information already made public by CIA director William F. Colby.

Cline said the counterspy operation — in which intelligence agents put out an agent as "bait" to be recruited by a rival agency, and to work within it as a double-agent — appeared at the time to be "a classical counter-espionage operation." Now, he said, he considers it "an error in judgment."

"Since it involved penetration of an American organization, its purpose was ambiguous and therefore subject to criticism," he said.

But he added: "I know from my own recollection that both Presidents Johnson and Nixon were absolutely obsessed with the subject and pressed all government agencies to find this vital connection of foreign activation."

If the penetration effort had been fruitful, he said, "these young men would have had nothing to do with the dissent movement, really. They were fakes."

"They would have gone ahead to work for a Soviet agent, and then probably would have been sent back to the United States under an assumed name to do some work."

Cline, who had planned to become a scholar but joined the CIA instead in 1949, said the CIA over the years undoubtedly had committed other "errors of judgment" in its activities within the United States.

He cited mail opening operations, wiretapping, and three instances of entering without a search warrant described by Director Colby in his testimony before a Senate committee.

But Cline asserted that the CIA never approached being an "American Gestapo" and that charges of massive illegal domestic spying had been overblown in the press.

Agnew, Laird listed as radicals' 1970 targets

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Weathermen in 1970 considered kidnapping, and possibly assassinating, Spiro T. Agnew and Melvin Laird, according to an FBI informant who penetrated the radical organization.

The congressional testimony, published Saturday, revealed that in addition to the then vice president and defense secretary the group also singled out Henry Kissinger and former White House Press Secretary Ron Ziegler as possible targets.

"You might knock them (Agnew and Laird) off or you might kidnap them," the informant said. "It depended on how you felt that day."

Jerry Grathwohl, 27, was recruited by the Weathermen in September, 1969, and immediately went to work for the FBI. The Vietnam veteran, who now lives in Hayward, Calif., testified last Oct. 18 before a closed session of the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee.

He said the radicals sometimes were trained in North Vietnam and Cuba, were communists and he considered them "dangerous."

Federal police tightened security at the White House and government buildings around the country this month after the Weather Underground the name now adopted by the Weathermen claimed credit for the Jan. 29 bombing of a State Department restroom. There were no injuries.

Grathwohl's testimony was based on a short association with the revolutionary group. It ended abruptly on April 15, 1970, when he was arrested in

New York with Dionne Douglas and Linda Evans, two of its leaders. At that time, the Weathermen became aware of his FBI connection.

Ziegler and Kissinger were picked as possible kidnapping victims because of the belief they would have "less security" around them than other officials of the Nixon Administration. Grathwohl said

Burley officers rejoining force

BURLEY — Burley's ex-police officers who quit to protest the firing of the chief of police are returning to their jobs.

So far, four officers have returned to the force and a spokesman for the 14 officers who threw in their badges says more may do so.

Kevin Kelly, a spokesman for the 14 said, "we feel that we have made our point with the people."

Acting Chief Kirby Harkness said four officers have been rehired. He said the men will retain their original rank, but will be assigned duties as patrolmen.

Harkness said all the men who remained with the department and didn't walk off when Booth was fired were allowed to vote on allowing the four to return.

"We felt it no more than right that those who stayed, have a voice in it," Harkness said.

Now, he noted, the city council must confirm the hiring of the four. That's standard procedure, Harkness said.

Last Monday, 19 police personnel, including 14 regular officers threw in their badges to protest the firing of Booth.

Kelly says the walk-off was to show "how strongly we feel about the insufficient reasons for Chief Booth's firing."

But now, Kelly said, a few officers at a time will be applying for their jobs so that "the city can better protect during the weekend and the coming weeks."

Kelly said that the police who walked off did so after 24 of 26 attending a meeting prior to Booth's firing voted to do so.

Later, however, Kelly said, it was concluded that if all the force walked off, "this would leave the city unprotected."

Therefore, he said, those that could least afford to quit for "health and economic reasons would not turn in their badges in protest so they could remain on the job."

State aides plan meet with Booth

Although the attorney general's office is no longer officially conducting an investigation, investigators plan to meet with Booth.

Deputy Atty. Gen. Peter Heiser said Booth has scheduled an appointment Tuesday afternoon to talk to Atty. Gen. Wayne Kidwell.

Booth had been scheduled to meet with Kidwell Saturday but Booth canceled the appointment.

Heiser said "we do have some information we want to review with Booth." Heiser also wants to "go over some information Booth claims he has."

The information from Booth will then be presented to Higgins, Heiser said.

Heiser said the attorney general has no intention of usurping the power of the local prosecutor.

"We don't believe that we should take over from the prosecutor, but if the situation ever did arise, that we thought something was wrong, we could go in," he said.

FBI using Americans for spying

New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — The Federal Bureau of Investigation periodically dispatches American citizens on intelligence-gathering missions outside the United States, according to a 42-year-old Florida man who says he and others have been used for that purpose.

Joseph A. Burton, an antique dealer and antiques dealer who lives in Tampa, said that 16 years he posed as a Marxist in order to infiltrate revolutionary groups in the United States and Canada. He told the New York Times during that period he made "about 10" trips to Canada at the FBI's direction.

"Another undercover operative, a woman with whom Burton occasionally worked, confided in a separate interview that she made a month-long visit to China nearly four years ago in connection with her work for the bureau.

"The FBI, according to one of that agency's former high officials, has 'no right to run (intelligence) operations in a foreign country — that's the CIA's jurisdiction."

But neither he nor legal authorities in and out of government who were asked about the practice could point to any statute prohibiting the FBI from gathering intelligence overseas.

Cassia schools may face race bias suit

In December, the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare charged that the Cassia system was discriminatory because its programs failed to meet the special requirements of Mexican-American students.

chicano students were disciplined more frequently and more harshly than anglos, chicanos were inappropriately assigned to special education classes; the school staff is mostly white, despite the higher number of chicano students, and minority parents were not informed of school activities.

Alcala, San Francisco, says his organization conducted its own investigation of the system prior to when HEW made its charges.

MALDE had received complaints from local people concerning "discriminatory discipline, tracking, curriculum and a lack of bilingual and bicultural education," Alcala said.

A decision on going to court won't be made until staff of MALDE completes a "litigation review memorandum," Alcala said. If the memo indicates there's a case, litigation will result, he said.

However, Alcala said "an attorney recommends to go ahead now with the litigation against the school district."

"This looks like something we'll do," Alcala said. "We're not an organization that backs, we litigate."

But, board president Brown is critical of the investigations into discrimination.

"The research by HEW was superficial," he said. HEW charges that although chicanos constitute only 10 per cent of the students, "they receive 33 per cent of the total discipline and 40 per cent of the court referrals or probationary sanctions."

"When it comes right down to it, they just pulled the records" and looked at Mexican-American names, Brown said. Some of those students had mixed parentage, he said.

"Our stand on discipline," Brown said, "is, we don't care about names or race. If they need discipline, they need it."

Brown said, however, the school does have a problem because the over-all curriculum isn't as interesting to the Mexican-American as to the anglo, "probably because of the two cultures." The disinterested student is generally the one in for discipline, he said.

The Cassia schools are beginning bicultural education, he said.

MALDE is a legal organization with offices in several major cities. According to one spokesman, most of its work is in practical and general civil rights work.

Writer dies

P.O. Wodehouse, 93, one of this century's most popular prolific writers of light fiction, died Friday evening in a Southampton, N.Y., hospital of a heart attack. Wodehouse was knighted by Queen Elizabeth II on Jan. 1 although he had been a U.S. citizen since 1956. (UPI)

Abu Dhabi cuts price

BEIRUT (UPI) — Abu Dhabi has decided to lower the price of its crude exports by between 10 and 40 cents a barrel because of a 40 per cent decline in its oil output, an authoritative oil journal said Saturday.

The Middle East Economic Survey said production in the Persian Gulf state has been cut because the low-sulphur premium incorporated into the posted prices has made Abu Dhabi crude overpriced in comparison with other Gulf producers.

The Abu Dhabi output declined to around 700,000 barrels per day last month, compared to 1.2 million barrels per day in 1974.

Gap broad

TEL AVIV (UPI) — Foreign Minister Yigal Allon said Saturday a deep gap persists between Israel and Egypt on terms of a second-stage Sinai peace agreement despite the latest Middle East mission by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

But he said the same impression prevailed before the successful conclusion of last year's military disengagement year's military disengagement records with Egypt and Syria.

Real estate opinions solicited

Times-News Capital Bureau

HOUSE—The chairman of the committee studying land use bills has taken steps to insure that real estate men will be well represented at hearings on the measures this week.

Sen. Lyle Cobbs, R-Boise, sent out about 100 letters to real estate men in Boise and surrounding towns.

The letters on state stationery and begin, "Dear fellow realtor." They ask participation at the public hearings or written comments to be sent into the committee. Copies of Gov. Cecil D. Andrus' seven land use bills were enclosed.

The letter was co-signed by Sen. David Little, R-Emmett.

The bills and the letter also were sent to county commissioners around the state, according to Cobbs's secretary, Harriet Walters.

Cobbs is chairman of the Senate Local Government and Taxation Committee. He is a real estate man and last year was a primary opponent of Andrus' land-use package. "Real estate men opposed land use legislation last year. The Idaho Association of County Commissioners took no official stand on land use then, but commissioners expressed several reservations about the four-bill package.

Copies of the letters requesting attendance at the land use hearings were sent out Thursday by mayors around Idaho following a request by the Association of Idaho Cities (AIC).

Cobbs told the Times-News Friday that he did not send out letters to mayors along with letters to realtors and county commissioners because the AIC "already had gone on record supporting the (land use) legislation."

Since the AIC had taken this position Cobbs said he assumed mayors would know about the land use hearings. County commissioners and real estate men have taken no official stand on the land use bills yet, he said.

Cobbs said he had the letters sent to real estate men because as an occupational group they would be affected most for better or worse by the legislation.

"They know I'm a realtor, I've been in the business 20 years," he said, explaining why he started the letter "Dear fellow realtor."

Cobbs said farmers also would be affected vitally by the land use legislation. But he added that he had not received one request for the land use bills. Because of the apparent lack of interest he said he did not send out letters requesting testimony to farm bureaus.

He said the Boise Board of Realtors requested the agents in town be invited to the hearings and receive copies of the land use bills. Realty boards in surrounding towns also made such requests, which were passed on to his office by Little, he said.

But Jack Oswood, executive secretary of the Boise Board of Realtors, said his organization made no such request.

Cobbs said he has been fair to the land use bills sent to his committee. Every bill was sent out for printing in the form the governor had proposed them.

Power strip sought

HOUSE—(UPI) — Republicans on the House State Affairs Committee used their majority today to introduce a resolution removing the lieutenant governor as chairman of the Land Grant Committee.

Rep. Melvin Hammond, D-Idaho, spoke out against the resolution saying, "I think the politics of the matter is very clear but I don't think it is a legitimate reason."

Previous land grant interim committees were chaired by then Lt. Gov. Jack Murphy, a Republican. The lieutenant governor now is John Evans, a Democrat.

Main event due for legislators

BOISE (UPI) — After five weeks of practice heats, the first regular session of the 43rd Idaho Legislature is about to start the main race for final adjournment—possibly by mid-March.

When the lawmakers return Monday from their two-day weekend they delve into tax relief bills on the floors of both houses.

House taxwriters consider in committee a measure to allow optional forms of city taxation. And the House Education Committee considers rescission of the Equal Rights Amendment ratification.

Republican majorities in both houses have agreed on a resolution to give state employees $4 million worth of general fund pay increases, the guideline that the Joint Finance-Appropriations Committee needs to begin setting the budget.

All that remains now is approval of the proposal on both floors, an action the leadership is convinced will occur—albeit by party-line vote. Democrats favor Gov. Cecil D. Andrus' proposal, which is about twice as high.

Twice Friday House Republicans had to use their majority—once in the Ways and Means Committee and once on the floor—to introduce the controversial resolution. But their superior numbers prevailed.

Senate Republicans, meantime, sent word they will buy the proposal as now written—thus assuring its passage in that body if everyone stands firm.

Up for final consideration on the House floor Monday is a bill to provide $10 million in permanent tax relief. It is aimed both at giving the taxpayers a break and at reducing the recurring general fund surpluses. This measure, sponsored by Rep. Maurice Clements, R-Nampa, would lower the state income tax rates about 7 to 8 per cent and provide a permanent $20-per-person grocery credit.

It becomes law, it would force a $10-million reduction in next year's spending plans or a revision of revenue estimates upward.

Senate alternatives to these proposals also are on the calendar for consideration on the floor.

There are many other substantive issues still pending in the legislature, among them land use planning, pollutant discharge permits, collective bargaining for public employees and power plant siting.

Pay increase OK'd

BOISE (UPI) — On a 4-3 party line vote, the House Ways and Means Committee has introduced a resolution directing $4 million in pay increases for state employees.

The resolution, a product of House and Senate Republican leadership meetings and caucuses, directs $4,000,000 in general fund money be spent for reallocations and $2,300,000 for cost of living hikes.

Reallocations are rearrangements of pay grades to bring employees up to the prevailing rates for comparable work in the private sector.

Minority Leader Patricia McDermott, D-Pocatello, and the rest of the House democratic leaders tried unsuccessfully to block the introduction of the resolution Friday by the committee.

Resolution withdrawn

BOISE (UPI) — Republican Senate leaders have withdrawn a resolution which would give standing committees an additional 15 days to introduce bills.

The bill, which had been up for final debate Friday, was returned to the Judiciary and Rules Committee, which had introduced it on a party-line vote.

Republican caucus chairman Walter Yarbrough, R-Grand View, said the GOP caucus had decided not to force the issue. Democrats also caucused at the same time and agreed that they would continue to fight the resolution.

State fund audit asked

BOISE (UPI) — The House Local Government Committee introduced Friday a resolution directing the Joint Finance-Appropriations Committee to audit local units of government that receive state funds.

To date no such audits have been conducted for other units of government including cities, counties, school districts and other special districts, although such units are recipients of extensive amounts of state funds, the resolution said.

Senate panel OK's tax credit measure

BOISE (UPI) — Although a constitutional cloud hung over it, the Senate Local Government and Taxation Committee sent to the floor with a "do-pass" recommendation a House-approved grocery tax credit bill.

Phil Peterson, who aided in drafting the measure, said there "isn't any question" there is considerable doubt to its constitutionality.

But, he added, there was an argument for its legality. He said the bill provided a credit on the sales tax paid on food and "essentially it is compensating a resident for the money he spent on food."

Sen. Edith Miller Klein, R-Boise, had raised the constitutional question before the committee Wednesday. She questioned whether it could be limited to residents.

Friday, Mrs. Klein also questioned the bill, which would boost the credit to $20, because it limited credit to only those who file tax returns. "I don't think we should pass bills if they are unconstitutional," Mrs. Klein said. She said, however, she felt "all the tax measures" should have a run on the floor.

Mrs. Klein voted with the committee to send it out with a "do-pass" recommendation. The vote was 6-3.

Asked about the possibility of court action on the bill, Peterson told the committee the "likelihood of litigation is not substantial."

BOISE (UPI) — A bill designed to put southern Idaho on daylight-saving time Feb. 23, along with the rest of the nation has been approved for introduction.

It repeals the present law authorizing Idaho to be on daylight saving time from the last Sunday of April until the last Sunday of October.

Earlier in the session, the Legislature passed a bill to bring Idaho with the daylight bill passed by Congress, but Gov. Cecil D. Andrus found the measure to be faulty. The governor, however, did allow it to become law.

Both the present law and the bill passed by the current Legislature would be repealed by the bill approved Friday by the State Affairs Committee.

IEA pay proposal studied

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Education Association proposed a legislative pay increase Friday, but the Senate State Affairs Committee decided to hold the proposal until Monday.

Wayne York, executive secretary of the association, said his organization had been having problems getting candidates to run for the Legislature—one reason being legislative pay.

The bill would give the legislators a $6,000 a year legislative expense pay. It would eliminate the present $4 a day for legislators while in session and the $3.50 a day for out-of-pocket legislative expense while not in session.

They would continue to receive the constitutional $10 a day for the first 60 days of the session.

If approved, the bill would nearly double what legislators now receive.

PUC aides' election bill stuck

BOISE (UPI) — Rep. Dan Emery, D-Boise, retained his leading average with the House State Affairs Committee today when it held for further study his bill to elect public utilities commissioners.

"If we're talking in baseball terms, my batting average with this committee hasn't been very good," Emery said, noting other legislation he has introduced is still in committee.

"I'd like to change it with this bill."

John Hayes, a lobbyist for the General Telephone Co. of the Northwest, urged the committee to help Emery retain his low average.

Rep. Peggy Bunting, R-Boise, who said she felt Emery's concept was good, said she could not support such a change at a time when executive reorganization of state government is so new. She moved to hold the bill for further study.

Exemption supported

BOISE (UPI) — Members of the Senate Local Government and Taxation Committee "backed" the request of the chairman today to return to the committee a bill to remove the sales tax on funerals.

Twice this week the bill has been debated on the floor of the Senate only to have it held up because of technical questions.

Chairman Lytle C. Coffas, R-Boise, sponsor of the bill, said he preferred to bring the measure back to committee after "discovering the loss of revenue to the state would be $85,000 and not $50,000 as he originally figured."

He said $85,000 "would go a long way toward salary increases for state employees."

The chairman said he wanted the bill held until next session for consideration at that time because "it's a good piece of legislation."

Sen. Lester Hartvigsen, D-Malad, cast the only dissenting vote, saying taxing funerals "is a hell of a way for the state to raise money."

Reversal asked

BOISE (UPI) — The House Resources and Conservation Committee asked Congress Friday to overturn a solicitor's opinion that a man and wife could have only 180 acres under the Carey Act.

In a memorial the committee introduced the ruling is described as totally obviating the personal civil rights of one spouse of the marriage contract.

There are applications for Carey Act reclamation projects currently pending in Idaho that total more than 300,000 acres, the memorial said.

Bax confirmation in Senate

BOISE (UPI) — The Senate State Affairs Committee look no more than a minute Friday to send to the floor the confirmation of Dr. James Bax as director of the Idaho Health and Welfare Department.

Committee Chairman, Dr. Dean Summers, R-Boise, told the committee that Chairman John Barker, R-Boise, had no objections to the confirmation being sent to the floor.

Without debate, the committee unanimously sent Bax's name to the floor for consideration by the entire senate.

State affairs members had delayed action Thursday until after Barker discussed Bax's confirmation with his committee. He did so Friday morning and the committee made no recommendation, feeling that the perspective was with the state affairs committee.

Bax's confirmation will be voted on in the Senate sometime early this week.

Appointed

CHICAGO — James A. Sinclair, First Federal Savings and Loan Association, Twin Falls, has been appointed to the 1975 legislative committee of the United States League of Savings Associations—League of Bowles of Dallas, Texas, president of the league, said Friday.

Bill scored

BOISE (UPI) — A spokesman for the Roman Catholic diocese of Idaho said Friday that a "death dignity" bill currently before the legislature is a dangerous piece of legislation.

Rev. John Donoghue, director of hospitals for the diocese, said the bill prepares the way for the state to legislate further as to who should live.

Wins, 34-0

BOISE (UPI) — Without debate, the Senate adopted and sent to the House Friday a new landlord-tenant bill. The vote was 34-0.

Floor sponsor, Sen. Edith Miller Klein, R-Boise, said the bill will replace the "present patch work" of laws on the Idaho statutes.

Pine beetle infestation kills South Hills trees

By BONNIE BAIRD-JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Lodgepole pine which provide much of the forest cover for recreational areas in the South Hills are dying in large numbers. Lewis Munson, district ranger, Sawtooth National Forest, says there is no hope for the trees except the probability they will eventually be replaced by new healthy growth.

The cause is an epidemic infestation of the mountain pine beetle which can kill full-sized trees in a matter of a season or two. The beetle, which attacks only the mature and overmature tree, burrows through the bark and into the cambium area of the tree, then tunnels upward along the inner bark where they form egg galleries.

Initial signs of the infestation are small pitch tubes on the tree trunk containing some resin and some boring dust. The tree then begins to turn from the deep green to a lighter shade, and then finally to a rust or brown color as all of the needles die.

In the vicinity of the Magic Mountain ski area, Balsam and Magic summer-home areas and around many of the church camps, large groves of lodgepole pine have turned brown over the past several seasons.

Munson said the only way to stop the infestation is to log out, and cut and burn the infested trees. This is a difficult and slow process, he said, because contracts have to be awarded and the logger must have time to go in and do the cutting.

Because the lodgepole pines, once they are dead, are not all that desirable, he said, it is sometimes hard to sell them.

Unless the tree has split or cracked, which they often do, the trees can be used for posts, coral poles or even for firewood. In this area, Munson said, trees can be sold and cut only about as fast as they can be handled by the two sawmills in the southeast end of the county, which is not fast enough to stamp out the infestation.

Munson said the U.S. Forest Service has been aware of the problem for 10 years or more which is about when the beetle first appeared in this area.

Spraying has proven too costly to be practical, the ranger said. It is necessary to saturate the entire tree in order to effectively control the beetle. The time involved in spraying each single tree as well as the cost is out of the question, he said.

Munson said commercial wood cutters will continue to be offered contracts to cut the dead trees, which are suitable for posts and poles if not split, and to take out mature and overmature trees which are potential hosts for the insect.

The deadly beetle leaves its initial sign of attack when pitch tubes appear on the tree trunk, marking the places where the beetle entered. Boring dust appears as he cuts his way through the bark into the cambium area, or the inner wood layer just below the bark.

The beetles then tunnel upward along the inner bark, forming the egg galleries. These galleries, 12 to 30 inches long, are filled with eggs. The insect remains there as the process changes to pupae and later into new adult beetles, feeding on the wood and eventually flying out to infect new trees.

Some of the insects may die during winter months if long periods of subzero temperatures occur, some die for woodpecker attacks, but not sufficient numbers to curb the infestations to any major extent.

Younger, more vigorous trees, Munson said, will generally expel the insects which means many of the younger trees will survive and continue to produce cover in the South Hills.

He said there will be a substantial loss of the pines, but there will not be a total denuding of the area because of the younger pines which can withstand the attack of the insect and the fact lodgepole pines are only one of several varieties.

In the fir, however, Munson said there is also a loss from brown root or yellow witch's broom as the parasitic disease is known. A growth of "broom" grows on the tree, eventually damaging and frequently killing it. This process takes much longer depending on the number of "brooms" on a single tree.

Agnet appointed

MOSCOW — Edward Gage, a native of Prosser, Wash., has been appointed University of Idaho extension agricultural agent in Minidoka County.

James L. Graves, director, Cooperative Extension Service in the U of Idaho College of Agriculture, said Gage's major responsibilities will be weed control and 4-H programs.

Graves said Gage's appointment fills a vacancy created by the December 1 transfer of Leon Church to Owyhee County.

Program no threat

SPOKANE (UPI) — Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, said Saturday most Arab oil producing nations do not view President Ford's program for energy self-sufficiency as a threat because they don't think it will succeed.

"Algeria views it (the program) as a hostile threat, but others don't feel their market is threatened because they don't think the U.S. can do it," said McClure, who returned earlier this week from a 15-day tour of the Middle East.

Payette boy held

PAYETTE (UPI) — Payette juvenile authorities had a 13-year-old Payette boy in custody Friday on a charge of arson as suspect in the fire Tuesday which damaged a private residence.

Police Chief Ron Goff said the youth was given a polygraph test and confessed to starting the fire at 142 south 20th St., the home of Mrs. June Wakeling.

The chief said the boy told him the only motive he had for starting the fire was he liked the excitement of the fire.

ISU men eye action

POCATELLO (UPI) — Two Idaho State University architecture students are considering bringing legal action against the State Board of Education for wanting to phase out the architecture department.

Phil Yankey, a junior from Weiser, and Tom Whitworth, a Pocatello junior, said the action results from the state board's decision to eliminate the architecture program at ISU.

Utah man dies

GRANGEVILLE (UPI) — Eldon Garner Brown, 56, Utah, died in a traffic accident in miles south of Grangeville on U.S. 95, state police reported Saturday.

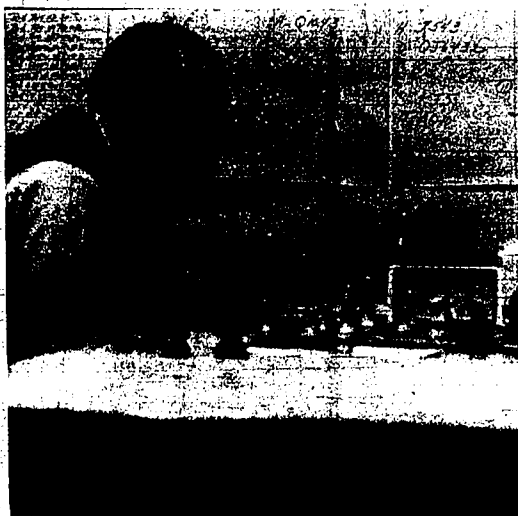

Officers said Brown apparently failed to negotiate a curve and overturned. The victim was thrown from the vehicle.

Bullets unmatched

GRANGEVILLE (UPI) — A state forensic chemist testified in Idaho district court Saturday that he was unable to match three spent bullets, including the one that killed Lloyd Dean Lytle, with a gun given him by authorities.

While the 28 revolver was not identified in court, it matched the description of the gun in the possession of Robert Gillespie the night Lytle was shot to death. Gillespie, 45, is on trial for first degree murder, accused of killing Lytle, 36, in the small community of Stites where Gillespie was chief of police.

THIS mature lodgepole pine near the Magic Mountain ski area is dead from mountain pine beetle attack. It is also split up the trunk as frequently occurs, making it unusable only for firewood.

Land bank conclave told farming future uncertain

By MARJORIE LIERMAN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — "Agriculture's future is more uncertain than at any time in its history," said Dave Burgess, regional Land Bank officer.

Burgess spoke to about 500 members and guests of the Federal Land Bank Association at its regular report banquet for members Thursday at the Holiday Inn.

Volume of loans closed in 1974 was $4,027,800, said Burgess, compared to $4,114,300 for 1973. Income for the year 1974 was $7,395,53 and total expenses came to $45,749.43, leaving a net earnings amount of $31,646.10.

Burgess said the association should have a good year in 1975 with ample funds as demands for loans continue to grow. He pointed to a large increase already in loans.

George Atkins, Buhl-Castelford, was re-elected a director during the business meeting and at the reorganization meeting following, was reelected association president.

Other directors include John Roze, Hazelton, vice president; Clarence Hoffeld, Hansen; Melvin Jagels-Buhl-Filer, and Leon J. Wright, Twin Falls.

Luncheon invocation was given by Rev. Gary Bendix, Eden. Musical entertainment during the program hour was by students of the College of Southern Idaho under the direction of Harold Smith.

Special guests introduced included Elmer Dosssett and Walter Reese, past directors. Dave McKinley, Twin Falls, gave the directors' report and Dave Burgess the report from the Spokane Federal Land Bank. Mark Moorman, Murtaugh, chairman of the district board, was introduced.

Gale Chambers, editor of the Idaho Farmers-Stockman, gave a humorous account of "The Enlightened Age of Agriculture." He is a former farm editor of the Times-News.

Boys charged rescue cost

SUN VALLEY — Three young skiers will be charged $600 for their rescue from a cliff outside of the Sun Valley ski area Thursday.

Kevin Corbin, 17, and John Corbin Jr., 18, brothers from Seattle, and Joe Mingo, 18, Twin Falls, were helped to safety by four members of the Sun Valley ski patrol after nearby residents heard their cries for help.

According to Sun Valley officials, the three had intentionally skied outside of the Baldy Mountain and US Forest Service designated ski boundaries.

A spokesman said the trio became trapped in an avalanche chute too steep to ski or climb. The rescuers, aided by the Ketchum Police Department, US Forest Service, Blaine County sheriff's officers and Sun Valley Security, helped the three sidestep up to a ridge with the aid of a rope.

From there they skied down the River Run side of Bald Mountain. The rescue was concluded at 7:30 p.m.

Sun Valley Co. officials said a minimum rescue charge of $500 for all ground rescues outside of the ski area boundaries will now be enforced. Any rescue involving the use of a helicopter will cost an additional $500.

US Forest Service officials have stated they are in agreement with the new policy, hoping to discourage skiing outside of designated areas.

Public offices closed Monday

TWIN FALLS — Federal, state, county and city offices in Twin Falls as well as banks will be closed Monday in observance of Washington's Birthday.

The closure, however, does not apply to schools and there will be classes as usual in the Twin Falls district. Camden Meyer, assistant superintendent, said the school is required to hold 180 days of class work and Monday is not one of the holidays approved.

College of Southern Idaho and some schools in surrounding areas will close for the holiday. Many business offices will close.

Stores will be open with some Washington Birthday special sales, but the post office personnel and other federal agencies will have a holiday.

Concentration byword at meet

TWIN FALLS — Although the chairs squeaked and Bobby Fischer wasn't there to complain, the 34 chess players at the Twin Falls YMCA Saturday didn't mind.

They were playing for a state championship and concentration was the byword as players stared with practiced patience at figures on the boards in front of them.

Some of the contestants — all men — wandered into the halls and some paced through the two playing rooms. Most sat in two at the long tables, chins cupped in hands.

One glanced nervously at the clock on the table next to him but the others seemed to find it easier to pretend the clocks weren't there.

The men traveled to Twin Falls from all over Idaho and their ages ranged from 14 to 71.

According to Kenny James of Twin Falls, all levels of skill except the highest — master — were represented. Glen Buckendorf of Buhl held the highest rating of the group.

"There are some awful strong unrated players at the tournament," he said. Ratings are made by the United States Chess Federation.

Whoever is named champion from the five games played will retain the state title for a year, James said. Last year's state champion, Ken Sanderson of Boise, moved to California, making the state clear this year.

The tournament director for the Saturday and Sunday games is Ted Hartwell of Twin Falls.

Huston man hurt

WILDER (UPI) — William Bain, 28, Huston, was critically wounded by a 16-gauge shotgun blast in downtown Wilder Friday afternoon and Michael Colyer, 26, of Ontario, Ore., was arrested.

Bain was taken to Caldwell Memorial Hospital for surgery. Prosecuting Attorney James C. Morfitt said a charge of attempted murder probably will be filed against Colyer today.

Oil revenue flow welcomed

New York Times Service
NEW YORK — The flow of surplus oil revenues out of the Middle East, viewed with alarm by some governments, is now being projected more benignly by government officials and private economists alike.

Although the oil exporting nations lost an estimated $30 billion last year from the sale of crude oil and used a small part for selective investment in blue-chip industrial names like Krupp and Daimler-Benz, they have not attempted to buy control of such corporate giants as General Motors or International Business Machines, nor have they taken possession of vast tracts of Manhattan real estate.

Instead, they have behaved much like conservative investors everywhere, pumping much of the $60 billion or so in surplus cash that they could not spend on imports into government securities and interest-paying bank accounts all over the world.

While some economists were saying six months ago that accumulated surplus cash from the oil-producing nations could exceed $1 trillion by 1985, today there is widespread belief that the surplus will probably be no more than $300 billion at its height.

Many economists assert that the worst of the problem may be over by the late 1970s or early 1980s, because by then, members of organization of petroleum exporting countries will be spending so much money at home that their capacity for investment abroad will be severely curtailed.

The question arises why the predictions have turned around so quickly. What has happened to transform a potentially cataclysmic situation into what now appears to be a more comfortable, easily manageable scenario?

The answer, although complex, appears to revolve around several facts. First, there is an important statistical difference in the way the oil-rich and the more recent predictions were formulated—when reconciled, it erases much of the discrepancy.

Second, the OPEC nations appear to have surprised almost everyone with the speed of their national development programs and the consequent sopping up of new oil money by accelerated domestic spending for imports.

Economists point out that some of the earlier predictions were made in "current" dollars, whereas the later predictions were made in "constant" dollars.

The distinction is important. The earlier projections took into account a rate of inflation that would substantially increase the dollar figures by 1980 or 1985. The later projections, on the other hand, simply projected the build-up in terms of 1974 dollars.

Analysis

This difference in statistical treatment accounted for much of the variation between the earlier and more recent predictions. While both types of treatment are routinely used by economists, comparing them is like equating apples and oranges.

Another major factor in the difference between the projections lies in the anticipated volume of imports by the oil producing states. The more they spend for domestic consumption, the less their surplus available to invest abroad.

An analysis by the Morgan Guaranty Trust Company estimated that imports by the oil producers last year totaled $50 billion and were likely to increase rapidly until they reached $227 billion by 1980. Morgan Guaranty also estimated that all revenues, the money available to pay for the imports, would not increase nearly as fast. Oil revenues would rise from an estimated $105 billion in 1974 to $143 billion in 1980.

The result, the bank said, was that OPEC surpluses would disappear (in aggregate) by 1979.

One problem, economists and analysts conjectural. Some, for example, have questioned how much of the Arab nations' recent imports consisted of armaments, and whether the middle east arms build-up would continue at the present rate for the rest of the decade.

If the arms build-up, said by some to account for about 1 percent of imports, declined, how much would some projections have to be altered?

Another problem lies in estimating OPEC oil revenues when the growth in oil consumption has slowed and the outlook for prices is uncertain. Perturbing the subject of OPEC surpluses has been a widespread uneasiness that estimates based on the flimsiest sort of source data, although subjected to searching analysis, have been frozen into projections which had an aura of certainty and were then used as the basis of government policy.

"One of the most uncertain parts of all these estimates is how much the OPEC countries are spending for goods and services," said F. Leslie Widman, director of the Office of International Monetary Affairs at the Treasury.

Their official statistics are a couple of years late.

Libya, for example, just published its January, 1974 import figures. And no one else has even done that.

As a result, he said, imports of OPEC countries were being estimated by using incomplete export statistics from countries like Japan and the United States.

A further problem, Widman pointed out, was caused by uncertainty about the "absorptive capacity" of oil exporting states, that is the rate at which they could spend their oil riches for their own development, as opposed to investing them elsewhere.

Also uncertain, he said, was the rate at which the rest of the world could develop alternate energy sources. Such a development could dramatically affect oil prices, and would reduce OPEC income if oil exports declined as a result of growing self-sufficiency by other nations.

Business

Investment totals told

BOSTON — Nearly $60.1 million has been invested in the Idaho economy, the John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Co. said in its year-end report.

Payments of benefits to Idaho policyholders and beneficiaries in 1974 totaled $16 million. During the same period, residents purchased $23.5 million of new life insurance, bringing to $217.1 million the total of John Hancock Insurance in force in the state.

The company reported mortgage and real estate loans and commitments of $29 million in Idaho as of Dec. 31.

It also listed stable investments in a number of companies with operations in Idaho, including $17.7 million in J.R. Simplot Co. and $1.9 million in Northrup King & Co.

The investment portfolio includes significant holdings in major utilities serving the residents of Idaho. Among these are $2 million in Boise Water Corp. and $300,000 in General Telephone Co. of the Northwest.

Soviets purchase US textile units

MOSCOW (UPI) — An American firm announced today it has signed a $21 million cash deal with the Soviet Union, the largest bilateral contract since last month's collapse of the Soviet-American trade agreement.

Intertext International Inc. of New York will provide textile machinery and equipment for an unspecified number of synthetic fiber factories, according to the company's president, Saul Rosenbaum.

He said Thursday night's signing culminated 18 months of negotiations. The fur fiber will be used to produce coats, hats, and wool linings needed in the cold climates of the country, Rosenbaum said.

News of the signing came as U.S. Assistant Treasury Secretary Gerald Parsky told American newsmen that despite collapse of the trade agreement he is encouraged by talks with Soviet officials on prospects for expanding trade and economic ties.

Parsky headed a 13-man U.S. delegation which held two days of discussions with the Soviets on ways of improving exchange of economic information.

The Soviet Union announced last month it would not implement the 1972 agreement because of conditions imposed by Congress. The newly passed Trade Reform Act, with the so-called Jackson Amendment linked lower tariffs and credits to eased emigration restrictions.

Idaho firm lists gains

BOISE — Pacific Empire Life of Boise has completed the most successful year in its 37 year history, Ray Bolland, president, said.

Income for the year totaled $1.7 million, an increase of 30 percent of which $1.1 million was premium income. New premiums written for the year were $177,207, which was substantially in excess of any previous year.

Both assets and investment income increased sharply. Bolland reported, assets by more than 12 percent to a level of $6.02 million and interest income by 17 percent to $350,666.

Operations for the year produced an underwriting gain of $76,844. Capital and Surplus funds now total $1 million.

Futures mart eases off

Courtesy Sinclair & Co. CHICAGO — Only pork belly futures showed any marked advance Friday.

Most commodities finished on the downside or about unchanged.

Idaho russet potato futures lost another 5 cents, the May delivery closing at 5.35 per hundredweight.

Commodity News Service said Maine potatoes reversed Thursday's performance, closing on the day's weakest level, down 2 to 7 cents.

May saw the heaviest loss in trading placed at 2.182 cents.

Depressing fundamental conditions continued their effect on the market. Maine cash prices were weak, 1.90 to 2.00 per cwt., with demand low.

The world sugar market was quiet, contracts closing down 2 to 25 points on 515 trades with sugar 12 futures down 5 to 10 points.

World spot price was cut 25 cents, to 36.25 cents a cwt, FOB Caribbean, closing down 15 points.

Corn futures received early speculative support on reports of a Mexican purchase of corn and milo but the market drifted lower during the day, following other grains and metals.

At the close, prices were fractionally lower.

Soybean futures were easier with products little changed. Beans closed 2 1/2 to 6 cents lower through November, and deferred months were off 1 to 2 cents.

Oil fluctuated 20 to 30 points either side of Thursday's close before ending 15 points higher in March and 5 to 20 points easier in deferred contracts.

Meat was mixed with slight price changes in both directions.

Live cattle futures finished the week on a nervous note after a firm early session, low, with final quotes mostly lower.

Tightly traded February edged up 5 cents. Back months ranged from unchanged in June to 22 cents lower in October.

Unstable cash markets were an adverse factor. Less than 6,000 contracts traded.

Feeder cattle futures were unchanged to 56 cents lower in light trading.

Hog futures opened higher, then drifted lower and closed with February off 2 points, April and July unchanged, and October and December up 15 points.

Volume was light at 3,756 contracts. Cash markets were unsettled in some areas.

"Pork bellies rallied" nearly 200 points in late trading, closing limit up in all but the front two months. February closed 125 points higher and March advanced 142. Volume was placed at 4,122 contracts. Short covering and stop loss buying fueled the rally.

New York gold futures traded actively but closed with little change. At the close, 1,521 lots were traded and prices were unchanged from 10 cents down to 20 cents higher.

At the close, 58 lots were traded losing 2.00-2.40.

Chicago Board of Trade silver futures closed about 10 cents lower after recovering from near limit down. Gold futures on the CBT closed with losses of 1.120 in nearby and 1.50 in February but steady to 1.50 higher in distant November and January.

March advanced 142. Volume was placed at 4,122 contracts. Short covering and stop loss buying fueled the rally.

Hawaii prisoner 'comforts' spark cleanup procedures

HONOLULU (UPI) — Convicts at the Hawaii State Prison could get all the criminal comforts of home — gallons of moonshine fruit liquor, pistols, daggers and drugs.

State legislators call the place a "spooky, medieval dungeon." Prisoners call it home. Some were murdered or mauled and others escaped. Guards mingled with convicts and some said the connection was too close.

"Certain prisoners, who have the right connections and want to escape, can escape," Lt. Gov. Nelson Doi said. "The right connections can also get inmates guns, drugs, alcohol and other contraband."

Doi said some of the ousted guards had been "hopelessly involved" in illegal activities with inmates.

Now the keepers outnumber the convicts and Gov. George Ariyoshi is trying to clean up the corruption. National Guardsmen in full battle gear took control of the prison Monday. The state corrections chief was forced to resign and 36 prison guards and 10 other penitentiary workers were ousted.

A union representing the guards charged the state with "gestapo-like" tactics.

Taking over the troubled prison for the third time in 18 months, Guardsmen searched the cellblocks and within three days came out with 15 gallons of home-brewed liquor, 60 knives, two handfuls of marijuana, pills, a loaded .25-caliber pistol and a foot-long piece of sharpened steel.

Paul Hong, Honolulu director of the United Public Workers Union complained that the transferred guards "were corralled in one room, and frisked."

Gary Rodriguez, another official, said the guards were transferred apparently because they had become "too involved" with inmates. He said the state's corrections division had ordered guards to "come down out of their towers and become personally involved with inmates" in a rehabilitation effort.

"Now they are being transferred for doing precisely what they were asked to do," Rodriguez said.

Within the last year inmates have been stabbed, guards attacked, escapes frequent and for weeks conditions in the maximum security unit were so chaotic that many guards refused to enter, allowing the convicts to rule that section of the prison.

After the takeover, the 322 keepers—72 prison guards who were retained, 190 National Guardsmen and 60 policemen—far outnumbered the 214 prisoners.

Asked why none of the 46 transferred prison employees were fired or subjected to criminal charges, officials said "a lot of testimony was given to the task force in secret."

"But it was not the kind of thing we could expect people to give in court," Doi said. "They are too afraid of reprisals."

Hawaii's House Judiciary Committee investigated the penitentiary recently and after a tour of the prison Rep. Steve Cobb called one cellblock a "spooky, medieval dungeon."

Rep. John Medeiros said living conditions there were "not even human."

Ray Benap, forced to resign after 14 years as Hawaii's top correction officer, called the charges "pure baloney." He named conditions at the prison as inadequate state funding.

In addition to the administrative shakeup, a series of new programs will be instituted. The state plans to spend at least $130,000 on the cleanup, including more recreational and athletic equipment, new bedding, clothing and television sets. Counseling and vocational education programs will be expanded; and living areas will be revamped to improve privacy among the inmates.

Neighbors unite for dying girl

PEMBERTON, N.J. (UPI) — Blue-eyed Debbie Bogardus, 9, has a lot on her mind these days. She's going to Disney World. She doesn't know she's dying of leukemia.

Debbie, a third-grader whose short brown hair just touches her ears, goes to a Philadelphia hospital every day for treatment. Doctors offer little hope. They say she will probably die within a year.

But three neighbors say they're determined to give Debbie anything she wants in these last months. They've planned a fund-raising benefit Sunday, completed with cake sales, auctions and 12 bands.

One of Debbie's favorite characters — Ronald McDonald, a character from a hamburger firm advertisement — will be there.

The New York Jets and Philadelphia Eagles professional football teams gave two autographed footballs to auction.

"The committee will pay for anything Debbie wants to do in whatever time she has left," says one of the neighbors, Betty Nixon.

Most of all, that means a trip from snow-covered New Jersey to Florida, to fantasy-filled Disney World.

"My mom's friends told me I'm going to go on a trip to Disney World," Debbie said in a telephone interview. "I like it there."

Debbie's story first appeared in a local newspaper. Since then neighbors and local merchants have offered their help.

A car dealer provided a 1968 Chevrolet to drive to the hospital and an insurance salesman gave her a free one-year policy.

When her mother, Gail, fell behind on her rent, local police took up a collection.

Mrs. Bogardus, divorced in December, receives $150 a month in child support and another $213 in welfare payments. She has three sons, ages 3 to 16.

Experts continue to caution smokers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Ten years ago, the surgeon general of the United States said people can die from smoking cigarettes.

Surgeon General Luther L. Terry said: "Cigarette smoking is a health hazard of sufficient importance in the United States to warrant appropriate remedial action."

It was the first of a series of government warnings that smoking cigarettes is not only a major cause of lung cancer and chronic bronchitis but also is associated with sickness and death from chronic bronchopulmonary disease, heart and lung diseases, and other illnesses.

The latest report was issued in mid-1974, and it said the government had new evidence that cigarette smoking is the major cause of lung cancer, chronic bronchitis, and emphysema, and a major contributing factor in coronary heart disease. It said 72,000 people died of lung cancer in 1973.

That report, the eighth sent to Congress by the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare on the health consequences of smoking, also contained new warnings "to pipe and cigar smokers."

"Data from prospective and retrospective studies reveal an increased risk of development of lung cancer in pipe and cigar smokers compared to non-smokers," the report said.

The reports no longer are issued in the name of the U.S. surgeon general, because the post is virtually abolished.

The industry's Tobacco Institute contends "the (original) surgeon general's report was much more a beginning than an end in the smoking-health controversy."

Still, the influence of that and the subsequent HEW smoking reports have led to such important changes as a warning on cigarette packages and in advertising that says: "Warnings: The surgeon general has determined that cigarette smoking is dangerous to your health."

Cigarette advertising is banned from radio and television. Some newspapers refuse to accept tobacco ads. Many public and private offices, especially doctor's offices, have signs asking their clientele not to smoke.

Lawmakers mull state 'insects'

By United Press International

State pride is a wondrous thing. And when legislators get together to pick a state insect or a rock, a mammal or what have you, it's politics in action.

All states in the union have an official motto, a flower, a song and a bird.

But state insects are another matter. Bugs are in with ecology-minded schoolkids, and they have been lobbying some state legislatures for their choice.

Currently the ladybug and the honeybee are favorite candidates as state insects, but neither has been doing too well.

North Carolina has chosen the honey bee as its official insect. The Tar Heel State even has an official shell, the scotch bonnet.

Nebraska and West Virginia

are considering the honeybee.

Texas is considering the ladybug.

Kansas legislators have proposed the honey bee as top insect in a ringing measure which states:

"The honeybee is like all Kansans in that it is proud; only fights in defense of something it cherishes; is a friendly, bundle of energy; is always helping others throughout its lifetime; is a strong, hard worker with limitless abilities; and is a mirror of virtue, triumph and glory."

Idaho, on the other hand, spurns such buggy choices.

"We don't have any weird birds or flowers or trees for Idaho," said a state historical official. "We're just simple people out here who choose common ordinary plant, tree and bird."

The Florida legislature battled long and hard last year before rejecting a bill to make the preying mantis the state bug.

Michigan spurned the honey bee.

This week, the Indiana Senate squashed a bill that would have made the ladybug the state insect. It also killed off an official worm bill giving the nod to the earthworm.

In the midst of the Indiana fight for the ladybug, Senate Republican floor leader James Gardner mused that if that Equal Rights Amendment is ratified, "We probably will have to call it the 'personbug' instead of the ladybug."

Sen. Eldon Lundquist noted dryly: "People watching should know we are getting paid for being here."

In the current Missouri legislative session, Rep. Wayne Goode has introduced a bill to make the Indiana bat (myotis sodalis) the state mammal.

"Of course, we'll have to call him the Missouri bat if the bill passes," Goode said.

In 1970, Goode also participated in a debate on a bill proposing "mozzarella" as the state rock. The bill was written by former Rep. Charles Sheehan, well known for his reluctance to compromise on issues.

When it appeared that Sheehan was against amendments to his bill, Goode offered an amendment that would have made Sheehan's head the state rock.

Goode withdrew it before a vote could be taken.

FEIA CHIEF FRANK ZARB
...hints at compromise

Volunteer military force costs more

WASHINGTON — The all-volunteer military force is costing the United States $1.5 billion to $1 billion more annually than it would cost to return to the draft, according to the Pentagon's manpower chief.

But those estimates are on the high side, said William K. Brehm, assistant secretary of defense for manpower.

Thursday, depending on congressional action, a return to the draft could mean a budget reduction as small as $25 million a year.

Brehm produced the figures in an effort to counter what he said was the impression that manpower costs are running away with the defense budget.

He said that the number of would-be enlistees has been increased in recent months by high unemployment in the civilian work force. He declined to estimate how many new recruits had come directly from the economic cold.

But he did say the influx has allowed the services to be more selective in the recruits they accept. He produced a chart showing that 8 per cent of the recruits during the July-December, 1974, period fell in a below average mental category, the lowest proportion since the defense department began keeping comparable records in 1951.

Brehm added, however, the services would have made their enlistment goals for the last six months of 1974 without the help of rising civilian unemployment.

The share of the defense department budget that goes to manpower has risen from 43 per cent in 1964 to an estimated 53 per cent next fiscal year.

Brehm maintained that pay increases unrelated to the volunteer force accounted for three-quarters of that increase in the manpower share of the budget.

Administration may compromise on energy plan

WASHINGTON — Federal energy administrator Frank Zarb indicated Friday the Ford administration might be willing to compromise somewhat on its energy program if it can determine who in Congress it should work with.

...don't know who in Congress it should work with.

He said he disagreed with this contention and claimed that in the last few weeks, economists outside the government had supported that stand.

He said President Ford's council of economic advisers was backing the president's program. "No one has yet demonstrated it (the program) will put people out of work," Zarb said.

The new energy administrator also indicated he believed Congress would have the last say on what program is ultimately adopted to move the country toward greater energy independence.

"Congress will ratchet you down to its position anyway," he told newsmen.

Zarb said Ford's energy proposal had already accomplished a great deal.

He said that for the first time there was a comprehensive energy package to work with and that despite all the criticism, there was general agreement on about 75 per cent of the program.

He said there was agreement on the need to conserve more energy and increase U.S. domestic supplies.

Unfortunately, he said, attention has focused on the short-term program which calls for the one million barrels a day decrease in imports.

Critics, he said, will have to decide how much they want the United States to be vulnerable to oil producing countries, especially if another Arab oil embargo is imposed.

Zarb also reported:

— He intends to talk to Canadian government officials "to work out a better new long-term arrangement" for getting oil from Canada.

Canada has begun cutting exports to the U.S. and plans to stop them altogether in five years.

— He intends to sit down with all interested parties and develop a special energy plan for the Northeast, which is heavily dependent on imported oil.

— He plans to work out still another special program for independent oil companies who might be hurt by the administration's energy program.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — James N. McConnell enjoyed golf so much he was buried with this golf gear.

McConnell died Dec. 3 at the age of 92. His will was admitted this week in probate court.

"It is my desire and request that my golf equipment, including golf bags, golf clubs and golf balls, be buried with me," his will read.

His son, Fred, confirmed the request was known and was followed.

When McConnell was buried in Upper Sandusky his golf glove was on his hand and he was wearing his favorite golf jacket.

Zoo hopes for happy end

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI) — Officials of the Milwaukee County Zoo are hopeful the romance of Terra and the bachelor will have a happy ending.

"At least the long-time bachelor hasn't taken to bating Terra around. That's a good sign."

George Spidel, head of the zoo, was elated Wednesday when Samson, the lowland gorilla who is the zoo's superstar, proved gentlemanly on his first date with young Terra.

"He really likes her. He hasn't made one hostile move toward her," Spidel said.

Samson is 26 years old — late middle age by gorilla standards — and a lifelong bachelor.

The zoo has taken young Terra, and is trying to play matchmaker. The prospective bride was moved to Samson's quarters Oct. 30.

Auto smashed into cube

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI) — As his contribution to saving gasoline, John Smiley had a demolition crew smash his 1960 Lincoln Continental into a small steel cube.

About 1,000 spectators assembled in a vacant lot across from the county courthouse watched as the demolition crew smashed Smiley's 1975 limousine.

Smiley told the assembled crowd that oil-producing Arab states should keep their oil. "I don't blame them for taking our money, we are the big-time suckers," he said. "We live off their oil for our own comfort and pleasure."

"I am doing this only because I love my country and my fellow man and I am very much interested in their future."

TE mail order offer runs into trouble

Conf. from p.)
 Officials in Oregon and Washington became suspicious of the literature and after investigating issued "cease and desist" orders requesting that the American Trustee and Loan Association stop its operations in the two states.
 Despite the advertisements in Idaho and the company's track record in other states, Idaho officials at the securities division of the Department of Finance had not heard of the company or its local Twin Falls operations.

track record in other states, Idaho officials at the securities division of the Department of Finance had not heard of the company or its local Twin Falls operations.

When a man in Portland received literature similar to the circulars in Twin Falls, he handed it over to his attorney, who gave it to investigators at the Oregon Corporation Commission. Attorneys at the Oregon Corporation Commission decided that the American Trustee and Loan Association was apparently offering to sell unregistered securities when it wrote in a pamphlet that it was paying interest to "borrow" money. The association would then invest the money in "insured savings" and in "associate corporations" and other projects, according to Andrew Ostis.

A security is defined in Oregon, Washington and Idaho law as "evidence of indebtedness." A corporation's stocks and bonds, for instance are securities.

It had not registered, so Oregon issued a "cease and desist" order to American Trustees and Loan Association on Jan. 23. The order instructed the association to stop activities in connection with any programs that may constitute violations of the state security laws.

On the same day in Washington state investigators finished their work and the state securities division of the division of professional licensing also issued a cease and desist order to American Trustee and Loan Association and several groups evidently connected with their operations, including the "Society of the Holy Crossbearers of Jesus Christ," "Americans for Christianity," and Daniel H. Brown II, who is listed in the association's literature as the founder and head of the organization.

Ralph Smith, coordinator of a federal securities fraud task force in Washington state, said his office acted on a complaint from a private citizen, who sent literature he received to a state investigator.

Smith said the literature "looked suspicious." "Anytime you have exorbitant interest rates, experience indicates a potential for trouble," he said. Religious overtones are sometimes cause for suspicion, too, he

Although he didn't know if anything had been sold, Smith said that his office issued the cease and desist order because the organization was apparently offering securities fraudulently.

If sales didn't indeed take place, he said, "We're going to be more than hard to deal with." He said willfully selling certain unregistered securities is a felony. Offering the sale of those securities is also a felony, he said.

"They're not saying it's a security," Jerry King, an attorney for the federal securities and exchange commission's (SEC) branch office in Seattle said.

The people and companies which received the cease and desist orders are entitled to a hearing. If they request a hearing, it will be held before the respective securities agencies in the two states.

Cases could go through the courts and as far as the U. S. Supreme Court to determine if the American Trustees and Loan Association is indeed offering a security, according to King.

The Bolse Better Business Bureau has no position on the company. A statement on file at the office in Bolse advises an interested individual to read the firm's literature, check with a business adviser of authority and "make his own decision on the matter."

Walker, the Twin Falls contact for the firm, said he had joined the American Trustee and Loan Association a year and a half ago after someone sent him a circular describing the organization. He speaks highly of the

The 24-year-old Arco native said he was a student at Idaho State University in Pocatello, but dropped out when he decided that "they weren't teaching me anything I couldn't learn better on my own."

Although he likes to place advertisements, he said, he was "surprised the results were so low" in Twin Falls. Two Twin Falls readers responded and another "three or four" answered his ads in the Pocatello newspaper.

When he gets a response, he uses the $1 from the reader to mail out literature. If someone joins the association through him, he gets $2.50 of the $6 fee, he said. He's recruited "five or six" members.

—No one, he knows, has ever made an "investment." The association requires a minimum of $100; Walker said he just didn't have the money to invest right now.

Self employment hasn't lined his pockets, although he hopes to do better after he trains in Pocatello as a "deputy" for the Independent Order of Foresters, which offers "fraternal benefits" similar to insurance.

The young man describes himself as "self employed"; he says he does "finance counseling and tax work," although he is not a certified public accountant. He's "somewhat interested" in setting up Trustee and Loan Association although he couldn't think of anyone who had invested. "I don't know anybody who made money," he said.

Fishing time for Yaeger

NORTON AFB, Calif. (UPI) — Air Force ace Charles E. Yeager, the first man to fly faster than the speed of sound, is retiring "to fish and enjoy life."

Yaegeer, one of the nation's most honored combat and test pilots, announced retirement plans Thursday, his 52nd birthday. The one-star general will formally leave the Air Force Feb. 28. Yaegeer shot down 13 enemy planes as a fighter pilot in World War II. He was shot down himself over occupied France, but managed to escape to Spain.

Lodgepole pines dying

Sitka spruce in the Sawtooth National Forest are infected in some areas as old as 30 years. This disease affects trees of all ages. Trees infected with these growths showed impaired growth and when infected by many broods, sometimes had died.

MOUNTAIN PINE BEETLE

(Dendroctonus monticolae Hope)

Elimination of the disease is best handled by clear cutting, forest brochures indicate.

Chemical spraying for the pine beetle can be effective by the use of two insecticides, ethylene dibromide and lindane. Forest experiments indicate these are effective if used after the tree is cut and limited and rotated so as to cover the effort all sides of the tree.

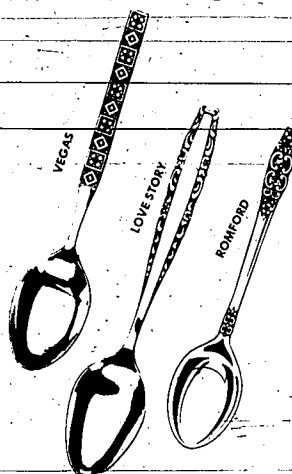

This process, Munson says, is too expensive in both time and money to make the effort worthwhile.

Summer home owners in the two areas of the South Hills are concerned over the increasing number of trees being lost to the beetle infestation. They say it appears forest areas around the homes will become more sparse and their homes less secluded.

Ski resort officials say loss of large number of trees from ski slopes could change ski conditions by eliminating protection from winds. On the other hand, they say they may have more open slopes and wider areas of ski terrain.

Speaker raps government

TWIN FALLS — Inflation is basically a tool to increase the size of an expansion of the supply of money.

"Inflation is a very useful tool to create demand for total government. We are persuaded that Nelson (Rockefeller) and his brother David fully expect the kings.

"This is no leftist theoretician speaking. It's a member of the 'ultraconservative' John Birch Society and his district of government is as strong as any more vocal left group.

Robert Adelman, a life insurance salesman for Colorado Springs, Colo., spoke Thursday night at Robert Stuart Junior High School. His speech was sponsored by Magic Valley chapters of the John Birch Society.

Adelman's message is that the supply of money is expanding because government's increasing deficits are financed through the Federal Reserve system, which "creates money out of nothing."

"It's not raising prices that cause inflation, it's an increase in the supply of money," he said Thursday. "The government says it is rising prices, and their answer is wage and price controls."

The John Birch Society's answer is to stop the increase in the supply of money. "The only way to do that is to reduce the size of government," Adelman said.

Adelman announced the formation of a new committee, Tax Reform Immediately. "It is to create sufficient understanding of the monetary problem that pressure will result on legislators to reduce the size of government," he said.

To assume a defeatist attitude is an insane approach," Adelman said. The committees will probably adopt the tactics of other society committees: petition drives, letter writing to congressmen and editors, and we use of film strips, he said.

Idaho provides a receptive audience for his economic message, according to Adelman. "The percentage of people who are Birchers is higher here than in any state in the union," he said. "This is reflected in the kind of people you have in Washington, like Steve Symms and George Hansen (both Republican congressmen from Idaho). He had no membership figures.

Retail food price rise may not meet forecasts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The first half of this year may be nearly a third smaller than previously predicted, and prices could even decline later this year if harvests are good, the government said Friday.

Agriculture Department economists issued a new Food Situation Summary predicting that average prices may rise 13 percent during the January-March quarter and about a per cent more in the second quarter.

Experts said this equals an annual increase rate of about 11 per cent compared with the 15 per cent annual rate forecast earlier for the first half of 1975.

The new prediction represents the slowest rate of gain for food prices since mid-1972, experts said.

The report said average prices for all major food groups are expected to rise during the first half of 1975 with crop foods up most in the first quarter and red meats and poultry rising most in the second quarter.

Food economist Harry V. Summers said predicted price increases for the first half of this year were pared down primarily because of recent declines in some raw farm products, including grains, and because sugar prices turned down sooner than was expected when initial food forecasts were prepared late last fall.

For the second half of the year, agriculture officials said the food price outlook depends heavily on how weather affects crop production here and abroad. If good weather promises big crops, food price gains could slow substantially by midyear and there could "possibly be some decline late in the year," experts said.

If this happens, Summers speculated, food prices for 1975 as a whole could average 10 per cent above 1974 compared with last year's 15 per cent gain.

The report warned, however, that if crops are poor for the second straight year, the result could be further food price increases.

Sorority holds meet

TWIN FALLS — The Omicron chapter of Beta Sigma Phi held its regular meeting Wednesday at the home of Mrs. John Pippinger.

Mrs. Joe Jakubowski was co-host. The discussion included holding a spring garage sale for a money-raising service project. Cookies will also be donated to the Child Development Center.

Mrs. Ike Heidemann gave the lesson on hobbies. Mrs. Gloria Lee, guest, demonstrated the art of quilting.

The next meeting will be held Feb. 26 at the home of Mrs. Jakubowski.

Pair share talk honors

TWIN FALLS — Paula Holtfield and Jeri Miller tied for the blue pencil for the best speech at a meeting of Magie Toastmasters Club Thursday.

Miller received the red pencil for best performance and Holtfield received the traveling trophy for best table topics.

Edith Martin gave the inspiration and pledge. Nettie Magie led table topics. Wanda Larson gave the lexicology. The lesson was given by Dot Miller.

Aida Strong served as toastmistress. Eileen Cappel was general evaluator. Greeta Smith was timer and Vera Young served as hostess and prepared the programs.

CSI nabs trophies

TWIN FALLS — CSI speech students brought home two trophies from the Idaho Speech and Forensics Conference which was hosted by the Northwest Nazarene College in Nampa.

Fran Tanner, coach of the CSI Speech Department, said today that there were five finalists from Twin Falls, with two first-place winners.

Luan Clawson took first place in expository speaking with a speech on cartooning. Molly Curtis took first place in oral interpretation with a humorous reading on frustrations.

Charlotte Presnell took 3rd place in oral interpretation with a reading on terror. Other finalists were Joe Schultz and Luan Clawson in the oral interpretation event.

Burley edges Bees in final 4 seconds

BURLEY — Brent Boddy hit a jump shot with four seconds left to hand the Burley Bobcats a 65-61 victory over Bonneville Friday night.

The Bobcats trailed throughout the game until they got hot for 24 points in the final quarter.

Behind 36-29 at the intermission, Burley came out with a press in the second half.

Chad Jones poured in 10 points in the second half effort, and Draper scored seven in the last quarter.

The Bobcats held Bonneville's stride to two points in the last half in a key defensive effort.

Vaughn was top scorer for Burley with 16.

Bonneville won the preliminary 65-64.

Oakley hits early, drops Castleford

OAKLEY — The Oakley Hornets jumped into a 20-point lead in the first half and rolled past the Castleford Wolves 32-24 Friday night.

Oakley burst ahead 20-0 in the first period and pulled away as the Wolves could manage only six more in the second quarter.

The Wolves climbed back some in the third period when Oakley managed just five points but that was as close as they could come.

Mtn. Home breaks Glenss Ferry skein

GLENN'S FERRY — Mountain Home tripped the Little Five Conference champion Glenss Ferry Pilots 62-51 Friday night.

The Pilots had four players in double figures, but couldn't make up their feeble first and third quarters, scoring only eight points in each. The defeat by the Mt. Tigers ended a nine game winning streak.

Steve Shrum, who collected

10 points, picked up three leads in the first five minutes of the first half and warmed the bench until the second half.

Mountain Home jumped to a 16-0 lead in the first quarter and led 20-21 at the half. The stretch led the margin to 44-29

going into the final period.

Glenn's Ferry won the

If there's one thing we've learned growing up here in the Magic Valley, it's that agriculture is a unique business, and we know it from planting to marketing. Probably more important, however, we know enough about your business to keep our noses out of it.

That's one of the advantages of doing business with a hometown friend. We have a staff of agricultural experts who know your financial needs. We can loan you money when you need it, help you save it when you've earned it, and help protect you from undue tax losses in the good years. We're here to advise and help you. But we're also here to listen. To pay attention to your needs. And to stay in our place so you can run your place more efficiently.

That's what hometown friends are for.

POYATELLO, Idaho (UPI)—Ken McKenzie, a 2-foot 10-inch, 200-pound center, was the key Big Sky buzzer to lift Idaho State to a 49-47 win over Montana Saturday night in the victory keeping the defending champion Bengals in contention for the Big Sky conference title.

Seven-foot center Steve Hawkins scored all centers with 22 points and a game-high 14 rebounds as Idaho State moved to within a game and a half of Montana in the conference race. The Grizzlies are now 9-1 and ISU 7-2 in league play.

Montana held the Bengals to a single basket for more than nine minutes in the first half as they came back from 16-12 down to grab the lead. The Grizzlies were ahead 21-18 at the half.

But Hayes scored 15 of his 23 points in the second half to lead the Bengals back to a 43-37 lead with five minutes left.

Idaho State's lead guard, head center Ken McKenzie's inside play, rallied to tie the game at 47-47 in the final minute on Mike Richardson's 4-foot shot.

Idaho State tried to get the ball inside to Hayes, but McKenzie cut off most of the play. He then tried to take the jump shot at the buzzer.

Hayt finished with 10 points for the Bengals. McKenzie was the only Grizzly in double figures with 15 points and 13 rebounds. The Montana center made his last six shots from the field to keep the Grizzlies close. Montana is now 16-6 and ISU 14-7.

BOISE (UPI) — Boise State led by the 29-point effort of freshman guard Steve Conner, 11-18, to beat the Broncos to a 25-point lead in the final minutes remaining.

Conner, 11-18 from the field and 7-7 at the line, helped the Broncos to a 25-point lead in the final minutes remaining.

The game was tied four times in the first half, with the Broncos holding a narrow 45-44 halftime lead.

Montana State's Rusty Smith sparked a three-point lead early in the second half, 52-49, but the shooting guard and Mark Christensen put the Broncos back in the game.

James Smith joined Connor in double figures for the winners with 18 points and Kerry Miller added 15.

Smith scored 20 points for MSU followed by Randy Rucker with 16.

Boise State is now 12-8 in the season and 6-3 in the Big Sky. Montana State drops to 9-12 on the year and 3-7 in the conference.

SAN DIEGO (UPI) —
Francie Larrieu set her second

Saturday night when she freed herself from a 1:29.20 mile.
Diego Indoor Games, the fastest mile—indoor or outdoor—ever run by a woman.
Miss Larrieu, a student at Julia Roberts College, set the mark of 4:34.65 at this meet last week.

Miss Larrieu established a 1,000-meter mark of 4:10.4 in the first round of the meet.
Timed in 4:09.9, she 1,500 meters during the mile run Saturday.

Miss Larrieu ran the first quarter in 61.1, the half mile in 2:11.5, a mile in 3:19.8.
Julia Roberts College was second at a distance of 4:34.1. Kate Keyes of UCLA was third at 4:47.9.

Steve Prefontaine of the Oregon Track Club broke in the mile run with a 2:24.11.

John Ngueno of Kenya was second in 2:27.4 and Mujaya
Nyambuli of Tanzania third in 2:31.6.

Quarrie, a former University of Southern California student, won the 60-yard dash in 5.9, equalling the best indoor time this year.

At Featherbois of the Pacific Coast, a 66-year-old man put with a 66-4, heave, defeating Pete Shmuck of the Striders at 65.3.

At the Olympic hopefuls from New York, won Tim Baron of Eastern Michigan by two-tenths of a second in 4:03.3.

McTear upset Dr. Delano
Crowford and Dr. Delano Merriweather to win the 60 in six seconds flat.

The Villanova relay team covered two miles in 7:25.5 to set a new record for the relay team. The distance, open at 11:30 track.

In all, ten meet records were set but three were in events run for the first time:

—The 60-yard dash of Eastern Michigan ran the 60-yard dash in 1:09.6. World record holder
Mark Winzerwood won the 1,000-yard run in 2:08.8, snapping a string of four years of victories by James Byron Dwyer. New Zealand's
Dick Dixon lapped seven of ten runners to win the two-mile in 8:33.7.

—John White defended his high jump title successfully at 7 feet. Sports International set a meet record of 3:39.9 in the women's one-mile relay.
—Steve Madolevich of Jackson won the women's half-mile in 2:13.1.

Liquori said his concentration was broken when the high jumper was knocked out of the front of the crowd.

FLAGSTAFF, Ariz. (UPI) — Northern Arizona broke a 22-0 tie and never trailed thereafter en route to an 111-60 Big Sky Conference win over Idaho Saturday night.

It was the most points scored by a Lumberjack team in 130 games.

The closest the Vandals came was one point, 19-18 with 24:44 left in the first half. But the Lumberjacks outscored Idaho 35-10 in the next 10 minutes and led 54-34 at halftime. Idaho could get no closer than 18 points in the second half.

Take a closer look at your ignition system. It's your battery, points, plugs and condenser that provide the necessary "spark" which makes your engine run and if these components aren't functioning properly, you're bound to be experiencing poor gasoline mileage. If you're in doubt about the kind of performance you're getting from your ignition system, bring your car to Abbie's for a complete checkup.

Greenley not ready to abandon salmon runs

BY BOB JOHNSTON

Special to the Times-News
SALMON — Joseph C. Greenley, director of the Idaho Department of Fish and Game, says the Fish and Game Commission is not yet ready to abandon the anadromous fishery resource.

Greenley said that improvements are expected in Idaho's salmon and steelhead runs because of activities underway.

"Research has only recently found solutions to the problems and now we are doing all we can to implement the corrective actions," he said.

Jack Cook, Salmon city councilman and sporting goods store owner, said recently that the Salmon River should be written off as an anadromous fishery stream and some species of trout be planted instead.

He said it is time the Idaho Department of Fish and Game started making some use of the river.

Cook gained approval of a resolution asking the department to establish a winter ice fishery at Williams Lake south of Salmon.

Greenley said that the development of trout fishing in lieu of anadromous fish in the Salmon River drainage has some serious obstacles: natural adaptation and cost.

"First of all, the native stocks of fishes, chinook, steelhead, cutthroat and holly

Varden, through the process of evolution over thousands of years become adapted to the severe, low productive environment of most of the Salmon River streams.

"Typically the salmon and steelhead rear successfully to a juvenile migrant stage, leave the drainage to reach maturity in the ocean. Cutthroat and Holly Varden also exhibit migration out of headwater streams during the winter, spending this time in lower sections of the larger rivers and return in the spring.

"Juvenile cutthroat and steelhead which do not migrate, will actually burrow into the gravel to escape wintering. Hatchery trout do not have this adaptive behavior and would suffer severe overwinter mortality. Stocking of fry or fingerling trout in streams in generally unsuccessful except in very productive waters (which is not the case in most of the Salmon River drainage).

"Periodic release of catchable-size trout will maintain fishery but at extremely high cost and poor return on your investment in large streams. In short, massive stocking of hatchery trout are not going to replace the anadromous fishery in the Salmon River."

Greenley said that another option to development of trout fishing is enhancement of native stocks.

"In some areas, such as the Middle Park, this has required restrictive regulations. However, cutthroat will respond to this type of management as long as the wilderness character of their habitat has not been comprised by man.

"Some outfitters have reported considerable improvement in the Middle Park fishery and we hope to verify this with underwater trend counts in 1975. We recognize that native stocks will not come back in developed areas and this is where the economic crunch exists. Therefore, we must try to be selective in our approach to stocking catchable trout to assure an acceptable return of fish in the creek in line with stocking costs. Our new regional biologist (Kent Hall) has been directed to give this special attention."

Greenley said he appreciates and shares the concern of the people in the Salmon region over the present situation of the anadromous fishery.

Greenley said the Commission will examine closely the Chamber's proposal for limited winter fishing at Williams Lake.

"Land development, improved access, deterioration in water quality, and increase in fishing pressure have all contributed to the decline of former excellence of the Williams Lake fishery."

"A review of creel counts data since 1952 reveals a pattern of increased pressure and a decrease in average size of fish. Total catches in 1958 were 24,000 and 35,500 in 1975.

"We do not have total catch estimates for recent years, but the fishery appears to have stabilized. An intensive winter fishery would definitely have an impact on the summer season."

This tradeoff would have to be resolved for the local people. Economically, the winter fishery would probably never approach the dollar generation of a summer fishery on a fish per fish basis.

"Consideration should also be given to a quality versus quantity fishery at Williams Lake. This would necessitate a significant reduction in the harvest rate to increase the longevity and ultimate size of fish. Again this approach should involve public input."

Greenley advised that through the years the Department has attempted to encourage the winter harvest of whitefish, especially on the Lemhi River.

"This is a tremendous resource that is relatively untapped. White fish are direct competitors with trout and juvenile salmon for food and space. Their removal during winter months will enhance summer trout fisheries."

Greenley said five emergency measures being implemented should be extremely beneficial to Idaho salmon and steelhead runs. He listed them as 1. Accelerated installation of spillway deflectors at Little Goose and McNary dams to reduce nitrogen supersaturation.

2. Acceleration of turbine screen and fish bypass system research and development, including installation of such screens at Lower Granite and Little Goose dams to be operational by the spring of 1975. Results will dictate the use of such screens on other dams.

3. Collection and transportation of the dams of up to 50 per cent of the steelhead seaward migrants in the Snake River beginning in 1975. Research has shown a significant benefit to survival of steelhead smolts can result.

4. Regulation of the Columbia and Snake rivers flow to improve migration conditions for adult and juvenile salmon and steelhead. Flows which are either too high or too low affect both up and downstream migration. Adjustment in water storage programs may assist fish passage and survival during critical migration periods.

5. The earliest possible implementation of a hatchery program to compensate for fish losses due to the Corps of Engineers' dams on the lower Snake River. Hatcheries to bring about 40,000 each of salmon and steelhead to Idaho streams are being planned.

Greenley added: "The Columbia River Compact has put commercial and Indian fishermen on notice that they should not expect to fish upon the expected small runs of salmon and steelhead enroute to Idaho in 1975. This is in contrast to 1974 when the Compact appeared to set seasons designed to further damage the small runs of Idaho fish."

"Legislation is being prepared in the states of Idaho, Oregon and Washington, which, if passed in the three states and ratified by the Congress of the United States, would allow Idaho a voice in the Columbia River Compact."

"Although this has been unsuccessfully attempted in the past, a more receptive climate for the legislation is sensed in Oregon and Washington at this time."

"If Idaho can get above on the Columbia River Compact, we may not get our way all of the time but at least we will have a real vote in the proceedings, whereas now Idaho can act only in an advisory capacity."

Greenley said that small runs of salmon and steelhead into Idaho in 1974 were primarily due to poor survival of these fish as juveniles on their downstream migration through the lower Snake and Columbia rivers.

"Impacts caused by dams on these rivers have been extremely heavy," he said. "Losses have been caused by nitrogen supersaturation, passage of fish through turbines, and delay of migrating fish in the reservoir pools."

In investigating the fish migration, National Marine Fisheries Service researchers found that a record low number of chinook salmon and steelhead survived their seaward migration in 1973, but they found a more normal survival of the 1974 juvenile seaward migrants. Since these fish spend anywhere from one to three years in the ocean, improvement in the runs will not be immediate.

"Researchers predict an improved steelhead return in the fall of 1975; reduced run of chinook salmon in 1976; and an improved or nearly normal run of chinook salmon in 1976. Most importantly, the research program have identified the main problem areas and remedial actions are being taken."

Greenley also advised that recent gill net fishing seasons set by the Columbia River Compact should have no effect on Idaho's spring run of chinook salmon.

The Compact set a March 1-11 season on chinook salmon for the areas from the Willamette River downstream to the mouth of the Columbia.

"The season there should end before Idaho's spring chinook run begins," Greenley said. Idaho's chinooks enter the Columbia about March 15 and Cross Bonneville Dam about April 1.

Norman Guth, president of the Idaho Outfitters and Guides' Assoc., commenting on the proposal to turn to a trout fishery in the Salmon River, said: "right now is about two years too soon for making any decision on writing the steelhead fishery off."

"There have been some pretty substantial gains made in dam passage and related problems. We ought to give these things a chance; but if they don't work we might as well write it off."

Salmon River Chinook fights up river

Forego wins Widener handicap

HALEAH, Fla. (UPI)—High-standing and long-striding Forego became the first horse in the 40-year history of Hialeah Park's famed Widener Handicap Saturday to carry 131 pounds to victory.

Under the guidance of jockey Heliodoro Gutierrez, the 1974 Horse of the Year ran in eighth position in the nine-horse field for the first three-quarters of a mile. Then Forego lengthened stride coming out of the backstretch and pulled into fourth position.

With a crowd of 24,000 fans cheering him lustily, Forego rounded the leaders, pulled in front with less than an eighth of a mile to go and stood off the late bids of the lightly-weighted Hat Full and Gold and Myrrh.

It was a repeat victory in the Widener for the Lazy P Ranch horse and his fifth win in a row. The huge gelding, standing more than 17 hands tall, won the mile and one-quarter race carrying 131 pounds.

Only War Admiral, in 1933, won with as much as 130, while such great performers of the past as Armed, Assurance, Callown, Crafts, Admiral and Kelso failed under 120 or more.

Forego ran the 10 furlongs in 2:01.45, two and one-fifth seconds off the track record set by Bald Eagle in 1960. The 11½ furlong race was won by Hat Full and earned the $145,000 winner's share of the total $124,700 Widener purse, bringing his total earnings to $854,830 in less than 2½ years of racing.

Forego was the odds-on choice of the largest Hialeah crowd since 1971 and paid $3.40, $2.80 and $2.60 across the board. Hat Full, a 50-1 choice to win, paid $19.20 to place and $8.40 to show. Gold and Myrrh returned $4.60 for second.

Forego, who often demonstrates a high strain of curiosity which makes him dawdle in the waking ring, gave his rider a scare in the early going.

Gutierrez reported he had to rouse Forego out of his sluggishness along the backstretch.

Pilots trip Indians 90-64

GLENN'S FERRY — The Glenn's Ferry Pilots celebrated Coach Gordon Brown night Saturday by dropping the Shoshone Indians 90-64 with a brilliant shooting display. Immediately following the game, the town fete threw with an open house to mark the end-of-his-first-25-years-as-basketball coach.

But a couple of seniors, making their last appearances on the home court, also got into the fray. Three-year starter Steve Strum threw in 14 points, took 14 rebounds and dealt out 10 assists. Three-year man Jay Black had 16 points.

Glenn's Ferry was terrific in the first quarter, hitting 13 of its 17 field goal attempts for a 27-10 lead. Shoshone came back within 11 points in the third quarter by hitting nine of 10 attempts. That set up a racehorse last period, won by Glenn's Ferry 21-19.

Carey scrapes to 54-51 win over Tigers

CAREY — Overcoming its worst shooting night of the year the Carey Panthers edged by Richfield 54 to 51 at the free throwline Saturday night. Both teams shot an equally ragged 28 per cent from the floor as Carey hit 19 for 66 and Richfield was 20 for 71. The difference was at the foul line.

Richfield's fortunes turned bad in the fourth quarter as the Panthers held a 35-20 lead. Carey hit 11 points at the charity stripe. The Panthers started out fast in the first quarter with a ten-point lead at the end of the period. The Tigers then caught fire and scored 20 points in the second period to close to within one of Carey at the half. The score was tied at 44 all at the end of the third quarter.

From all angles

By Larry Hovey

The cost squeeze could put a definite dent in the Southern Idaho Conference basketball season as early as next year.

SIC athletic directors currently are working on a plan whereby there would be intra-division play only (10 SIC games per side) and then bring an undetermined number of leaders to play at Twin Falls for a one, two or three night single-elimination playoff for the championship.

This would throw the matter of scheduling on a local or area basis and help alleviate part of the problem currently facing the A-1 teams in the Boise regional. There currently are nine in that alignment. Emmett moving up, and the SIC schedule calling for 16 league games, it gives those nine no chance of playing each other during the season.

Bob Donnelly, Twin Falls AD, said money really is the whole crux of the program.

"If a team from Idaho Falls goes to the Boise area, or vice-versa, for a two-game series, an overnighter, they're looking at a $1,200 bill," Donnelly says. "Last year, we (Twin Falls) spent three days in Pocatello for the state tournament and it cost us just a little more than half that. You can see how the prices are jumping."

Donnelly said it still may be possible to continue the game swing, but it appears the "dead head" play once and return home, definitely is done. "That's about $600 now," Donnelly states.

The matter of playing it off also causes some consternation. If four teams could be brought to Twin Falls for a single elimination tournament, it would require a reduction by all SIC schools of two games below the state allowable 20-game limit.

This isn't a happy situation since it would mean each team would lose one home game gate — and money is still the problem, remember.

The most feasible plan would be to have the state allow the SIC an extra night for playoffs, similar to the 1974 game in football. For that purpose, the two division champions would play for first and second and the two division runners-up would play third and fourth overall in the final standings.

That would mean a total of four teams playing one over the limit. It would allow all to play 20 games. It needn't be a precedent for the rest of the conference because they basically are in the same distaste and the same classification. They have their district tournaments to arrive at the same decision.

On the local scene, Donnelly said he didn't see the situation affecting Twin Falls' basketball schedule much. "We're still the closest to the western division and I see no problem of Twin Falls and Minico continuing to play the Boise area schools on a home and home basis. They like to play up there."

Here's one for you to mull about. A man from Jerome, who wishes anonymity, suggests it and would like to get some feedback.

But make certain that you go into this with the idea that it definitely will require revised thinking.

This man suggests that if economies are hurting the three state university athletic departments, there should be a re-vamping. The first would include changing the name of all three to University of Idaho at Moscow; U of I Boise, and U of I Pocatello. (Remember now, we told you it would require revised thinking.)

This would accomplish the fact of having everyone rooting for the University of Idaho.

The reason for this is this: The University of Idaho (which now mean all three campuses) would have one football team. Say it is located in Boise. The basketball team would be entrenched at Moscow — but each would play some of its games at the other two sites. Pocatello would have the track, wrestling and spring sports.

The man further states this should help Idaho keep its athletics in the state. (He's suggesting a 40 per cent Idaho requirement.)

If there were any money involved — like a football player might find the course of his choice at Boise and have to go elsewhere. A eager might find what he wants academically at Moscow.

The provincialism and old school ties thing will also be worth.

But the man currently feels that something must be done to find the gaping wounds that Idaho suffers because of its incredibly stupid spawning of three major universities in a 70,000-person state.

Suggestion for the quarter of the week. Larry Sackett, Twin Falls, stated after watching the CST track zone defense force dozens of turnovers and about as many steals from BYU Thursday night.

"Someone should have told BYU to bring its own ball because CST wouldn't let them play their's."

Gillman resigns Houston position

HOUSTON (UPI) — Sid Gillman, who resigned Friday as general manager of the Houston Oilers would have had an automatic three-year, $250,000 contract had he stayed until March 1, sources said Saturday. Gillman, 62, quit as head coach of the Oilers three weeks ago and named O.A. "Bum" Phillips to replace him.

Phillips, Friday, added the general manager ship to his duties.

Gillman fired Bill Peterson as head coach after five games of the 1972 season and took over the coaching. The Oilers had 113 records for 1972 and 1973, but won six of the last eight games in 1974 to finish with a 4-7 record.

Erving hits 63, team 166 — still lose

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Julius Erving had never seen anything like it before. He scored a career high 63 points for the New York Nets but it wasn't enough to stop the San Diego Conquistadors from winning in record quadruple overtime, 176-166.

The four-periods of overtime Friday night was the first in the American Basketball Association's history, and the 342 total points set another ABA record.

However, San Diego's 176 points was one short of the individual team record set by Indiana in 1970.

"I've never been in a game like it before," Erving said. He had to wrap an ice bag around the ankle he sprained at the end of the first overtime period.

"It's very disheartening to lose a game like that, when you've put so much into it."

The first overtime was called when San Diego's Travis Ford made a 22-foot desperation shot as the fourth quarter buzzer sounded. The score was 129-129.

Erving hit a 12-foot jumper with seven seconds left in the overtime to tie it at 144-144, and in the second overtime New York's Bill Melchioni scored a three-pointer with 23 seconds left to tie it at 152-152 and force a record-tying third overtime.

Net guard Brian Taylor got another three-pointer with 22 seconds remaining in the third overtime for a 161-161 tie that set the stage for the fourth and record period.

In that period, San Diego's Bo Lamar hit eight of his 45 points while the Nets got only five.

Erving was 45 of the end of regular play was 45, and his 18 in the overtimes gave him the second highest total in ABA history. Larry Miller scored 67 for Carolina in a 1972 game.

NFL trial recessed

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — One of the major "freedom issues" National Football League players presented in their six-week strike last year was criticized as too restrictive at an antitrust trial recessed Friday after two weeks of testimony.

The suit challenging the controversial Rostell Rule was initiated in U.S. District Court by 16 pregnant and former players who became free agents May 1, 1972. Defendants are the NFL, its club owners and NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle.

The rule empowers Rozelle to set compensation before a player who plays out his option can be signed as a free agent by another team.

Attorneys for the players said they presented about half their case in the first two weeks of testimony. The trial will resume before Judge Earl Larson April 21 for another 10 days when at least seven players will be called as witnesses.

Ingram takes Permatex 300

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — Driving with a smashed windshield much of the way, Jack Ingram won Saturday's brutal Permatex 300 stock car race, which sent several cars tumbling to oblivion, put one driver in the hospital and sidetracked two-thirds of the starting field.

Ingram, the NASCAR late model sportsman champion from Shawnee, Mo., averaged 138.06 m.p.h. in his Chevrolet to take the checkered flag 2.5 seconds ahead of Joe Millikan's Dodge with Chevrolet's driven by Harry Gant and Ivan Baldwin close behind.

Even stock car ace Richard Petty and David Pearson, watching the race from the radio tower, called the devastating spins and crashes "scary."

Only 15 of the original 40 sportsman model stock cars were able to finish the race. The most sensational crash came on the second lap when Red Farmer's Mercury tangled with a Ford driven by young Terry Black Jr. at Jacksonville, Fla., at 170 m.p.h. on the first turn of Daytona Speedway's "high-banked, 2.5-mile tri-oval."

Farmer's car flipped into the air 16 times across the infield and back onto the track. He was admitted to Halifax Hospital suffering an injured left arm and knee.

"We just got together," said the 42-year-old resident of Hattiesville, Ala. "I don't know whether we touched or not."

got on the grass spinning again, when I hit the pavement again, it started flipping. I thought I was somewhere in the infield when it ended."

Alabama drops Rebels

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (UPI) — Junior center Leon Douglas scored 27 points and grabbed 13 rebounds Saturday as 6th ranked Alabama downed Mississippi 88-79 to remain in a tight battle with 5th-ranked Kentucky for the Southeastern Conference lead.

The game was tied eight times and the Rebels took three times early in the game before a Crimson Tide surge gave Alabama a 49-38 halftime edge.

Alabama took control in the second half, stretching the lead to 17 points on three occasions, the last being 59-42 with 16:49 to go.

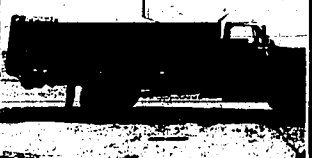

The closest the Rebels got in the second half was eight points, —86-78, with 37 seconds left.

Spartans nip Minn. in OT

EAST LANSING, Mich. (UPI) — Michigan State's Bill Glover fired in a 20-foot jump shot at the game and the Spartans then outscored Minnesota 8-3 in an overtime session Saturday to take an 86-81 Big Ten victory.

Michigan State fell behind 22-20 at the half but staged a furious second-half comeback. The Spartans rallied by 28 minutes remaining in regulation time and by five with just 49 seconds left.

Hills-led Buhl cops 74-54 win over Wolverines

HAILEY — The Buhl Indians, with Jerre Hills having a balance 22-point night, built up an early lead against Wood River and romped off with a 74-54 SCIC decision Friday night.

Hills divided his points almost evenly as the Indians hit about 50 percent in the first half to build up a 36-24 advantage. Wood River, making just three of 15 in the first period, never was able to get back into solid contention.

Buhl hit a line 18 of 23 from the foul line when Wood River managed just 14 of 31. Buhl

Murtaugh tips Hansen

HANSEN — The Murtaugh Red Devils took advantage of a seven-point second quarter by Hansen's Huskies to carry home a 57-41 decision.

"The victory gave Murtaugh third place in the Magic Valley Conference, meaning the Devils will play the first game when the Fifth District A-4 tournament opens in Buhl Wednesday night. Hansen will play in the nightcap.

Hansen held a 14-12 lead in the first period then went into a seven-point swoon while Murtaugh jumped into a 26-21 halftime lead. The Devils pushed that to 13 in the third quarter and Hansen was never able to seriously challenge.

Murtaugh won the opener 57-

Tigers rap Mushers to cop second spot

RICHFIELD — The Richfield Tigers downed Camas County 52-47 Friday night to climb second place in the Northside Conference and earn a bye when the fourth district A-4 tournament opens Wednesday in Gooding.

The Tigers led throughout, holding a 13-12 edge at the end of the first quarter and a 31-29 margin at the half. They stretched the lead to 43-37 at the end of the third period.

Holland was top scorer for Richfield, with 14 points, followed by Robinson with 13. Camas County's Stroud collected a game-high 22 points.

The Mushers won the preliminary.

TF girl joins US jobs corps

TWIN FALLS — A Twin Falls girl has enrolled in a job corps training program at Astoria, Ore.

Jo Lynn McMichael, 16, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James J. McMichael, Twin Falls, has enrolled in a child development aide's training program at the Tongue Point development center on the Oregon Coast.

According to Sam Overacre, Twin Falls area Corps representative, Jo Lynn's training placement "amounts to about an $8,000 scholarship."

News Of Servicemen

TWIN FALLS — Two local members of the Headquarters unit 116th Armored Cavalry Regiment have been awarded the Army Commendation Medal.

Sgt. Maj. Tommy S. Beams, Buhl, and former First Sgt. Henry D. Van Patten, Twin Falls, were honored for exceptionally meritorious service while serving in the Headquarters unit of the Regiment.

Beams was commended for his superior performance while serving as the operations sergeant of the regimental tactical operations center during the conduct of numerous tactical field problems.

Van Patten was distinguished for his leadership and development of NCO's in his 30 years as First Sergeant of the Twin Falls unit. First Sergeant Van Patten was further commended for his dedication to the recruiting and retention of members of his unit.

TWIN FALLS — Maj. Pat M. Parrott, Twin Falls, was recently promoted and subsequently assigned as the regional operations officer. Maj. Parrott is responsible for the tactical operations of the Armored Cavalry Regiment.

Parrott is also a full time technician at the local unit and serves as the operations and training officer.

Parrott, his wife Anita, and family, live south of Twin Falls.

TWIN FALLS — Maj. Richard O. Carter, a former member of the Idaho Army National Guard unit in Twin Falls and transferred as the command assistant in Caldwell in 1962, has returned to the Twin Falls area.

Expensive chase

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — City policeman Franklin F. Kennedy has been suspended through March 17 — and may get permanently grounded — for wrecking a $25,000 police helicopter while chasing a pheasant.

Kennedy pleaded guilty this week to departmental charges in connection with the crash Jan. 17. He was charged with chasing a fox in a field when he should have been answering a police dispatcher's broadcast, and with wrecking the aircraft a short time later while chasing a pheasant.

"I strongly recommend that police officer Kennedy be prohibited from participating in aerial flight as a pilot or observer in the future," the city's safety director said in a memo to Columbus Police Chief Earl Burden.

Shelter homes need aid

BOISE — The president of the Shelter Home Association said Thursday the homes need a financial "shot in the arm" or they would all be out of business.

Rudy Van Orden, Victor, said all the homes in Idaho are in trouble and help was needed by "March of 1975."

Richard Brown, Twin Falls, operator of the Magic Valley Living Center, said "I'm faced with going out of business shortly — it's just a matter of days rather than months with me."

If the Magic Valley Living Center is forced out of business the 23 mentally retarded residents would have to go into state institutions, which cost the state more to operate, Mrs. Brown said. "The state is getting off dirt cheap now," she said. "Residents pay for the care out of their federal welfare checks."

Brown said he doesn't profess to have a home that is up to standards because he doesn't have the money to accomplish the job.

Brown also told the legislators that after a resident of his home had allegedly killed a woman, state personnel came to his home and said they would have to take every court appointed person out of his place. One of the girls who wanted to stay, he said, was "literally dragged out of the home screaming."

Van Orden told a group of legislators from health committees of both houses, "homes are going broke daily."

He said unless there is financial help there would be a tremendous burden on the state of Idaho because it would cost the state $26 a day to provide the same care.

Van Orden said the homes receive $4.67 per day to care for each resident, but that they need $10 to maintain a reasonable standard of living for the people in the homes.

"We've asked, pleaded and begged and spent our resources and didn't get our messages across," Van Orden said.

He said bankers or financial institutions would not help when they "see us going broke." He said "We need an immediate shot in the arm."

Famous Scalp Specialist Tells Truth About Saving Falling Hair

These private individual consultations will be held at the Holiday Inn, 1350 Blue Lakes Blvd. No., on Monday, February 17, from 1:30 to 8:30 p.m. Ask hotel clerk for Mr. J.J. Woolley. He will be the rest. Phone 733-0650.

To provide the opportunity of having normal, healthy hair to the thousands who are desperately looking for help, the firm is sending specialists to various cities throughout the United States to conduct consultation and start home treatment.

TWIN FALLS, February 16 — In an interview, J.J. Woolley, nationally famous consultant for the International Hair and Scalp Specialists, Inc., said, "There are many different scalp disorders that cause men and women to lose hair. Using common sense, a person must realize no one tonic or so-called cure-all could correct all the disorders," he explained.

Guaranteed "International, recognizing that most people are skeptical, offers a guarantee." Woolley said. Once a person avails himself of the International treatment his skepticism immediately disappears. You will be given a written guarantee from the beginning to end on a pro-rated basis.

Hopeless Cases Discouraged First the International consultants are quick to tell hopeless cases that they cannot be helped. But the "hopeless" cases are few. Everyone is given a complete private consultation to determine the condition of his or her scalp, and cause for their hair trouble.

Free Consultations This consultation is very thorough and highly technical. It requires 20 to 30 minutes. There is no charge for this consultation and no appointment is necessary. After the consultation he or she is told the required length of treatment and how much it will cost. After starting treatment, a consultant will return to check client's progress.

Hopeless Cases Refused "We have no cure-all for slick, shiny baldness. International consultants will accept only clients whose hair we feel sure will respond to treatment. They cannot help individuals who are slick bald, or the majority of cases of baldness and excessive hair loss, called male pattern baldness, where no treatment, including the International treatment, is of any value. Therefore, International will continue their policy of refusing all hopeless cases."

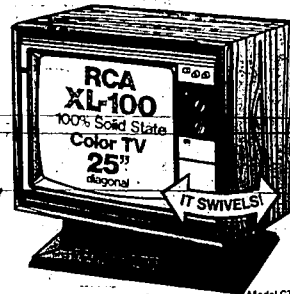

Hair For Lifetime "If clients follow our directions during treatment, and after they finish the course, there is no reason why they will not have hair all the rest of their lives," Woolley said. "Our firm is definitely behind this treatment; it all depends on the individual client's faithful observation of a few simple rules."

How's Your Hair? If it worries you, just go to the Holiday Inn, 1350 Blue Lakes Blvd. No., on Monday, February 17, from 1:30 to 8:30 p.m. Ask for Mr. J.J. Woolley. Or phone 733-0650. No appointment necessary. Interviews are given in private with no possible embarrassment.

Pucker gone?

KESSIMMEE, Fla. (UPI) — The recession apparently has taken some of the pucker out of this town's special Valentine postmark.

In past years, postmaster Roma Bronson said, his staff hand-stamped an average of 20,000 Valentine cards with a special stamp that emphasizes the "Kiss-I-me" in the town's name.

"This year it's been quite slack," Bronson said Thursday. "I suppose it's due to the economy. I don't think we'll even reach 2,000."

Indians attack Amazon fort

BEASHAM, I.A. (UPI) — Two hundred Indian warriors attacked an Amazon jungle fort in northwestern Brazil and held it under siege for 12 hours, the government reported Friday.

Ismar de Oliveira, president of the Brazilian National Indian Foundation, said the 16 men manning the fort, called Marubo post, withstood the onslaught Monday by locking themselves in their reinforced fortress which is built on stilts and by sealing a special trap door covering the only entrance.

New breed of feminist thinkers come to fore

By United Press International

Eventual ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment to the Constitution appears as if it is going to be the United States chief contribution to the observance of 1975 as International Women's Year.

But aside from the relatively placid legislative lobbying effort involved in the ERA, a new breed of feminist thinkers and activists are coming to the fore.

Nowhere is the breed more evident than in the church.

Like activists in other movements fashionable in the 1960s, the church feminists have moved beyond the flashy tactics that gain national media attention to the more obscure day-to-day organizing in their local communities.

No one illustrates this new situation better than the Rev. Davida Foy Crahtree, a United Church of Christ minister and director of the Prudence Crandall Center-for-Women in New Britain, Conn.

Taking its name from a 19th century suffragist, educator and abolitionist, the Prudence Crandall Center works to both discover the needs of women and to empower them for full participation in all aspects of community life.

That last, says in a town that has a heavy concentration of industry and therefore a large concentration of lower-middle and lower class working people.

For Crahtree, ordained since 1972 and a long-time activist, coming up against that reality has meant personal readjustment of her own style.

"I've really had to try and tone myself down and that's been an interesting experience ... to tone down to try to communicate," she said. "I really believe the women's movement is a spiritual movement; it's moving of the spirit; a search after ultimate meaning."

But she said it is not simply neutering sexist language or replacing "brotherhood" with "sisterhood."

"We would like to find ways for women to rise up and take control of their own lives, both physically and emotionally," she said.

The center, she noted, was currently in the process of doing an extensive "needs survey" of women in New Britain.

"One of the most interesting things about the preliminary results of that survey," she said, "was that 80 per cent of the women responding said they felt a primary need was for a woman to know how to defend herself."

In addition to the needs survey, the center has also done surveys on women in government and politics in New Britain; provides consciousness and support groups for women, provides free personal counseling and organizes task forces in the areas of education, sexuality, health, religion and physical education.

The key to the future of the women's movement, she said, "is whether the women's centers in local communities can keep on going."

But then she adds: "It is a spiritual thing — it is so powerful that I don't think anything can stop it."

"But we have to learn how that translates into an effect on women who are destitute both emotionally and physically. It's really like to see some national denominations struggle with that."

Dilettante rehearsals under way, TF shows scheduled March 13-17

By CRICKET BIRD
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS—Almost every night about 30 local persons step out of their identities to become new and quite different people.

A Castleford dairy farmer becomes Wally Womper, the chairman of the board of a powerful company. A Twin Falls mother of three and state employee steps in the part of Hedy LaRue, sexy blonde bombshell. A Jerome school teacher gets in the act as a scrub woman.

It's all part of weeks of rehearsals for the Dilettantes' spring show, "How to Succeed in Business," set for March 13-17.

Lead players, chorus members and dancers have been practicing for the March musical production since early January, at least several nights a week and often weekends, too.

Behind the scenes, volunteers from the community work to design and build sets, make and obtain costumes and direct the musical accompaniment.

The show, the Dilettantes 17th is a musical comedy about a young man trying to make his way in the business world.

It takes a humorous look at business and the megalomaniac career of a young man, J. Pierpont, Finch, affectionately known as Finchy and played by Richard Young, Buhl.

Finch gets into the business literally by bumping into the big boss, J. B. Biggley, played by Dr. Art Frantz, and then mentioning it casually to the personnel man, Brait, Twin Fall's Jim Latham.

Finch continues to find success in business through the aid of his book "How to Succeed" and carefully engineered maneuvers designed to catch the attention of the big men in the company.

Finch even manages to avoid the pitfalls set up by the boss' obnoxious nephew, Bud Frump, played by Ed Britt, Twin Falls.

And Finch even finds time to spend with Rosemary Pilkington, one of the company's many secretaries, played by Nancy Ann Shewchuk.

In the meantime, the company's many secretaries, junior executives and clerks chime in to create just enough diversions to keep Finch busy.

The show will be presented in five performances March 13-17 at the College of Southern Idaho Fine Arts Auditorium.

Jan Jensen, accompanist, sets musical pace.

TF Club sets Bicentennial project

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS—A flag for display on every Twin Falls home for the bicentennial is the goal of a current Exchange Club project here.

To meet this goal, the club is offering, at a reasonable price, a flag kit for sale to all interested persons. The kit includes American flag measuring three by five feet, a six foot aluminum pole and a plastic eagle for the end of the pole.

Orders can be placed for the flag kit by calling 734-5503. This is an answering service and orders will be taken down and flags mailed to the buyer. Each complete kit costs only $5.25.

Hick Carrioco, president of the Exchange Club, said the price is being held to a low figure which the club members feel will cover the cost of the flags and the handling and mailing. Any funds left over at the close of the project will go into the club's scholarship fund, he said.

The flag sale project goes hand-in-hand with the club's program of displaying flags in the mall area on each of seven national holidays. This has been a project of long standing by the club and each holiday a flag committee starts at daylight attaching flags to special poles throughout the downtown area. They are collected again at the end of the day.

"This is why we happened to embark on the bicentennial project," Carrioco said. "We feel not only should the business district display flags, but every home owner or resident should show appreciation of his or her country by flying the flag on holidays," he said.

Club members will observe Washington's Birthday—anniversary Monday with downtown flag displays and will also use that occasion to kick off the bicentennial flag sale project.

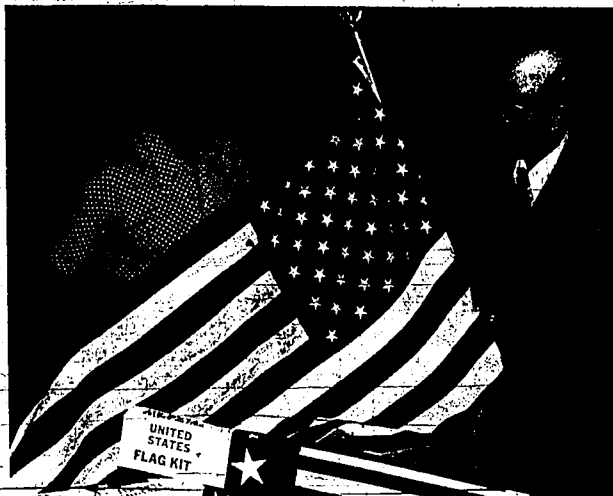

Each of the flag kits contains a copy of the pledge of allegiance, a list of holidays on which the flag should be displayed and instruction for proper display, handling and care of the American flag.

It also contains a brief history of the flag from 1497 up to the present 50 star, 13 stripe red, white and blue emblem.

material

INFORMATION on care and display of the flag as well as a brief history are included in each flag kit. Rick Carrioco, Exchange Club president, displays special material.

Flag kits available

FLAG kits available for sale by the Twin Falls Exchange Club have arrived and may be purchased by interested persons. Here Mike Robertson, left, and Ernie Davis assemble flags from the kits. The Exchange Club project is in honor of the bicentennial.

Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Is it too late to leave a husband after 36 years of marriage? Through the years, I have put up with plenty of abuse, both verbal and physical, but I always forgave him.

Last night was the last straw. At supper, my husband had taken second helpings of everything on the table. We were just about finished when I noticed a little more stew in the bowl, so I put it on his plate.

He flew into a rage, saying he wasn't a garbage can, then he picked up his plate and shoved it into my face, all over my glasses and in my hair! This happened last night and I am still so infuriated I can hardly control myself.

He didn't apologize. (He never does.) He just said: "Well, you asked for it when you tried to force the leftovers on me!"

I suppose it's too late to leave him, but if you were in my place, what would you have done? Or better yet, what would YOU do now?

HAD IT

Better off without him

DEAR HAD IT: What I would do and what YOU should do are probably two different things. If you have put up with his abuse for 36 years, you either must have liked it, or felt that you had no choice. Now, you should ask yourself the question, "Would I be better off without him—or with him?" There's your answer.

DEAR ABBY: I'm the mother of a 15-year-old daughter and a 14-year-old son. They're good kids as far as behavior goes, but they are a pair of lazy slobbers when it comes to keeping their rooms picked up.

I have pleaded with them, yelled at them, and threatened them with the worst kind of punishment, but nothing works.

We live in a lovely new home, and each has a beautiful room, but you would never know it.

Abby, I am not a fanatic, nor am I unreasonable. I just want them to hang up their clothes and keep their rooms presentable. I don't even ask them to make their own beds. When guests come over and want to see the house, I have to keep these two rooms closed off because I'm ashamed of the way they look most of the time.

Can you help me? GIVING UP

DEAR GIVING: You are fighting a losing battle. Mother. Say no more to them, keep their doors closed, and enter their rooms only to change the beds, and rake it once a week. When they get tired of living in that mess, they'll clean it up. Until then, don't let it aggravate you. It's not worth it.

DEAR ABBY: I am a girl whose best features are my legs. Believe me, I don't have much else, but I've been told I could make a fortune modeling hosiery. Naturally I show them off every chance I get.

Here is one girl who will never catch in pants. I always wear a dress or shorts, which brings me to my question: Are hot pants still in style for summer? And even if they aren't, should I wear them when shorts are appropriate? Thank you.

GOOD LEGS

DEAR GOOD: The "style" today are so flexible that anything goes. Go ahead and wear hot pants. And if they catch fire, you can put them out with your panty hose. (Get it? Panty hose?)

DEAR ABBY: My wife cannot bear children because of surgery; she has one child from a previous marriage. I am willing to adopt but I would like very much to have at least one of my own.

We understand that some young ladies will conceive a child for a barren couple through artificial insemination. We are not rich, but we can afford to pay someone well to do this for us; we are neither insensitive nor vulgar, and would take good care of the girl during her pregnancy.

We are concerned, however, about the legal aspects of this arrangement.

Our friends and relatives are equally divided about such an idea. We would appreciate your opinion and advice and any information you can provide to help us locate such a girl.

NAMELESS IF PRINTED

DEAR NAMELESS: First, consult with a lawyer about the legalities of such an arrangement. I have never heard of any girl or woman who has (or would) consider such a proposition.

Botulism poisonings boom in US

WASHINGTON (UPI) —

Government experts said today economic uncertainty has led to a boom in home gardening and home canning. The result: The greatest number of botulism cases last year since the Depression.

Officials say an estimated 6 million home gardens were planted in 1974, mainly because of rising food prices and lingering fears of unemployment. The new gardens have meant more novice canners, and the experts say that could be the reason for the increase in deadly botulism.

Seven persons were killed by botulism last year — five from home canned food, one from commercially packed food and one where the source was not known. The Center for Disease Control reported 20 outbreaks of botulism poisoning involving 36 persons — the highest one year total since 1935.

As a result, officials are trying to alert consumers to the dangers of poorly preserved foods.

"We are planning a major press conference March 10 to launch a massive information and education program nationwide to inform consumers on how to safely home can," Nancy Steorts, consumer adviser at the Agriculture Department said UPI.

In the meantime she suggests anyone doubtful of the quality of home canned food should check with the Agriculture Department's county extension agent.

Botulism bacteria occur naturally but are usually killed when canned foods are boiled as part of the canning process. If the food is not heated enough they can grow in the airless surroundings. One taste of tainted food can be fatal.

The five confirmed botulism deaths linked to home canned food included one in Alaska last July from whitefish; one in Oregon in August from potatoes and peas; one in Pennsylvania in December from beef and mushrooms; and two in New York in December from mushrooms.

Tourist visas cut short

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Immigration and Naturalization Service says it will, as a rule, no longer grant foreign visitors extensions of their six-month tourist visas.

INS said the purpose is to save manpower, which will then be used for other purposes such as finding and deporting illegal immigrants and speeding up processing of immigration applications.

Extensions still will be granted for special circumstances such as ill health or compelling family reasons, but only on order of the INS director.

Sex interests boy, 10

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is it unnatural for a boy of 10 to always have his mind on girls? By this, I mean he's always talking about their bust or their bodies.

And he is very aware of things happening to his own body. He asked me many difficult questions about the human body.

Could you suggest what I should do if anything? — Mrs. A. H. The boy is approaching puberty and notices changes in his own body, so curiosity is not unnatural and can be expected. However, this process has been greatly accelerated through mass communication, notably television, where commercials and general programming are quite explicit about the human body. Any reasonably bright 10-year-old gets much more sex information today than youngsters of my day.

Also, schools are developing sex education programs much earlier. Your son may be getting only what his peers are getting, but more of it is sinking in. Children with older brothers and sisters also get filled in sooner than others.

Perhaps some outspoken adult is in the habit of making explicit comments in his presence, increasing his already active curiosity.

There is the possibility that he is sexually precocious, but only an examination by a pediatrician could determine this. He would be looking for visible signs of premature physical development which creates an entirely different problem.

As to answering his questions, I suggest straightforward answers that emphasize the serious aspects of sexual characteristics. Ten is not too early to begin such serious conversations, preferably between him and his father. There are many good books available to parents for this purpose.

Your Good Health

By George C. Thosteson, M.D.

At 10, your son may be a bit ahead of schedule in his curiosity, but his presence requires special direction on his father's part as well as yours.

NOTE TO MRS. H. H. B.: Artificial joint replacement has been effective in some cases of arthritis, especially in the fingers, knees and hips. Your situation should be evaluated by an orthopedist (bone specialist) to determine whether, at 72, you are a candidate for such an operation. If you are in good physical condition, your age should be no bar.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I had two cervical polyps removed and they have returned. Will douching with vinegar and water prevent their reappearance? — Mrs. V. G. No, it won't. Recurrence of polyps is not uncommon. Another operation may be necessary. It's a simple procedure and can be done in the doctor's office.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Would a fasting blood sugar test (not a sugar tolerance test) be sufficient to diagnose hypoglycemia? — E. M.

The single fasting blood sugar test might suggest hypoglycemia (low blood sugar), but only if the blood reading is very low.

Blood sugar readings obtained in a tolerance test are more conclusive. These tests involve blood examination over a period of six hours. They are also far more conclusive than a single after-meal blood sugar test.

Curiously, a letter that arrived almost simultaneously with yours (from Mrs. J. S.) asked if a single fasting blood sugar test was conclusive in diagnosing diabetes (high blood sugar).

My answer to her question is the same as to you.

A reliable diabetes diagnosis cannot be made from a single fasting sugar test unless the reading is quite high. A tolerance test, as explained above, should be done for a conclusive diagnosis.

Veal recipe featured

SAUTE DE VEAU MARENGO

In a heavy five-quart casserole heat oil to the smoking point. Add one and one half pounds of veal cut in chunks and cook until golden brown. Pour out the cooking oil without washing the skillet. Sprinkle the veal with thyme, salt, pepper and one spoonful of flour. Mix the meat to coat as much as possible and cook for eight to ten minutes until the chunks are crusted and there is no trace of gummy flour.

In another skillet melt two tablespoons of butter and cook one chopped onion and two pieces of garlic until the onions are soft and brown. Add one glass of white wine and two cups of beef stock and boil for one or two minutes. Then pour into the casserole.

Cut one tomato in pieces and few pieces of lemon peel. Put inside the casserole with one half pound of fresh sliced mushrooms. Boil the casserole on top of the stove. Then cook in the oven for one and one half hour at 350 degrees.

Remove the casserole from the oven when cooked. Discard the lemon peel. Skin as much as you can the fat from the casserole. Taste for seasoning and serve the veal from the casserole or arrange it on a large heated platter. Garnish with chopped parsley.

By Antoine Guanche

BROCCOLI A LA ROMANA

While the broccoli is cooking, heat the oil in a frying pan over medium heat, add two doves of garlic cut in small pieces, cook until golden color. Add two slices of ham cut in strips, and cook enough to heat it through.

When the broccoli is tender, drain and arrange it in a serving platter, season with salt and pepper. Pour the sauce over and garnish with croutons. Before cooking the broccoli add in the boiled water a pinch of baking soda to keep the broccoli green.

RED CABBAGE A LA FLAMANDE

Heat one spoonful of butter in a heavy casserole over low heat, add one head of shredded cabbage, season with salt, pepper and a clove of garlic. Cover the casserole and simmer for ten minutes.

Add one tablespoon of wine vinegar, two apples already peeled and cut in small pieces and one tablespoon of brown sugar. Turn the heat down to the lowest flame, and simmer for three hours.

Check some times to make sure it's moist. If not add a little water if necessary. Check for seasoning and serve in a vegetable dish.

The event will be from 2:30 to 5 p.m. at the DAV Hall, corner of Shoup and Harrison Streets, Twin Falls.

The couple was married Feb. 21, 1915, at Garden City, Mo.

A special guest of honor will be Mrs. Grace Bengert, Buhl, sister of Jones; who was married on the same day.

Mrs. Everett J. Foster, Twin Falls, the couple's daughter, and Mrs. Raymond Zagata, Buhl, and Mrs. Robert O. Denton, Boise, granddaughters of the couple, will be hostesses for the reception. The couple also has a son, Charles E. Jones, Riverside, Calif., three other granddaughters, and eight great-grandchildren.

The couple requests no gifts.

MR. AND MRS. C. ERSKIN JONES

Widow wears hubby's badge

DETROIT (UPI) — Police badge 4169 was back in action Friday — worn by the widow of an officer killed in a helicopter crash last June.

Dean Ryckman, 28, was assigned to the same precinct where her husband, Joe, worked for two years before he became a pilot.

Mrs. Ryckman graduated from the police academy Thursday night and Friday was her first day on the job.

"I've been thinking about taking flying lessons too," the small blonde said. "I used to fly with Joe frequently."

Ryckman was killed with another man in the crash of a police helicopter and a private plane over the Detroit River.

Naval ensign names date

TWIN FALLS — Mr. and Mrs. Fergus J. Wood, Silver Spring, Md., announce the engagement of their daughter, Bonnie, to Leland H. Ward, Ens, USN, son of Maj. Kenneth L. Ward (USAF, Ret.) and Mrs. Ward of Twin Falls. The wedding will take place June 7 in Silver Spring.

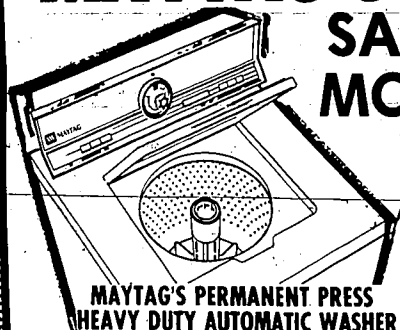

The bride to be is completing her senior year in the University of Maryland School of Nursing, Baltimore, and is a member of Alpha Xi Delta sorority.

Ensign Ward is a graduate of the US Naval Academy, Annapolis, Md., and is in flight training at Pensacola, Fla.

Hansen couple weds in Logan

MR. & MRS. DEE BODILY

HANSEN — Deborah Stanger and Dee Bodily were married Jan. 31 in the Logan LDS Temple.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin J. Stanger, Hansen, and "the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Elred Bodily, Hansen.

The couple was honored at a reception Feb. 1 in the Kimberly LDS Church.

The newlyweds received guests before an ecru and burgundy grecian drape with baskets of white chrysanthemums and burgundy carnations at each side.

The bride wore her wedding gown of white organdy and lace. It featured a mandarin collar with puffed organdy sleeves gathered to lace cuffs. The lace bodice was gathered to the skirt of organdy over tulle.

Her mantilla veil was trimmed with matching lace and fell to a long train. The veil was held in place by a cap of matching lace. She carried a nosegay bouquet of burgundy roses and baby's breath.

Jellene Stanger, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Susan Ethington, Debra Buttar and Karen Montgomery were bridesmaids.

Dave Lockwood was best man. Groomsmen were Alan Bodily, Grant Bodily and Sam Davis.

The bride's table was placed before a grecian drape of ecru and burgundy. The wedding cake was iced in white and decorated with burgundy tinted roses. White wedding bells were placed on top of the cake.

The cake was flanked with bud vases holding burgundy velvet roses arranged by Mrs. J. W. Miller, aunt of the bride.

Mrs. Floyd W. Merrill and Mrs. John A. Swanson cut and served the wedding cake. Sharalee Merrill and Barbara Flint served punch.

Others assisting were Kim Stanger, Ann Merrill, Brenda Ethington, Mrs. Richard Lauff and Mrs. Trena Vandenberg. Mrs. Dale Whitaker served as hostess. Terrell Thompson was in charge of the guest book. Gifts were arranged by Diane Bodily, Leola Fennewald and Lorene Stanger.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Thompson, grandparents of the bride, and Mrs. Esther Allen, grandmother of the bridegroom, were special guests.

Guests attended from Burley, Boise, Pocatello, Arizona, Logan and Preston.

Following a wedding trip to California, the couple resides in Twin Falls where the bride is employed by Penny Wise Drug and the bridegroom by Kimberly Nurseries.

MR. AND MRS. CHARLES STEPHENSON SR.

Six children host anniversary party

TWIN FALLS — Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stephenson Sr. will celebrate their 50th Wedding Anniversary with an open house Sunday.

The event will be from 2 to 5 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 23, at their home, 1203 Spruce St.

Hosts for the event will be their six children and their families, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stephenson Jr., Salt Lake City; Mr. and Mrs. J. B. (Peggy) Hillman, Twin Falls; Mr. and Mrs. Jack (Dorothy) Spann and Mr. and Mrs. Larry Stephenson, all Burley; Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Stephenson, Boise, and Mr. and Mrs. Ronald (Barbara) Spann, Twin Falls.

The couple was married Feb. 28 in Otho, Kan. They settled at Pocatello, Mo., where Stephenson farmed and Mrs. Stephenson taught school. In 1936, they moved to Idaho and homesteaded at Millner and farmed until 1956. They moved to Twin Falls in 1956 and are now retiring from the rental business.

The couple has 23 grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

Relatives and friends of the couple are invited to the open house. The couple requests no gifts.

Mini-reviews

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls Public Library officials have released mini-reviews for some of the new books recently received by the library.

"A Gift of Oryx" by Jocelyn Kettle. An epic romance of a woman struggling to endure a world foreign to her. Eugene came to the drafty Lancashire manor, Clere Athel, as the young romantic wife of the estate's master.

"Year of the Golden Ape" by Colin Forbes. With consummate skill, the author moves the action from the Near East through Europe, to the United States, gripping the reader in a plot involving a dogged Lloyd's insurance investigator, and Arab and European terrorists.

"Parish for the Defense" by Hillary Wauch. This is the story of murder, lawyers and the law and of the conflicts that explode in a highly charged courtroom drama where the fate of the accused is only incidental to the ego of his defender.

"The Professional" by Edwin Fadiman, Jr. This novel takes the reader inside the game, inside the locker rooms where the aristocracy of tennis gather to debate the questions of excellence and endurance. It explores "that special joyfulness of the professional athlete who must unceasingly win and who cannot be anything but the very best, always."

"A Home for the Heart" by Bruno Bettelheim. This book makes us understand a new and healing concept of the "institution" that can truly help the mentally ill.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

East overtook West's king of clubs with the ace and continued with the queen and 10. South now had noted the fall of the jack from West, ruffed high and led a heart to dummy's king. East took his ace and continued a heart-to-pul-South-back-on-lead.

South proceeded to draw trumps with three leads and plunk his jack of diamonds on the table. East followed. South went right up with dummy's ace, picked up East's singleton king and claimed the rest of the tricks.

"Hold your cards back," growled West.

"I didn't see his hand, I didn't have to," said South. "I was in the unfortunate position of having two chances to make my contract — slim and none. I took the slim chance and it materialized."

There was no chance for West to hold the king of diamonds. He had passed his partner's opening club bid and had already shown up with the king-jack of that suit.

With another king he would surely have responded. Hence the diamond finesse represented no chance. The play of the ace allowed for the slim chance that East would hold the singleton king.

FORECASTED WATER SUPPLY AS PERCENT OF THE 1958-72 15 YEAR AVERAGE

SNOW WATER DEPTHS AS PERCENT OF 1958-72 15 YEAR AVERAGE FEBRUARY 1, 1975

N. Idaho snowpack over '74

SPOKANE (UPI) — The Federal Soil Conservation Service reported today that Northern Idaho snowpack is 2 percent greater now than in early 1974 when severe flooding occurred.

It was 11 months ago that unseasonal warm weather combined with heavy rains to melt the region's unusually heavy snowpack and cause in excess of $30 million in flood damage.

Robert Davis, snow survey supervisor for the federal agency, said the snowpack in the Spokane River drainage is 2 percent greater than last year and 122 percent greater than in 1973.

Davis said the heaviest accumulation of snow is at the lower elevations — about 3,000 to 3,500 feet — which he said "comes off fast" during heavy rains.

"There's always the potential for serious flooding here," Davis said, "but we don't anticipate it."

However, Davis said if weather conditions cause rapid melting, "then it will come."

The National Weather Service, meanwhile, reported that the past two days of warm weather and rains, the first in about a month, has not had any significant impact on river flows.

Both the St. Joe and Coeur d'Alene Rivers were reported to be up slightly today, but still well below flood stage, with cooler weather forecast for the next day or so.

Cow payment sought

CONCORD, N.H. (UPI) — A hunter thought Colton Chappell's registered black Angus cow looked like a deer so he shot it. Now Chappell wants the New Hampshire legislature to pay for it.

"I've been farming off and on for 50 years," the 65-year-old Chappell said, thumbing the suspenders running down his plaid shirt. "If they don't pay me the $700 she's worth, I'll put my land against hunters."

New Hampshire's fish and game department, liable for damage to livestock gunned down during hunting season, offered Chappell $500, but he said the cow was worth more.

Lawmakers said they'd think it over.

US land use laws draw fire

TREMONTON, Utah (UPI) — Saying those who own and operate land should have the major responsibility for its development, a Utah Farm Bureau Federation official Thursday called on citizens to prevent passage of federal land-use planning laws.

C. Booth Wallentine, the bureau's executive vice president, told the local association of the Federal Land Bank that land-use planning is needed, but "it can best be accomplished at the county or local level of government."

Many of the 92 newly elected representatives and 11 new senators believe the federal government should adopt land-use laws, so it is up to a major citizen effort" to prevent such action, he said.

He warned any federal law giving financial assistance to the states for land-use planning would carry with it certain controls over the planning process.

"Land-use planning should provide for the use of land resources and the environment in a manner that will preserve and protect these resources to meet the needs of our citizens," he said.

Wallentine said local officials who work with land owners are in a "much better position to determine the present and future needs in their communities."

Jimson weed banned

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — It has rank-smelling leaves, its fruit is prickly and the dictionary says it is "intensely poisonous" — enough to keep even the most enthusiastic naturalists away from the Jimson weed.

The state of Oregon decided Thursday it had had enough of the Jimson weed.

State of the semi-tropical plant has been banned by the state Board of Pharmacy, which said the weed is a serious threat to public health and safety.

Officials ordered a halt to sales after investigating reports of illness resulting from drinking a tea made from Jimson-weed. There were no deaths but hospitalization was required for 11 tea drinkers.

World DDT use increasing

©New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — Worldwide use of DDT is probably as high or higher today than it was more than a decade ago when United States production was at its peak, a scientist said here.

Use of the long-lived pesticide was almost totally banned in the United States in 1972 because of its potential hazards to men, animals, birds and fish. By that time it was so widely distributed throughout the world that traces of it could be found in virtually all types of living things.

DDT is still a worldwide problem and North American cannot be isolated from it, Dr. G.M. Woodwell, director of the ecosystems center of the Marine Biological Laboratory, Woods Hole, Mass., said.

In recent years, Woodwell said, the bulk of DDT use has shifted away from the temperate zone to the tropics. He said it continues to be a scientific and political challenge to the world.

In this country, use of the toxic pesticide had been declining throughout much of the 1960's even before the ban by the Environmental Protection Agency.

Restrictions were put on DDT use, Woodwell said, because it is toxic to many animal species, persistent in the soil and virtually uncontrollable once released into the environment. It is also soluble in fat and therefore accumulates in animals and man.

The scientist spoke at the Smithsonian Institution at a symposium on marine biological research sponsored by the National Institute of Environmental Health Sciences.

Woodwell said there are, currently, powerful efforts to bring about a reversal of the United States ruling on DDT. Some scientists are known to favor its use under controlled conditions on the grounds that the advantages would outweigh the hazards.

Woodwell said, however, the pesticide is unconditionally used on a major scale because it is so persistent and because it vaporizes from the ground and thus gets into the atmosphere where it can be widely distributed.

He said that studies have shown measurable amounts in the air over land that was last sprayed with the pesticide several years ago.

The relatively new evidence of its potential for vaporization, he said, make much less mysterious than it once seemed, the finding that DDT had spread to all regions of the earth, including the north and south poles.

Private vehicle usage dominant

By BERNARD BRENNER

UPI Farm Editor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Private cars will be the dominant form of transportation in rural America in the foreseeable future, a government study concluded.

But this leaves a pressing transportation problem for the elderly, the handicapped and the poor, who either cannot drive or cannot afford automobiles.

Agriculture Department analysts say this problem may grow worse as gasoline prices and the cost of operating automobiles continue to rise.

A companion study on rural transportation, prepared by the National Area Development Institute at Lexington, Ky., predicts that future growth of nonfarm industry in rural areas will increase the need for rural transit systems.

The report said lack of transportation is a prime factor in the failure of many rural people to get jobs when new industries open within commuting distance of their homes.

The Agriculture Department

Joins staff

MOSCOW — Betty Jean Turner has joined the staff of the University of Idaho Extension Service as family economics specialist.

The appointment, effective Feb. 1, was announced by Ruth Spidahl, state home economics leader.

She is married to Robert I. Turner, an associate professor in the UI College of Engineering.

Mrs. Turner fills the position vacated by Wilma Shyrack, extension home furnishings specialist, who retired Jan.

Advertisements: Less Up To 10 lbs. in 10 Days New Grapefruit Diet 'Pill' Gives Fast Weight Loss

BEVERLY HILLS (Special) — An "addictive" new lightweight diet has recently been developed featuring the use of a "grapefruit pill" that enables overweight people to quickly and easily become slim, trim and attractive. While still eating almost as much as you want.

The new, chewable (family-like) grapefruit pill puts an end to the inconvenient mess, loss of energy and eating half a grapefruit at every meal.

Happy testimonials from people all across the country claim "you save time and money while achieving more effective weight loss results with this handy new diet plan."

LOSE A POUND A DAY

Those who follow the simple grapefruit pill diet report an average loss of up to a pound a day and even more without strenuous exercise or starvation.

Fortified with Vitamin E and C, the new whole grapefruit extract pill and foods as prescribed by the diet, will, through natural action, act to help your body flush, allowing you to keep your weight down and figure in firm control.

Get All You Want

Best of all, you can still eat almost as much as you want of the "forbidden foods" like steak, lobster, chicken, fish, some sauces and gravies, bacon and eggs, and still lose weight.

Diet Now Available

To get a copy of this highly successful diet and grapefruit pill, send $5.00 for 10 day supply, for $8.00 for 20 day supply, or $10.00 for 30 day supply to GRAPEFRUIT PILL DIET, Dept. 17, Box 1118, Beverly Hills, Ca. 90213. DES use assailed

BOISE (UPI) — Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, Thursday criticized the U.S. Food and Drug Administration for inconsistency over its approval of the use of the chemical DES in birth control pills while preparing to reinstate a ban on using the substance in livestock feed.

McClure said the FDA will hold hearings next month on the use of the growth hormone in livestock production. An FDA ban on livestock use of DES was ordered in 1972 and 1973 but overturned by the federal courts 13 months ago.

He said in the case of the livestock ban, "We are talking about the absurd application of the law where literally the presence of DES in one part per billion or even one part per trillion in calves' liver would be reason for banning the use of the chemical. All this, even though FDA cannot begin to make a case that DES in livestock causes any problems whatsoever," McClure said.

Spud price looks good

MOSCOW — "Potatoes are a good, reasonably priced source of nutrition in the current situation."

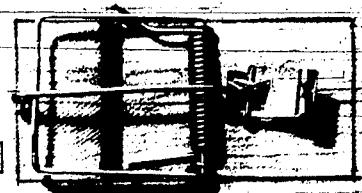

That claim for potatoes is made by Robert Sargent, University of Idaho extension agricultural economist in the College of Agriculture.

The "current situation" to which Sargent refers is that fresh potato prices, to consumers are much less than they were a year ago. The same is true for stocks held in storage by growers. At mid-January, prices at the farm level were about half that during the same period in 1974.

Sargent gives credit for the lower prices to "the weakness that dominates the overall U.S. economy" plus a bumper potato crop last fall.

Full production nationally was 13 per cent above last year and nine per cent greater in the western states.

Building a better mousetrap isn't that easy, but any home can be made into a better HEAT TRAP

Mousetraps aren't our line. Energy savings are. So let us help you plan some energy saving by building yourself a better heat trap.

Since more than one half of your home energy use is for heating, it could save you money, too.

All you have to do is insulate. Thoroughly. That includes weather stripping, and double doors and windows.

Idaho Power recommends 10 inches of insulation overhead (R30), six inches in the floor (R21), and four inches in the walls (R12). The "R" measures insulation's resistance to heat escape.

Hold down heat loss and save money. It could pay for a goodly supply of cheese. Plan your heat trap today!

RANCHERS IRRIGATION, INC.

IN IDAHO SINCE 1963 The Mebco "RAINIRCLE" Is still the leader in center pivot sales & technology.

- ☆ Over 500 "Rainircle" machines in operation in Idaho.
- ☆ In 1963, Mebco designed and built the first undertruss, ball joint electric drive pivot machine in the U.S.
- ☆ Direct factory to farmer sales - eliminates dealer - makes "Rainircle" $3,000 to $4,000 less than other makes who deal thru a dealer.

NOTE: Almost all other companies make only a 10 tower machine to keep their price down. (Mebco also makes a 10 tower "Rainircle" for soils it will work on). The tower weight of a 10 tower pivot is approximately 5600 pounds, the tower weight of a 14 tower "Rainircle" is 2800 pounds, almost half that of a ten tower machine. As a result rutting is almost nil on a properly designed "Rainircle." — MOST OTHER COMPANIES HAVE EXTREME RUTTING PROBLEMS. — WE DO NOT!!

- ☆ Longer gear and motor life expectancy because of lighter wheel load.
- ☆ Largest tires in the industry. 11.2x24 are standard with an optional of 14.9x24. All new traction tread - Not Retread.
- ☆ Forward and reverse at the touch of a button for straighter alignment.
- ☆ G.E. pivot tower panel, finest in the industry, with nine trouble lights and pivot and power voltmeter built-in.
- ☆ 6 5/8" diameter, 10 gauge pipe used on all standard 90' or 105' spacing (14 and 12 tower systems).

Investment credit plus depreciation makes it easy to purchase your Mebco Rainircle system. Financing can be arranged for purchase or lease up to 10 years.

Horoscope

Carroll Righter

FORECAST FOR SUNDAY, FEBRUARY 16, 1975

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Morning favors self-improvement, whether spiritual, mental or physical. Later, get into details necessary to have a successful coming-week by scheduling time and activities wisely.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Get a good pal to aid with some personal desire, but later investigate property matters. Attend a social affair. Study bills.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) In a.m., plan how to make your life more as you want it. Later, gad about socially and have a good time. Handle tasks early.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Call on friends early and make arrangements necessary to round out your mutual affairs satisfactorily. Study ways to increase success.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Handle outside matter in a.m., then enjoy the company of good friends. State that public aim to an official for support.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Out to places where you can add to your present wisdom, then concentrate on civic matters. One with different ideas can be helpful.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Your hunches are right in a.m., so follow them. Later, study into new interests that can be very remunerative. Plan trip.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Morning is fine for sitting down with allies and planning the future more intelligently. Reconcile with one who opposes you easily now.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Get into those tasks that are of help to others early and they are soon behind you. Then reach a fine understanding with associate.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Get those creative ideas well planned in a.m. Spend some time in meditation. Show affection for mate who feels blue.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Come to a better understanding with kin in a.m., then off with them to pleasant activities. Get rid of tension and expend talents.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Attend spiritual meetings that are helpful, then get your abode in finer order. Riding favored. Handle personal correspondence.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Study some way to become more affluent. Then be with congenials for intelligent planning and conversation. Find out exactly what your true position is.

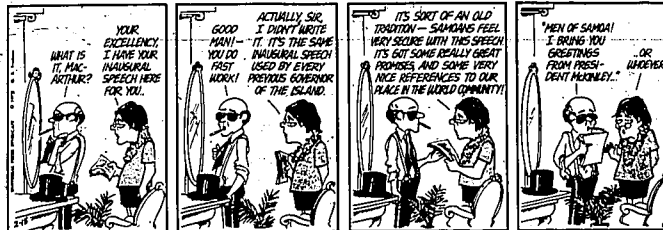

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will want to have the best of everything while young and could put money above all else unless you teach spiritual values early. Then the success here can be phenomenal, and rightly so. Otherwise, your progeny could have a difficult time and also go in the wrong direction to appease the hunger for wealth. Teach to be altruistic, for by being so, he or she is best helped. Sports are fine.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Whale oil is only taxed if it's imported from a foreign country. That's what the tax court ruled. But whales don't live in foreign countries. That's what a whale catcher testified. The court thought it over, and said, all right, from now on every whale takes the nationality of the flag that flies aboard the ship that catches it. So we have Norwegian whales, Russian whales, Japanese whales, so on. Only whales that can be classified as world citizens anymore are the whales that don't get caught.

YOUNG LADY, if you want to be attractive to a man, do as follows: 1. Look alive. 2. Forget your shyness. 3. Be responsive. 4. Ignore your faults. Such is the advice of a Love and Authority of some renown.

THIRD most popular hobby now — after coin collecting and photography — is tropical fish.

BODY'S WORTH
In 1936, the chemicals in the average person's body were worth 98 cents. In 1969, they were worth $3.50. Today, they're said to be worth $5.60.

ELEPHANTS engineered the early roads of Africa just as the buffalo did hereabouts.

AM REPEATEDLY asked the origin of the name California. Much debate about that. But most historians now think it came from an old Spanish romance written by Montalvo in 1510. A fictional island so named therein was described as a paradise that glittered with gold and jewels. Cortez was first to apply the name to the real southern California area, it's believed.

IRVING
Here's a letter from an unmarried lady who says she used to be terrified when alone in her apartment, but not anymore. Now she keeps a well-dressed male mannikin seated under a reading lamp, his back to her frontroom window. With drapes cracked just slightly, that dummy looks enough like a household guest to ward off robbers and rapists, she thinks. She says she's no longer scared, but she's getting a little concerned about her own state of mind, because she has caught herself talking to it lately. She calls it Irving.

MAJOR HOOPLE

MOSCOW — Winners in the University of Idaho School of Communications photography contest were on display last week at the UI Student Union Building.

First prize in the adjustable camera classification went to Del Lusk, 1728. Ripon, Lewiston, while first prize in the non-adjustable classification was shared by Mary Ann Baranco, Caldwell, and Patty Haines, Lewiston, both University of Idaho students.

Lusk won with a high contrast view of a man on a city street. The Baranco photograph was an angled view of a tree, and the Haines photograph was an urban alley scene.

Second prize in the adjustable camera classification went to Gene Lombardo, 415 E. 7th, Moscow, and third prize to Richard Naskali, 238 1/2 N. Home St., Moscow. The third prize in the non-adjustable classification went to Nanci Lombardo, 234 1/2 Lauder, Moscow.

TOP ENTRIES in the University of Idaho School of Communications photo contest include this street scene by Del Lusk, Lewiston. Prize money was supplied by the Lewiston Morning Tribune.

Mariner 10 on last Mercury pass

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — Mariner 10 was bound today for its third and last productive flyby of Mercury, to investigate the magnetic field that scientists discovered to their surprise.

On its first rendezvous with Mercury, on March 23 of last year, Mariner discovered a weak magnetic field. Mercury revolves so slowly — only recently it was believed it did not rotate at all — that scientists thought it could generate no magnetic field.

They hope the third pass will to Mercury. The information sent back to earth by the spacecraft is considered invaluable, since Mercury is the closest planet to the sun and usually hidden in the solar glare.

It dropped into an orbit around the sun that brought it back to Mercury for a second pass last Sept. 21, coming to within 31,000 miles of the planet to give overall picture views of the surface. The March 16 pass will bring the spacecraft to within 193 miles.

MEN — WOMEN

Some of the best college students are veterans.

Let's face it. Not everyone wants to step right into college after high school.

Maybe you'd rather wait a few years. To travel, to learn a skill, to find out what you can do, so mature, for you, today's Army can be a meaningful alternative to college.

We offer challenge, physical and mental. We offer over 2000 job-training courses to try out for. We offer a choice of location, Stateside or abroad.

If you decide to start college while you're in, we'll pay up to 75% of your tuition. And when your enlistment's over, you'll be eligible for 36 months financial assistance at colleges throughout the country.

DID YOU KNOW...

- 1 DID YOU KNOW...the value of your trade-in is at a 15-year high?
- 2 DID YOU KNOW...the 1975 models average up to 35% better gas mileage than older models?
- 3 DID YOU KNOW...maintenance costs are lower on 1975 models because of solid state ignition, engine improvements, and sealed bearings?
- 4 DID YOU KNOW...the 1975's are better values? Most are equipped with steel belted radial tires guaranteed for 40,000 miles of trouble free driving.
- 5 DID YOU KNOW...extended credit past 36 months is available through many dealers?
- 6 DID YOU KNOW...the 1975's have cleaner more efficient engines with exhaust cleaning by the new catalytic converter?
- 7 DID YOU KNOW...the costs of parts and labor to refurbish your present car, tires, tune-up, etc., make the 1975 models an even better buy?
- 8 DID YOU KNOW...your area new car dealers are ready to make some of the most attractive offers on 1975 models that you have seen in years?
- 9 DID YOU KNOW...your local new car dealers have the best selection of 1975 models, styles and options to choose from right now on their showroom floors?

FACT:

Back in the "good old days," 1954 for example, the average buyer spent 5.1 months of his income to pay for a standard size car.

Today the same comparable car takes only 4.4 months' pay and the buyer gets a lot more automobile in the bargain.

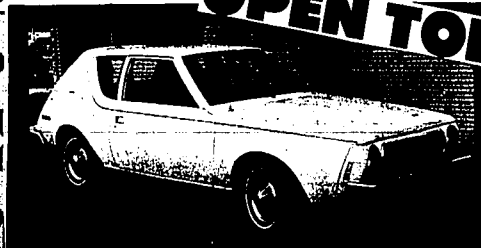

Inflation has increased the value of your present car. It's worth more in trade than you might think. Get a FREE appraisal from any of the value-conscious local dealers.

Valley Comment: President Ford's budget

QUESTION: What do you think of President Ford's proposed $52 billion deficit budget designed to stimulate the economy?

Ed Malone, Twin Falls:

"I think that he also proposed to Congress higher defense spending which should be lowered and added to what he's proposing to bring the economy out of the recession.

This has been the toughest time I've seen for people to find a job. I think it (the deficit budget) should be approved.

Barry Hamilton, Twin Falls:

"I think it's nonsense. As far as I'm concerned our main problem has been and will continue to be inflation. Until the government minds its own matters we're going to have to continue to live with inflation."

Lois Fisher, Twin Falls:

"I think it's a good idea to bring the economy out of the recession. But how is he going to do it by spending so much money. All of it is going overseas and none of it is staying home is the way I got it."

Mrs. Bill Jacky, Jerome:

"Why don't they stay within our budget. If they do that we would not be in the shape we're in today."

Richard Kopp, Twin Falls:

"I really can't say. I think he's crazy but he can do what he wants.

Should the country go deeper into debt? No, definitely not."

Cathy Hoops, Twin Falls:

"I'm $3 short this week. I know just how it feels."

Landscape home with trees which provide food

By GEORGE ABRAHAM LANDSCAPE WITH
FOOD PLANTS: If you're planning on landscaping your home this spring, why not use trees and shrubs that give you food as well as handsome foliage and flowers?

Let's start with dwarf fruit trees. They are an asset as an ornamental tree as well as a fruit producer. Try dwarf apricots, dwarf cherries, plums and peaches.

Dwarf-type trees are great—for the ranch, bungalow and two-story home, and are ideal where garden space is limited. Flowers are showy on all dwarfs, and the fruit is easy to pick. There's also a dwarf orange quince that makes a fine fruit landscape plant. Fruit is ideal for jellies and preserves.

How about a current bush or two. Leaves are nice and green and the plants produce large, dark red berries over a long season. Pixwell gooseberry turns pink when fully ripe, being attractive and very delicious. Both make good landscape plants in the foundation planting or along the border.

The filbert or hazelnut grows anywhere from 7 to 10 feet and makes a good border plant. Plant two for cross pollination. Each bush produces lots of easily-cracked nuts. The Chinese chestnut makes a good lawn tree (reed two) for shade. English walnuts and black walnuts are good shade trees and provide plenty of nuts for the family. Two are needed.

Few plants are prettier than the blueberry, planted as a hedge, in the foundation group, or in masses. The shiny wax-like leaves are green in summer and turn red in fall. A bush full of plants in the "jiffy pellets" often complained about the nylon netting, which was wrapped around the pots. It was too strong and roots had a hard time getting through. We experienced this problem time and again.

harder to tip over.

Folks who use any of the fibre growing pots have noticed that roots are confined inside, if the walls of the pots are dry. That's why it's a good idea to the tease the sides of the pots apart (without disturbing the roots) at time of setting plants into the garden.

You have to figure a little on the cost of the dressing, but with a little vinegar you can make your own at a small cost.

Incidentally, cabbage is one of the oldest vegetables grown. The term cabbage is derived from the English word for small cabbages, cewlorts. Cabbage is high in vitamin K and U, and is helpful in healing ulcers. FREE: Want to make as good a cabbage and sauerkraut? Send me a self-addressed, stamped envelope for our booklet, Recipes with Cabbage.

Green Thumb

All types of organic pots (peat, paper, pressed manure, etc.) are a great invention since you can set out pot and all, without sending the plants into shock.

SAVE MONEY ON FOOD: In these days of high food prices home makers are beginning to realize that the price of convenience is pretty high. We're speaking of "pre-packaged" foods which are pre-washed, pre-peeled, pre-cooked, pre-mixed, pre-packaged and pretty soon they'll be pre-digested for us.

These pre-packaged foods may be convenient and may save us time in the kitchen, but they add to Wash the soil in the pot before you set it out. If you're looking for a good vine to shade you and provide fruit, grow grapes. They take little care, some pruning in the spring and "little or no spraying." Commercial growers have to spray. Elderberry makes a good border plant. Don't forget the Hansen Bush cherry for shrub hedge. Fruit is tasty for fresh eating or jam.

We plan to use the no-net peat pellet this spring and will be able to tell you more about them. They are useful for bedding plants, potted tomatoes, etc., and they are ideal for rooting geraniums, poinsettias, azaleas and other house plants. There are two sizes: Peat "cylinders" are 2x3 1/2, and another 1 1/2 by 3 1/2. They both have flat bottoms making them

Take for example, one slow, heavily-made it costs about 40 cents a pound. Cabbage (fresh) costs about 10 cents a pound. At this rate, cabbage costs

CANADIANS VISIT NASSAU, Bahamas (UPI) — Almost 60,000 Canadians visited the Bahamas during the first quarter of 1974, compared with just under 40,000 in the same period two years earlier, the Central Bank reported.

The bank said Canadians represented 514,663 visitors in the island nation during the first three months of this year.

Body reacts to 40th birthday

By Erma Bombach

Elvis Presley has just endeavored himself to me by disappearing on his 40th birthday and refusing to come out until he gets it all together.

I was in seclusion for a year and a half before I felt I could adjust to the condition.

No one, unless they've been there, can appreciate the physical and emotional traumas of reaching 40. Your body reacts like a steam iron on the last day of warranty. It does not glow.

As the second hand swept around on that grim day in February, signifying my birth, my eyes went, I couldn't read the sale tags on dresses or menus unless they fell on the floor. And on one day I cooked an 11 pound turkey for six hours when I should have cooked a six dollar turkey for 11 hours.

Two hours later the teeth went. Fillings that had served me for years fell out while I was eating pudding. I became a "standing" at the dentist.

At Wit's End

"The body? I could have sued it for non-support and won. Muscles that had been with me for life either fell or quit."

I became a lumpy bundle of defensiveness. One afternoon, I was under the dryer in the beauty shop leaning through one of those magazines where the models look at you like they've just taken a harsh laxative. Then I saw a headline, "DON'TS FOR AFTER 40." "Don't wear pink eye shadow. Don't wear red lipstick or nail polish. Don't wear bright, diagonal patterns. Don't wear open-toed shoes." The list must have been a page long.

"Out loud I snarled, 'Do you mind if I chew gum?'"

A woman sitting next to me, looked over at the article and smiled. "Remember dear, you are only as old as you feel."

I almost smacked her across the mouth with my Medicare application.

Everyone comes to grips with age 40 in his or her own private way. Some people develop a holding pattern at age 37 until they can handle it. Some are resentful and make obscene phone calls to the Osmond Brothers. Others accept it for what it is, a punishment from God for not titling to the church.

I rather like the Elvis Presley approach to 40. Just go to your room, refuse to answer the door, wallow in self-pity, and pray for a miracle drug to cure it.

Hormones may solve dog wetting

Question: Our little old dog has become an awful nuisance about wetting... in the house, especially at night. It's always been a perfect lady (sprayed) until recently. We don't think she means to do it because she seems so ashamed but she can't hold it. We have tried taking her out more often but we need to sleep too. Is there anything we can do?

Answer: Definitely. Start by offering her a ride to the doctor's office. Expect her to accept because incontinence (loss of voluntary control over urination) is upsetting and confusing to a fastidious little old lady.

While there are many causes of incontinence, a hormonal imbalance would be a good guess in this case. Sometimes late in life a spayed female dog will be down to her last female hormone. Sex hormones exert their influence on the "involuntary" nerve system and on smooth muscle of the bladder sphincter.

The sphincter is the "gate" that opens and shuts to keep urine where it belongs. A lack of the female hormones can cause the "gate" to swing loose and urine to slip by. The answer is oral replacement of the missing hormones with a dose large enough to do the job and small enough to prevent creating a femme fatale. Therapy may be given intermittently the rest of the dog's life.

Question: I have two kittens, 5 months old. They are apartment cats. My question is: Is there any way to leave these two untrained and semi-wild while my husband and I go home for the holidays? If I put lots of water and dry cat food out will it be enough? We don't know anyone in this town. My husband is in the Air Force and we can't afford a kennel. Any suggestions?

Merry Pet

Answer: Cats are reasonable beings and have proven they can ration themselves as well or better than other animals or even people. While a dog will eat everything he can at once and then be hungry later, most cats won't. There are cases of cats having survived shipwrecks solely because they took stock and had sense enough to ration what they had until help arrived. So, your cats could make do on plenty of dry chow and access to fresh water or the slowest dripping faucet or the toilet (they won't drink stale water), but that's not all animals require.

What if one became ill the day after you left, or got caught somewhere, or knocked a piece of furniture over on himself? If your husband works there, he must know someone. Chances are that someone has a child who would be an addition to his allowance and the chance to check on your animals. Whatever, I'd certainly arrange to have someone go in to check on the cat daily.

Question: Enjoy your column, let's hear more from our canine friends! Incidentally, regarding the question concerning mates for females, males at large and puppies for sale, there are some who can be located through Dog World mag., or by calling local clubs connected with your breed of dog. However, is it known there is local service providing all these needs?

I had occasion to mate my female poodle, not wishing to go to great expense, but being within limited funds, I ran across an ad under pets — call Venus Canine Dating — thought I'd try.

I not only mated my female dog very well, but registered another stud for service. These people are courteous and went to great lengths to find the perfect mate for my young lady, then reminded me they would list puppies for sale when they were born. Viva Venus!! The fee was so reasonable!

Answer: Sounds as reasonable as any way of falling in love. Unfortunately, many towns haven't been endowed with Canine Computer Couplers yet. This letter comes from El Paso, Texas. If you have a question about your pet, write to The Merry Pet, in care of the Times-News.

Hailey P.E. teacher practices as he preaches

By KIT ARMSTRONG
Times-News writer

HAILEY — For a physical education instructor he makes a pretty good biology teacher, they say at Wood River High School in Hailey.

In fact, there are some kids who have transferred out of Bob Shea's physical education class. It's too tough.

Others thrive on it, and some laughingly call it Staling Shea behind his back. But whomever you talk to, they all agree — it will make a man of you if you live through it.

And 25 Wood River High School students have chosen to take that gamble.

Shea feels that man should learn to face physical challenges so that he will be equipped to stand up to other challenges as he goes through life, and his physical education class exemplifies this philosophy.

"There are only a few years when our bodies have this great physical potential," he points out. "We should take advantage of that time. We pass over these years, and one day we wake up and we're through."

"As far as the PE program," he continues, "it's also important to develop a competitive attitude. People are often afraid to compete and if a young kid doesn't learn to compete, he's not equipped to face life where there's always competition."

"This carries over to school work, too. Kids involved in school sports generally make pretty good grades."

"There's quite a movement now in some states to make it mandatory to teach the lifelong sports in schools — like tennis and golf. I'm against it. The average person has such a short time to become involved in organized sports and team activity, as well as body-building exercise. If a kid has reached his physical potential, then he can take up any sport later."

Originally from Ohio, Shea first taught in Montana before moving to Idaho 20 years ago with his wife, Jo Ann.

"This was just a spot on the map, then," he laughs. "It seemed like a good place to live and raise a family. It's rural, and yet not too far from the mainstream in Boise."

He first taught sciences and coached at Carey High School. He has been at Wood River High School for 13 years, teaching biology and physical education.

Two of his children, Sue, 17, and John, 16, are students there. The third, Robert, 13, is in junior high school.

Not a believer in the familiar maxim: "Do as I say, not as I do," Shea is a living example of what he teaches — joining in all of the students' exercises and sports activities as they run over the surrounding countryside when the weather is good, and work out in the gymnasium during the winter.

"We first warm up by jogging," he explains. "Then we do laps alternating carrying people of equal weight piggy back."

After that they do the same thing with the fireman's carry.

Next they pair up, one of each pair running the mile (20 laps of the gym) while the other keeps count of the laps and yells encouragement to his partner before switching positions. Shea runs three-quarters of each mile with each group before stopping to time them as they finish.

Though the boys are gasping for breath before they are through, they eagerly line up to learn their times from Shea, hoping to have improved over their last efforts.

Four girls who have recently joined the class do as many of the requirements as they can.

After the mile the class "relaxes" by playing basketball on several courts.

Shea feels that through this kind of exercise the boys can build up their strength and endurance and improve their cardio-vascular systems.

His class is relatively small, as at Wood River High School physical education is an elective. Only one year of PE is required in Idaho high schools.

"We're all basically lazy, but these kids come in because they want to work," he says proudly. "Teachers should work out, too. They could come in during their lunch hours. It would be a healthy regime for them."

Wood River High has five letter sports: basketball, football, wrestling, cross-country running and track. Shea coaches the wrestling team. Girls can compete in track, cross country and volleyball. Skiers ski competitively with the Sun Valley Ski Education Foundation team, open to all Blaine County students.

The school is soon to have new buildings, hopefully ready for occupancy by September of 1978, according to Shea. The plans have just gone out for bids.

"We hope to have three years of PE required by then," he says.

"Needless to say," he concludes with smiling eyes, "I really believe in physical education!"

FERRY SERVICE
NORTH SYDNEY, Nova Scotia (UPI) — The 1,200-passenger ferry Mariner Nautica, with deck space for 200 automobiles, is now operating between North Sydney and Port aux Basques, Newfoundland. The 30-foot ferry was chartered for five years by the Canadian National Railways' East Coast Marine Service.

Bard from Brittany aids Celtic harp popularity

PARIS UPI — Ten years ago the strains of Alan Stivell's Celtic harp echoed only at village festivals, pubs and farmyard gatherings in the Brittany region of France.

Now the music of Stivell's new form of rock-folk based on ancient Celtic themes is drawing both young and old to concert halls throughout France.

Stivell, 31, the long-haired and bearded "Bard from Brittany," has helped the growing popularity of the Celtic cult spread in Britain, Germany and North America.

"It was through my father that I became aware of the Celtic culture and learned how to play the Celtic harp," said Stivell, whose soft spoken speech contrasts with his resonant singing.

Stivell's father studied old drawings to reconstruct the Celtic harp, an instrument that disappeared more than 400 years ago.

The Celtic culture once included Ireland, Wales,

Cornwall in the southwest of England, the Isle of Man in the Irish Sea, Scotland and Stivell's own homeland, Brittany, in the west of France.

Stivell's interest in Brittany's Celtic background came after years of French cultural domination.

Until recently, Stivell said in an interview in Paris, it was not fashionable to speak Breton, the language of Brittany.

"The Breton had lost his pride," Stivell said. "I wanted to restore that pride."

"So I took my harp in hand, so to speak."

Stivell started out on his musical quest at the age of 10 when he joined a local boy scout "bagad," or folk song group.

"At that time, we could never imagine this type of music ever being accepted by a non-Celtic audience," Stivell said. "And most of those interested in Celtic music were only concerned with the classical forms."

"It was only with the advent of the folk wave in the middle '60s that I realized there was a chance for Celtic music to reach a wider audience."

"There are Celtic tendencies in most forms of music. Rock, American folk, The Beatles, Joan Baez and the Byrds. In 1966 Stivell had his chance to play to a non-Breton audience at the Hootenanny at the American Center in Paris.

"In my subsequent performances at the American Center, I worked on Celtic variations to show the similarities between Celtic and American folk music," he said.

"People were pleasantly surprised, I think."

Three years ago he gathered together his own band of five other musicians — a drummer, a bass guitarist, an acoustic guitarist, a fiddler and an organist.

Stivell himself expertly plays the harp, the bag pipes, the Irish flute and the bombarde (a short oboe-type instrument). He sings in Breton, French and English.

Stivell's music can be solemn, mournful, moving, lively or exuberant. It ranges from the solo ballad on the harp to the fast moving Irish jig with full backing. At a recent Paris concert he had people leaping from their seats to dance the An Dro, a Breton square dance, in front of the stage.

"I play both traditional as well as free variations using modern equipment such as the electric guitar," he said. "I wanted to progress from pure folklore, that is, the music of tradition, to the contemporary folk song. And then, even more, to completely free compositions, but still retaining the basic Celtic elements."

Alan Stivell plays his Celtic harp in concert hall. His new form of rock-folk music based on ancient Celtic themes is drawing crowds in Paris. From drawings his father reconstructed the harp that disappeared more than 400 years ago. (UPI)

Liberals want to 'destabilize'

NEW YORK — From the National Council of Churches up on Riverside Drive in N.Y.C., to the Episcopal Churchmen For South Africa (Toward Freedom in Southern Africa) down in Greenwich Village, the liberal Protestant establishment here seems almost unanimously devoted to the "destabilizing" of the governments of South Africa and Rhodesia.

This ecclesiastical establishment includes the national headquarters of the United Methodistists, the United Presbyterians, the United Church of Christ and the Episcopal Church.

The Episcopal Church's Executive Council, for example, voted in December to use its stock in IBM to issue a resolution asking that IBM stop selling computers to South Africa. The Episcopal Council even voted, 16-12, to deny "any corporation against whom resolutions are being directed, the right to have responsible representatives present in order to defend itself."

This policy, of what might be called cloistered deliberations, was defended by Richmond, Virginia's purportedly liberal rector, the Rev. John Spon. During a telephone interview, that Rev. John Spon told us that he knew of no such Episcopal resolutions which asked IBM or General Motors or any other corporation which the Episcopalians have been supporting to pull doing business with any other African nations.

This policy is indeed strange, considering the racial discrimination elsewhere in Africa such as the expulsion of more than 60,000 Asians from Uganda. Or, there is the massive slaughter of blacks, such as the more than 500,000 massacred in South Sudan, or the 75,000 murdered in Burundi, or the 2,000,000 lost, who were systematically starved by the black government of Nigeria.

Churchmen for South Africa.

A more logical explanation may lie in the fact that Rhodesia and South Africa have between them the vast majority of the Western world's known mineral resources in gold, uranium, diamonds, manganese, asbestos and chrome (which is essential in the manufacture of stainless steel).

Both the Soviet Union and Peking have been intensively active among several of Africa's black work for or own stock in these corporations. This inactivity may be due either to a lack of organization by which to protest, or a guilt complex, which allows the unfair harassment of one's employer—by ecclesiastics who are using one's church offerings to finance terrorism.

Different

BIRMINGHAM, England (UPI) — Even for a country where strikes are virtually an everyday occurrence, this was something different.

More than 4,000 local government employees took the day off Monday to protest they were being paid two million more.

An Avon County Council spokesman said an overgenerous computer was responsible for the huge paychecks. An assistant janitor, for example, received $5,750 for a week's work, and a cook who normally earns $41 earned $641.

About 30 strikers marched to Bristol City Hall carrying signs and banners. "Our members cannot rely on getting their proper pay any more," an official of the National Union of Public Employees said. "Hundreds and hundreds of people are being affected every week."

Inside Religion

Nothing in South African or Rhodesian history can approximate the massive proportions of these atrocities, which somehow escaped the attention — if not the concern — of the Episcopal high command (at least regarding stockholders' resolutions). So have the one-party-only Arab or black dictatorships which exist all over Africa.

How can the National Council of Churches, as well as the various liberal Protestant denominations, overlook these atrocities all over the rest of Africa (not to mention the enormous religious oppression in both the Soviet Union and Mainland China) in order to focus all indignation upon South Africa and Rhodesia?

"Because these are white racist countries," explained William Johnson, head of the Episcopal governments, whose current push for an all-black central and southern Africa is an ideal vehicle for eventual communist control of these strategic minerals.

In the U.S., militant blacks have been successful in their intent of taking over the power structure of the National Council of Churches, whose Interreligious Foundation For Community Organization (IFCO) has been a leading financier of black African Terrorist groups, while the council's Corporate Information Center continues its harassment of U.S. firms who do business with South Africa.

Yet there seems to have been little or no protest from the Episcopalians, Methodists, Presbyterians or members of the United Church of Christ who either DIFFERENT TEXTURES do a lot more than just offer a variety of carpeting scene. There is no such thing as a "best" texture for every purpose, and each may function well under special circumstances.

Shag is at or near the top of the popularity poll today, but it is not all things to all persons. Some find it too casual or informal in the very long lengths, and harder to vacuum. Happily there are short shag, too, so there's shag to please any taste. But you may be happier with another texture on stairways, for instance, where all the traffic is concentrated.

Loops and twists come in all styles and lengths. They make very durable carpet textures, and are thus practical in rooms that take a beating or that have limited traffic lanes because of the room's arrangement or furniture. But remember that some fibers, such as nylon, wear longer than others, so texture is not the only consideration.

Loops and twists show very little shading. Plushes do. They are like velvets in that characteristic, as they are in general appearance. And they are across velvet or a plush carpet to see what we mean. Many homeowner's and designers love this look of shading or shadowing, but others don't. Check your own reaction before choosing plush.

New use for palace

Abandoned palace will house Picasso museum

BY ALINE MOSBY
PARIS (UPI) — An abandoned 17th Century palace in eastern Paris will become France's Picasso Museum next year, with more than 300 works of the late Pablo Picasso on display.

It will be the first national museum to open in Paris since the Museum of Modern Art 39 years ago.

The museum will be the second Picasso museum in the world, larger than the one in Barcelona, Spain. It marks only the second time France has devoted a museum to one artist. A national museum for Marc Chagall opened in Nice in 1973.

Mitchel-Guy, France's secretary of state for cultural affairs, announced Jan. 21 he had made a deal with Picasso's widow. She agreed to give 300 of the artist's hitherto unexhibited sculptures, drawings, lithographs and paintings for a new Picasso museum rather than pay a whopping inheritance tax.

Guy's assistant, Françoise Bellieue, said a commission appointed by the directors of French museums will select the works from the more than 1,000 Picasso left when he died without a will in 1973.

For a museum, authorities chose one of the unsung gems of Paris, the Hotel Aubert de Fontenay, a mansion abandoned in the 19th Century and bought by the city of Paris 10 years ago.

The mini-chateau stands on Rue Thorigny in the Marais, which was a wealthy residential district of Paris in the 17th Century. The Marais deteriorated into a factory and slum district in the 20th Century and only since 1960 has begun to be restored to its former glory.

The Hotel was built in 1656 by architect Jean Boullier de Bourges for De Fontenay, a salt tax collector. At that time citizens were taxed according to how much salt they owned.

Parisians thus call it the Palace Hotel Salt Mansion.

Walls curve around the paved courtyard graced by two huge stone sphinxes. Off the marble floored entry hall stretches a staircase with a wrought iron banister. The ceiling above it drips with sculpture stone figures. The staircase alone is worth one star in the Michelin guidebook.

Today the sculpted ceilings and massive doors are gray with grime. The garden is a handball stadium and across the street clangs ring out from a junkyard.

Bernard Vitry, government architect and inspector for the monuments of France, has launched the rescue of the Palace by building a new roof.

"It should be one of the great tourist attractions of Paris," Vitry said, poring over architect's drawings hung on the stained walls.

The collection of Picasso's works is the second windfall France has gained since the painter's death. The widow earlier gave the Louvre Museum Picasso's private collection of about 40 works by other painters.

Louvre officials said they hoped to open the collection to the public this year in a special room. Paris newspapers say the dubious quality of some of the work has held up the exposition.

Family contracts keep Utah runaways at home

By LIDIA LESZCZYNSKI
SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Family contracts are keeping many runaways at home these days.

Studies indicate that the contract approach to juvenile delinquency is twice as effective as more traditional methods.

The contracts are part of a "short-term behavioral family systems intervention" program which works on the theory juvenile delinquents do not represent the problem but are part of maladaptive family systems," says project director Dr. James Alexander, of the University of Utah.

In other words delinquency is only part of an over-all family problem. The program aims at teaching family members to negotiate changes in each other's behavior. For example, the son or daughter will agree not to run away from home in return for the parents' promise not to meddle in the child's social life.

"This is much more powerful than threats or punishment," Alexander said.

Studies show the three-to-five-week program has a failure rate of only 26 percent, well below the 50 to 70 percent figures recorded by comparison groups involved in traditional "offender-oriented" programs.

It involves bringing the family together within a day after such "soft" crimes as running away, smoking pot, shoplifting etc., and getting the conflicts out into the open, working toward a compromise.

Alexander got the idea for the program six years ago while doing research on delinquency for a juvenile court system in Utah.

"We only try to get them to do what normal, well-adjusted families do in their interaction," the psychologist said.

His research has shown normal families tend to be more supportive of their relatives, and to give and take information during a conversation.

On the other hand, Alexander said, delinquent families resort to game playing, sarcasm, defensiveness, dogmatism, superiority and indifference.

They also use phrases such as "Not in this house, you don't," or "Because I'm your father, that's why" — more often than do normal families.

To pinpoint major conflicts within delinquent families, program participants are asked "pointed" but seemingly impersonal questions during their first session: "Should a young man serve in the Army?" or "Who should make decisions in a curfew?"

From there, videotaped sessions are then compared to those of normal families, and analyzed for the most effective means to bring about changes in relationships.

I-80 control CB operators care

Jean Burns transmits message

BY LORAYNE O. SMITH
Times-News Writer

TWIN FALLS — There are still people who care. And if the people happen to be citizen band radio operators they can put their good intentions to practical applications.

Not all the CB radio fans belong to the I-80 Control group, but those who do in Magic Valley are enthusiastic about how it allows them to be good neighbors in the best sense.

While the name stems from Interstate 80, the control group is concerned with safety and helping drivers along all highways throughout the US and Canada.

Originating a little more than a year ago at Ft. Morgan, Colo., the I-80 Control now has more than 4,000 members throughout 35 states and several provinces of Canada, according to Jack Holmes, Kimberly, Canadian field representative.

He estimates there are probably some 1,500 I-80 Control members throughout Idaho, some 300 of whom are Magic Valley residents. Among the most enthusiastic local members are Mr. and Mrs. Ray Burns, Twin Falls, who keep their CB radio on around-the-clock during bad weather.

The Burns have friends throughout the United States they never have seen because of their hobby.

Principal concern for CB operators is to help drivers with whatever problems come up. Giving directions through town and inviting the diesel truck drivers in for coffee is the everyday occurrence.

But the kinds of problems reflect the wide spectrum of human relations, and the Burns recall such incidents as a man who was bitten by a dog, which later was found to be rabid. Within minutes, because of the CB operators, the man was located driving near Pendleton, Ore., and informed, he must get medical attention to save his life.

In another instance a child had been given the wrong medicine and the parents were notified in time to avoid a tragedy.

For the uninitiated, who may wonder about contrasts between the ham operators, whose communication activity has been widely publicized throughout the years, and the CB radio people, there are definite differences.

The main technical difference is one of range. The CB radios are licensed by the Federal Communications Commission on 2700 megacycles whereas ham radios operate on higher frequencies.

The CB radios operate on 5 watts and have a hearing range of 100 to 150 miles, whereas all readers are familiar with the image of the lonely ham operator whiling away the late evening hours chatting with his counterpart in Australia, since these operate on 200 to 300 wattage.

Thus the CB radio operator is confined to a definite geographical area — in Twin Falls from Bliss to Burley. Some people employ this communication media solely for their own business use, such as farmers who have widespread operations or business people who need direct communication with their office or while driving.

But the I-80 Control members concentrate their use of the CB equipment primarily on the Good Samaritan cause, and in doing so often prove helpful to law enforcement officers.

Sike Patrolman Jim Whitehead, whose handle as "Hooker" is familiar to CB operators, points out that "the more eyes we have the more efficient we can be."

Some law enforcement officers have mobile CB units in their cars, simply as a hobby, but it is not mandatory. I-80 Control a diesel driver's loan on the air as this may "open him up for trouble."

Another more exciting aspect of how CB operators can help is when they report a known fugitive as headed south on a certain mile line on Highway 53, compared to another observer who has to take time to get to a "land line" (telephone to the uninitiated.)

Just last week, the patrolman said, a pickup stolen in Boise was quickly located in Mountain Home, thanks to CB operators, who transmit messages from one section of the country to another.

While some of the CB units are located in the big commercial trucks, and thus known as mobile units, the majority are "base stations" located in private homes.

But while these exciting situations, reminiscent of popular television programs, are the most appealing, by far the main thrust of the control group's efforts goes toward more mundane, but equally helpful information such as weather reports, accidents or "just a friendly howdy do."

officers, known as state and city representatives, caution their members not to add to the law officers or "smokeys" problems through well meaning, but over-zealous "broadcasting."

Immediate reporting of accidents by the citizen operators is one of the most helpful areas of cooperation — with the "smokeys," Whitehead says. But I-80 members are cautioned never to mention the location of an officer over the air for the obvious reason that this could aid anyone trying to evade the "law."

According to the organization's suggested code of ethics, "As traveling public, we don't know what that policeman is doing; he may be looking for a rapist and if we give his location we may help the fugitive escape as he may have a CB of his own. I don't think that we want that on our minds that we helped a fugitive escape."

Control members also are cautioned not to discuss the traditional "second mile" when necessary such as driving to assist stranded motorists or those in trouble. Small emergency loans are available to members for this purpose.

But it's not all emergencies. The CB operators are a close knit group, Mrs. Burns says. Members have social get-togethers not only locally, but travel many miles for jamborees. Their jackets display plaques from some of these gatherings. They also help fellow members who are in need.

Right now the local members hope to have a jamboree at the Twin Falls Fairgrounds June 20-22, if they can convince county commissioners their members will not create problems like those from other past mass gatherings in this area.

The I-80 control members even have something for the youngsters. It is called Junior 14, who have their own channel.

Plan jamboree

Wife beating seems tacitly accepted US custom

By CATHY L. TROST

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI) — The woman was pinned against a wall, a butcher knife poised at her throat. She was six months pregnant but her assailant slammed his fists into her stomach, again and again.

He kicked a chair onto her stomach and she blacked out. When she came to, he was still beating her.

The woman's assailant was not a stranger. He was her husband, 16, began beating her, she said, when she misplaced his cigarettes.

Assault reports like this can be found in police department files in almost every city in the nation.

Yet the phenomenon known as wife beating remains fogged by social prejudices and arbitrary laws. Arrests and convictions are rare.

Two University of Michigan law students recently completed an extensive study on wife assaults. The results are statistically imperfect but the impact is staggering.

Sue Eisenberg, 24, and Pat Micklow, 37, both third-year law students, titled their research study "The Assaulted Wife: 'Catch 22' Revisited."

"Wife beating is a misunderstood and tacitly accepted custom," they wrote. "It is burdened by social-humor, thoughtless tolerance and arbitrary applications of the law."

"It is an index of the devaluation of women in our society."

The pair said wife assaults are treated as a social problem, not a crime. Cases are buried in divorce, assault and homicide statistics, making it difficult to pinpoint the scope and frequency.

Starting in April, 1973, the researchers interviewed 20 women in two Michigan counties who had been beaten by their husbands. They also talked to police officers, prosecutors, judges and emergency room doctors.

The victims, identified only by age and occupation, revealed a startling range of horror stories.

"He used to kick me when I was down like a dog," one woman said. "If my clothes were tipped during the fight, he would make me sit and sew them right after the beating."

The wives ranged in age from 19 to 35. The researchers admitted the sample was heavily weighted to persons in the lower economic classes because of lack of access to women in the upper strata.

They emphasized wife beating straddles all occupations, levels of education, duration of marriage and family size.

Detroit Recorder's Court Judge Sue Borman said the middle- or upper-class woman is less likely to bring charges against her husband because of embarrassment.

"She has the ability to get away from the man, too,"

Judge Borman said, "more economic ability."

Miss Eisenberg and Mrs. Micklow said most cases of wife beatings probably are not reported to police because of three factors — humiliation, fear of reprisal, and the stumbling blocks women face along the legal path.

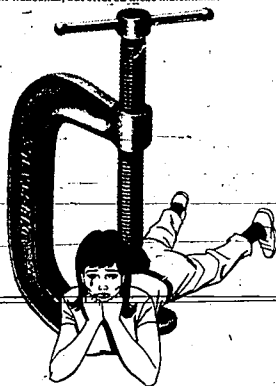

"The woman runs into barriers wherever she goes, the police, courts, prosecutors," Mrs. Micklow said. "There is an emphasis in this society on preserving the marriage at all costs."

The researchers said they were convinced from interviews with police officials that most officers are trained to view wife-beating as a family problem, better handled by a social worker or counselor, and to avoid making arrests.

Of the 20 women interviewed, 16 called the police. Officers responded with a house call in only half of those complaints. In only one case was an arrest made.

The victims insisted they did nothing to provoke the assaults, and most said when they tried to defend themselves, the beatings increased in intensity.

Miss Eisenberg and Mrs. Micklow said there is no way to estimate accurately how many wives are beaten by their husbands, but offered these indications:

Caught in vice?

Women have power of purse, but not politics

By JOSEPH ST. AMANT

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Women may be winning the battle for liberation on some fronts but they're not doing so hot running for public office, an expert election campaign analyst points out.

Hal Evry, a man with a quarter of a century of experience in managing campaigns and seeking what makes them tick, says maybe a Mary Tyler Moore or Dinah Shore might do better as office-seekers.

"They have name identification and that's what's needed," Evry said.

To show how poorly women have done, he cited these facts:

- Fewer than 2 per cent of all political office seekers last year were female and fewer than 2 per cent of these were elected.

- There are no women in the U.S. Senate, a drop of two from a decade ago.

- There are only 17 women in the entire 500-person U.S. Congress up four in 10 years.

- There is only one woman governor in the 50 states and only one woman lieutenant governor.

- In California, for example, there are only three women in a legislature of 161 persons and "this is exactly typical of all the states."

"This lack of success in politics has given the entire feminist movement a serious setback in terms of women's lib," Evry said. "And this is paradoxical indeed when you realize that more than half the magazines on newsstands are devoted exclusively to women and that 90 per cent of all daytime television is geared to women and that women cast 53 per cent of all votes in national elections."

In addition, he pointed out, women have the power of the purse — they own 54 per cent of all privately owned stock in U.S. corporations and they are beneficiaries of 80 per cent of all privately held life insurance.

"What's more, they live seven years longer than men," Evry has served as consultant in 350 campaigns

There is another factor which is the most important one — there are few women incumbents and incumbents win 95 per cent of all elections regardless of office, party or sex.

throughout the United States and in Canada and he does a lot of traveling. In recent months, he questioned women in Atlanta, Milwaukee, Omaha, Dallas, Los Angeles, and Portland, Ore., and asked two questions:

A 1974 Detroit Police Department study showed 85 per cent of 144 assault complaints were filed by women, half of whom were married.

A Wayne County assistant prosecutor said wife assault is one of the most frequent crimes he encounters. The police chief of a small Washtenaw County town of 6,000 said family assault calls come in every day.

A doctor at a Detroit hospital emergency room said he sees five or six wife assault cases each week.

And 57 cases of alleged wife assault were reported to the Washtenaw County sheriff's department during a five-month period in 1974, accounting for almost half of all assault and battery complaints.

"I could name you three or four addresses where every weekend, year after year, we'll have calls on family disturbances, on a family fight," Detective Lt. Harold Owings said. "The husband... automatically beats up his wife every time he gets drunk."

The majority of wife assaults occur during certain peak periods of the week, the researchers said, especially on Friday nights, late Sunday afternoons and Sunday night.

The most common form of attack, the study showed, is with the fists. But most often the assailant also resorted to kicking, throwing across the room or down the stairs, slapping, choking, burning or smothering.

The "more innovative weapons used" included a broom, leather belt, brush, pillow, hot iron, lighted cigarettes and a piece of railroad track.

Areas of the body most frequently attacked were the head and the face. Some wives said their husbands "always went for the face first" in a desire to humiliate them.

Seven victims interviewed said their husbands inflicted blows to the abdominal areas during pregnancy.

Injuries included four women with miscarriages, four had concussions, one woman had her hair ripped out, one suffered a fractured jaw, and one sustained cracked ribs.

Miss Eisenberg and Mrs. Micklow said these wives who decided to take legal action against their husbands were trapped in a shuttle between the criminal and civil courts — the "Catch 22" situation.

If the woman requests an assault and battery warrant, they said, she must prove to the prosecuting attorney that she is a worthy victim. The researchers said most prosecutors would give the woman is filing for divorce before they will issue a warrant.

But when the woman arrives in court, judges often fail to punish the husband in the hope that reconciliation will occur, they said.

Miss Eisenberg and Mrs. Micklow pointed to the need for the legal system to recognize wife beating as a crime, offering immediate protection as well as long term solutions.

— Why do so few women run for public office?

— Why are so few women elected?

"Most of these women told them they feel politics is primarily a man's field and that the political arena was too expensive for them. Others, in the minority, said men hold women down when they seek public office."

"These are fascinating and pure hogwash," he said, and expressed his own views on why women aren't winning the battle of the ballot. He said:

- Women are far more parsimonious than men. They think in terms of shopping supermarkets rather than committing money for time and space in television advertising and in other media.

- Women tend to listen more to their personal friends and peers rather than to professionals who know how to direct a campaign.

- Women look upon political campaigns as an office klatch after another and ignore the vast majority of voters who never attend such functions.

- Many women who have risen to the top in local political party clubs have clawed and fussed their way up the ladder and they acquire an abrasiveness that alienates both men and women voters.

There is another factor which Evry concludes is the most important one — there are few women incumbents and incumbents win 95 per cent of all elections regardless of office, party or sex.

"The gals have to get going," he said, "and somehow establish enough incumbencies so they'll get that reelection factor in their favor. To do this, they must employ and listen to toponotch political strategists, something most of them seem unable to do... listen and follow directions."

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

The 1875 World Almanac recorded that in 1874, for the first time since the Civil War, the United States elected a Democratic House of Representatives with Democrats winning in traditional Republican strongholds. It was noted that although Ulysses S. Grant had been overwhelmingly re-elected two years previously, the swing from Republican to Democrat reflected the gradual dittion of Republican strength during Grant's two terms.

Cooperation needed

EDINBURGH, Scotland
(UPI) — A civic group two years ago cleared a small patch of park, put down gravel and planted a lamp post. The "doggie toilets," however, lacked one thing
— doggie interest.
Councillor Magnus
Williamson, chairman of the Edinburgh Civic Amenities Committee, announced Monday a complete rethink of the project.

"You can lead a horse to water as you can lead a dog to a lamp post, but anything that happens after that depends entirely upon the cooperation of the animal concerned."

HAPPY BIRTHDAY
MIAMI BEACH, Fla.
(UPI) — The Hialeah Race
Course will observe its 50th anniversary during the 40-day meeting Jan. 17 through March 4, 1975.

Hypnosis real tool

STANDFORD, Calif (UPI) — A Stanford University psychologist says hypnosis is not merely a game but a real therapeutic tool against pain. "Hypnosis works," said Prof. Ernest R. Hilgard. "Laboratory research to date allows us to say that with confidence, even as the clinical applications of hypnosis proliferate."

LORNA LUFT

... close sisters

Q: Is it true that Liza Minnelli and her sister, Lorna Luft, are really bitter enemies? — F. McD., Grand Rapids, Mich.

A: No, not true. The two sisters are very close. For quite a while Liza would not speak to Sid Luft (Lorna's father) and that caused a strain between the two girls. (Lorna is close to her father and he's also her manager.) However, recently Liza and Sid made up. When Liza was in New York last, she visited with the entire Luft family, including Sid's current wife, Patti.

named Annick Marie Kelly. She says Carradine called her a witch, beat her up, tried to strip off her clothes. She wants $1,000,000 for these little indignities. David — drop Kung Fu and take up chess!

Q: Do you remember that terrific singer Joanie Sommers, who was so famous in the early sixties? Where did she disappear to? — A.M., Rochester, N.Y.

A: Joanie gave up her career when she married, but her husband died tragically three years ago. Since then, Joanie has been trying valiantly to put the pieces of her life together and resume her career.

Taylor and Alice Cooper into a sweat over a police bust.

Q: Who won that squabble between the book publisher and William Safire, the former Nixon speechwriter? I remember he turned in a book and the publisher didn't like it and refused to pay some huge sum. — M.K., N.Y.

A: The case between William Morrow and Company and Safire went to an arbitration board which ruled against the author. Safire could keep his first payment of $83,000.

Q: We've always been fascinated with the scandalous Sarah Miles. Her husband, Robert Bolt, tried to get her to come back to him since she left England to live in Hollywood? — R.Z., Yuma, Ariz.

A: Bolt seems much too busy with his own affairs to bother with Sarah. For a while he was seen everywhere with a beautiful 24-year-old model. However, the man who wrote the script for "Lawrence of Arabia" has now taken up with Debbie Condon, the 35-year-old daughter of writer Richard Condon ("The Manchurian Candidate"). We think Sarah has been replaced.

and give her pore-cleansing facials insist she has had no plastic surgery. This rumor started because Jackie is friendly with the good-looking plastic surgeon Tom Rees and his wife.

Q: I heard on television that Steve Wonder is into Transcendental Meditation. I really thought this was a fact that was over. — E.T., Philadelphia, Pa.

A: Transcendental Meditation is getting more popular every day on college campuses, among businessmen and in Hollywood too. Clint Eastwood, Doris Day, John Denver and the entire cast of "The Waltons" on television are among the stars who spend 20 minutes every morning and night meditating, to reduce stress, relieve anxiety and achieve peace of mind.

QUESTION YOU NEVER ASKED: Does Kirk Douglas know he has a new little namesake? Israeli actress Dahlia Lavi, married to American speedboat racer Peter Rittmaster, had a son recently. She named the baby Alexander Kirk. The middle name was a thanks to Kirk Douglas, who met Dahlia when she was a child while he was making a film in Israel. Douglas was so taken with the youngster that he paid for acting and dancing lessons for her until she was 20.

Q: Why was the George Harrison tour a flop? — E.T., Brookline, Mass.

A: The former Beatle is very much under the influence of the Indian mystic Ravi Shankar and insisted on using quasi-mystical photos of himself with Ravi on the posters. This led many to believe it wasn't going to be a rock concert. But if you did buy a ticket, your money went for various good charities — every dime of it.

Q: I really loved Bob Crane on "Hogan's Heroes." Why doesn't he do another series? All I can see now is Crane in reruns. — W.V., Beaumont, that throws pies in faces for a fee. To answer the many queries: Pie-Kill can be written to at 152 W. 42nd St., Suite 504, NYC, 10036-IL, costs $40 for a pie to be tossed, and you can order extra "refinements."

Q: Whatever happened to Xaviera Hollander? I read she's not even starring in her own life story. — G.P., Memphis, Tenn.

A: Xaviera Hollander is being played by British actress Lynn Redgrave in her film autobiography, "The Happy Hooker," but Xaviera herself stars in a new film called "My Pleasure Is My Business." The R-rated film was made in Toronto where she now lives and is about an ex-porn star. She has also completed a new book called "Xaviera Goes Wild!" and wants to pursue her screen career in the future.

Q: Was Catherine Deneuve bombed or what on the Golden Globe awards on television? She sure acted crazy. — G.H., Brooklyn, N.Y.

A: The French actress did act a bit during her presentation of a foreign press award to tycoon Bob Evans. But it's all just part of the "new" Catherine whose romance with readers. While Sloan cannot provide individual answers, questions of general interest will be used in the column. Write to Robin Adams Sloan, care of this newspaper.

Marcello Mastroianni is ended and who is now in Hollywood tossing her weight around while making a film. Playing "the big movie star bit" may come from added confidence Catherine has received as a result of those rumors that she is one of the ones who sees French President Giscard d'Estaing in his off hours.
